Growing Soybeans More Than Magical For Reigel Brothers

ANNVILLE (Lebanon Co.)— How many years have gone by since we read a lot about "Soybeans — the Magic Beans"? At least 15.

There was lot of publicity that soybeans would become a major crop to rival corn and wheat acreage. If anything, uses for soybeans were underestimated.

Soybean acreage has increased substantially every year since the United Soybean Board was established in 1991 and the national soybean checkoff began.

First-place winners of the 2000 Pennsylvania Soybean Yield Contest, Jeff and Steve Reigel of Annville are an excellent example of the trend to the yearly increases in soybeans. They took up the challenge on entering the state soybean contest a few years ago.

Their persistence paid off. Their 2000 soybean crop, evaluated by Del Voight, Southeast regional agronomy extension agent, won them the top prize — a trip to the 2002 Commodity Classic in Nashville, Tenn., next February. The Classic is the combined convention and trade show of the American Soybean Association (ASA) and the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA).

As reported in the January 20 issue of Lancaster Farming, the Reigels used Garst D398 seed that yielded 70.58 bushel per acres, significantly surpassing the other 24 entries in the contest. (The next highest yield per acre was 67.84 bushels.)

Besides working for the family excavating firm, the Reigel brothers produce soybeans, corn, and wheat. They also maintain 40 head of registered Polled Herefords and grow out 34,000 broilers annually. The soybean field that yielded 70.58 bushels per acre won them first place in the 2000 Pennsylvania Soybean Contest. The Reigels used a commercial seed that yielded 70.58 bushels per acre, significantly surpassing the other 24 entries in the contest. (The next highest yield per acre was 67.84 bushels.) Photo by Michelle Ranck

Dairy Farmers Learn Ways To Help Stabilize Milk Prices

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — About a dozen dairy farmers gathered at the Solanco fairgrounds in Quarryville last week to learn about a new program that could help them stabilize the prices they receive for their milk.

The Dairy Options Pilot Program (DOPP) offers farmers an opportunity to use the futures market to guarantee a minimum price for their milk in future months.

Dr. Ken Bailey, Pennsylvania DOPP coordinator and Penn State associate professor of dairy and marketing policy, said that the program is being offered to farmers for protection against a "boom and bust" cycle in the milk market.

"The milk market doesn't change slowly. It crashes," Bailey said. "Prices are very

Agricultural Applications Of Technology At Geographic Information Conference

MICHELLE RANCK

BALTIMORE, Md. — At the 14th annual Geographic Information Sciences Conference at the Baltimore Conference Center, more than 70 presentations featured the applications of geographic information systems (GIS) in the world today.

According to information from the U.S. Geological Survey's Website, a GIS is a computer system capable of assembling, storing, manipulating, and displaying geographical data.

For example, a GIS allows emergency planners to calculate emergency response times during a natural disaster, or a GIS might be used to find wetlands that need protection from pollution.

Satellites relay information in a GIS system, a computerized mapping system. The way maps and other data have been stored or filed as layers of information in a GIS makes it possible to perform complex analyses.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Maria van Hekken, Farmers' Market Trust representative, spoke about the third annual "Future of Our Food and Farms" summit to a gathering of agriculture representatives during a Monday meeting at the capitol.

Preceding van Hekken's presentation, the executive committee meeting of the Pennsylvania State Council of Farm organizations included legislative updates, policy and resolution updates, and executive committee meeting notes.

Farmers' Market Trust

According to van Hekken, the Farmers' Market Trust is a nonprofit organization dedicated to improving the supply of afford-

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity was moderate to fairly good as dealers acquired product for the holiday weekend. Offerings of boneless-skinless breasts were closely cleared, and bone-in breasts were no more than adequate to balanced.

Continued export demand kept dark meat lines clearing well. Wings were at least adequate for current needs. Movement through retail and distributive channels ranged moderate to fairly good as seasonal demand takes shape.

The market tone was fully steady to firm on breast items, steady to fully steady on dark meat cuts, about steady on wings.

Eastern Region Frozen Eggs

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Majority prices were unchanged on salt yolks, unchanged to slightly lower on whites, and unchanged to lower on whole and sugar yolks when compared to a week earlier. Supplies were limited on yolks, at least adequate on whole, and sufficient on white. Demad was irregular, with buyers cautious. The undertone was mixed, with traders usually barely steady at prevailing values. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending April 28, 2001 were 4 % more than the previous week, but 8 % less than a year ago.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Daily National Grain Market Summary

Grains and soybean bids were lower in dull trading as traders anticipate tomorrow's USDA reports. Profit taking was seen across the Boards today.

Wheat 1 to 3 cents lower. Corn steady. Sorghum steady. Soybeans 1 to 2 cents lower.

Slow export sales this week for all commodities, just light orders here and there. Most traders are waiting for tomorrow's USDA reports.

Corn planting is just over half way competed with rainfall delaying progress in several Midwest areas. However, it is still too early to begin worrying. More rain is expected in the Midwest and should hit dry areas in the east. This would aid germination and therefore offer pressure to bids.

EXPORT SALES: PURCHASER COMMODITY TONNAGE DELIVERY DATE Taiwan Corn 18,000 May/June Taiwan Soybeans 12,000 May/June

THESE MAY NOT BE THE ONLY EXPORT SALES THAT HAVE TRANSPIRED, BUT THEY ARE THE ONLY SALES THAT COULD BE CONFIRMED BY USDA GRAIN MARKET NEWS.

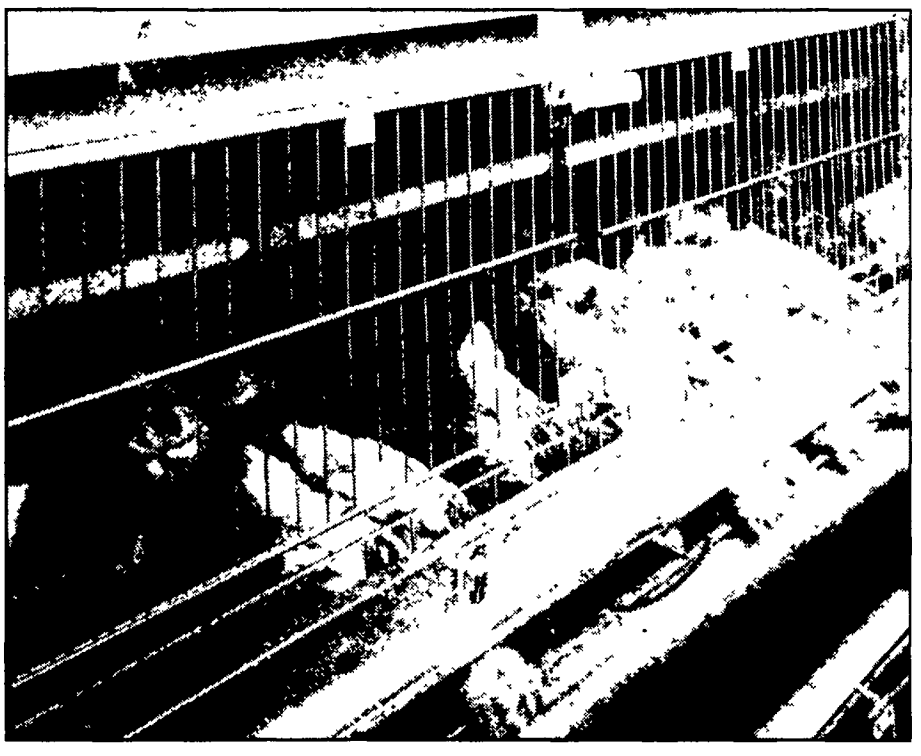
WITH Big Dutchman.

UNIVENT Starter Pullet Cages

Stacked with Manure Belt



Advantages

- simple assembly of 3 to 8 tiers;
- feed troughs are mounted on supports for trough stability and long service life;
- feed trough with inner rim provides minimal feed losses;
- upper walkway for batteries with more than 5 tiers = easy bird control;
- better thermal economy (reduced heating expenses and reduced investment costs per bird) is achieved with systems of 4 or more tiers due to increased density;
- remarkably low bird mortality during rearing.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

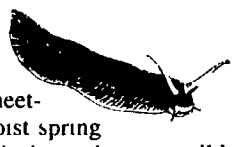
ST. DUNSTAN, MAY 19

SPRING'S STICKY VISITOR

We're talking about the slug, of course—that mass of not-so-sluggish destruction in the garden. Handpicking may be the most effective means of eliminating this slugabed in your borders, if your garden is small and you are brave (Rubber gloves and an iron stomach help) Otherwise, decoys such as comfrey plants may attract the slimy pests, keeping them away from your prized cabbages Shallow pans of beer are often recommended, which become irresistible drowning pools. Barriers of sharp eggshells, grit, or ash may work, and many people claim that slugs won't cross a strip of copper sheeting Early mornings or cool, moist spring days are a slug's delight. Toads, ducks, and certain wild birds are their natural predators.



All gardens are a form of autobiography.

–Robert Dash

TIP OF THE WEEK

SALMON WITH WATERCRESS SAUCE

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 pound fresh salmon fillet, quartered
- 3 large eggs
- 1 bunch watercress, chopped
- juice of 2 lemons
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher or sea salt
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper

Preheat oven to 400°F and grease a baking pan with the olive oil Place the salmon pieces in the pan and bake for 8 to 10 minutes Meanwhile, cook eggs in boiling water for 5 minutes, then plunge into cold water and peel. Blend soft-boiled egg with watercress, lemon juice, and seasonings, and refrigerate until ready to serve. When salmon is done, serve hot with egg dressing poured over the top

Makes 4 servings

OPINION

Our Precious Resource

Clean and plentiful quantities of water are sorely taken for granted. That's the message delivered last week at a Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) seminar conducted in Carlisle.

Lawrence C. Tropea Jr., DEP deputy secretary for water management, and Robert M. Ross, Pennsylvania-American Water Company, both provide their views in the "Water Is Life" booklet published by DEP and handed out to more than 200 water industry representatives at the symposium.

According to Ross, 88 percent of Pennsylvanians obtain their drinking water from public water systems. Those systems serve water to approximately 8.9 million people from surface water sources (rivers, lakes, and reservoirs).

The rest of the water used by public water systems and by private residential users is obtained from groundwater sources such as wells and springs.

More than one million wells exist in Pennsylvania, the second highest number in the United States (emphasis ours).

But the state's population grows. The water resources, however, remain the same. What kind of problems will this create in the future? What can be done to conserve and protect this precious resource?

Back in 1992, the editor of this paper examined the burgeoning projects in the state to protect well water. The series, which won second place in the Keystone Press Awards competition, examined farmers' difficulties with water quality and what they had to do.

Those who spoke at the symposium noted that federally funded programs exist to ensure we protect this precious resource. Fantastic technology exists to study the makeup of an aquifer, to monitor the actual age of the water in an aquifer, look at how water moves below the ground, and what affect the ground below us has on the effect of water movement. Technicians can even date the actual age of a water source!

One municipality, Telford Borough in Montgomery and Bucks counties, has a wellhead protection plan in place. The borough also monitors wells for long-range water quality observations.

Yet only about 10 percent of statewide water systems have some sort of wellhead protect plan or program, according to those who spoke at the symposium.

According to David Hess, acting secretary for the DEP, Pennsylvanians drill more than 10,000 new water wells every year. Wells serve more than 2.5 million people.

With that much of an area to cover, and that many people who depend on quality water, township and borough supervisors would do well to work on water quality.

For more information, contact DEP at (717) 772-4048 or through the Web at www.dep.state.pa.us

To Protect Groundwater While Applying Pesticides

Corn planting is nearly complete on many Pennsylvania farms. This means that a large percentage of the pesticides that will be applied this year will be used in the next two weeks as farmers apply their corn herbicides.

Protecting our farms' groundwater supplies from contamination while applying pesticides should be a high priority.

Following a few commonsense guidelines when using pesticides will go a long way toward achieving that goal.

First, never fill your sprayer near a well. Choose the water faucet located the farthest from the well for your water supply. If that is not practical, purchase enough hose to be able to fill your sprayer at a safe distance from your well.

Avoid spills when mixing and move the location where you are mixing periodically. When cleaning the sprayer, rinse it at least three times and spray the rinse water on the field where the product was used. Triple-rinse empty spray containers and add the rinse water to the spray tank. After properly rinsing the containers, punch holes in them and dispose of them at approved disposal sites. Always read and follow label directions when using pesticides.

To Apply Fungicides To Strawberries

The recent warm weather has promoted rapid development of numerous perennial crops. Many strawberry varieties are now in bloom and this is the time when Botrytis fruit rot (gray mold) should be controlled.

Gray mold or Botrytis blight causes the greatest loss of flowers and fruit of all the strawberry diseases. The Botrytis infection starts in the bloom period. If conditions favor development of the disease as the fruit develops, the disease will then invade the berries, causing them to rot. The rot may first appear at the base of the cap or when the berry is in contact with the soil, other rotten fruit, or damp surfaces.

As ripening increases and if humidity remains high, a gray, fuzzy coating produced by the fruiting of the fungus often covers the strawberry. As the disease develops, spores are produced and are easily spread to healthy foliage by wind or splashing rain. Once the fungus becomes established it can continue to produce spores throughout the growing season. The fungus thrives on plant debris, so sanitation is essential for control.

Moisture is necessary for the gray mold spores to germinate and infect plants, so the disease is favored by cool humid conditions. Practices that help reduce humidity and increase air movement, such as wider spacing between rows and plants, can help control gray mold. Since free water is required for spore germination, managing overhead irrigation to minimize the time period that the berries are wet is very important. If one irrigates during midday (10 a.m. to 2 p.m.), the fruit will dry quickly in the sun after the water is turned off. This will reduce the opportunity for mold spores to germinate and infect the fruit.

Since most gray mold infections occur during the bloom period, fungicide applications should be focused on this period as well. The amount of protection needed will be heavily influenced by the amount of rainfall. Research has shown one to three applications during the bloom period usually provide excellent control. If these applications are made during the bloom period, additional treatments later usually do not provide additional control. If the blossom sprays are missed, later applications usually do not provide adequate control.

The number of fungicides labeled for use in strawberries is limited. Products that are labeled include Elevate, Captain, Thiram, and Topsin M. It is important to manage fungicide resistance by alternating unrelated fungicides or by using mixtures of fungicides. Always read and follow label instructions, especially the "days-to-harvest" limitation.

❖ FARM FORUM ❖

Editor:

According to your editorial on April 21, you approve of a large CAFO (concentrated animal feeding operation). Most people, including myself, accept a few large buildings, but as the size increases, so do our complaints.

Although all agriculture can be described as an industry, these buildings are more like typical industry because feed is brought in and a product is made and shipped out, including the manure. The topsoil is not needed and can be removed from the farm, except on a preserved farm. Also, unless zoning or a deed restriction stops a plan, a large CAFO will most likely be built on a farm's flatter Class I and II prime farmland.

The goal of farmland preservation is to prohibit or limit industrial buildings and other developments on this land.

The other complaints can be with truck traffic, odors, mice, flies, water use, and stream pollution if something breaks. But the complaints that don't receive media attention are that

WHAT IS 'NECESSARY'?

Background Scripture:
Acts 15:1-35.
Devotional Reading:
Romans 3:21-26.

The Church had barely begun when that question of questions reared its head for the first time: "What is necessary to follow Jesus Christ?" That his followers have rarely, if ever, agreed upon this is most apparent from the history of the Church, even in the earliest New Testament times.

No sooner had Paul and Barnabas returned from their first missionary journey and exulted in "all that God had done with them, and how he had opened a door of faith to the Gentiles" then "some men came down from Judea and were teaching the brethren, 'Unless you are circumcised according to the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved'" (Acts 15:1). Did it not matter to them that God had opened Gentile doors, that the Holy Spirit had lead Paul and Barnabas forth, nor that the number of those who wanted to follow Jesus had been increased?

If these men from Judea had come saying, We rejoice with you in becoming a follower of The Way, but we think you ought also to be circumcised, their intervention might be more easily tolerated. But, regardless of how sincere they may have been, there is no humility in them, but outrageous arrogance that denies Peter's rooftop experience: "What God has cleansed, you must not call common" (Acts 10:15).

Defenders Of The Faith?

I'm sure these men were sincere and thought of themselves as defenders of the faith, but they were nonetheless substituting their judgment for the Lord's. Peter correctly admonished them: "Now therefore why do you make trial of God by putting a yoke upon the neck of the disciples . . . ?" (15:10). They are not defenders of the faith, but rebels against God!

The Jerusalem Church resolved this question of "What is necessary?" — at least temporarily — by instructing Antioch Christians that "it has seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things:" (1) abstaining from food sacrificed to idols; (2) from blood and stronghold animals; and (3) unchastity. This was a compromise: Gentiles would be accepted (a big victory for the liberal church at Antioch) so long as they refrained from unchastity and food sacrificed to idols (a smaller victory for the conservatives in Jerusalem).

'Good To The Holy Spirit'?

Yet, although we admire this compromise, there is one idea in it that lies as the ground for most conflicts among Christians: "It seemed good to the Holy Spirit and us . . ." (15:25). If the Jerusalem Church meant, as we interpreted the guidance of the Holy Spirit . . . . , there is room for those who do not so interpret the Holy Spirit. It is more likely, however, that the Jerusalem Church meant that the Holy Spirit gave them the specific stipulations for their decree. And that is the tragedy of Christian history: so many people believing that, when they have spoken, it is the voice of the Holy Spirit.

What is necessary, then? I can give you my personal answer and I can attribute that answer to the Holy Spirit, but I must not, will not, assume what is the prerogative of the Lord. I do not believe I am called — nor any of us — to defend the faith, but to live it. Instead of deciding for others "what is necessary," it is enough for me to find the answers to that question while I seek day by day to follow the Lord Jesus Christ. If I do that, I will be "defending the faith" in the same way Jesus did.

Oklahoma City, OK
Report Supplied By USDA

Compared to last week: Feeder steers steady to 2.00 lower, decline on 7 weights. Feeder heifers and stocker cattle and calves steady. Demand moderate to good for feeder cattle. Demand moderate for new crop calves and improved some from last week as scattered rains fell across the state over the weekend improving pastures and grazing conditions. Quality plain to average with many out of state cattle. Weigh-ups mostly average Feeder cattle in medium to moderate flesh, few fleshy and cattle not showing the extreme flesh normally associated with May wheat runs. Slaughter cows steady. Slaughter bulls 1.00 lower. Packer demand good. Demand continues good for grazing and feeder cows. Total of 490 cows and bulls with 43 percent to packers. Receipts this week 11,365; last week 14,954; last year 11,292.

Supply consisted of 83 percent yearlings over 600 lbs; 13 percent calves and light yearlings under 600 lbs; 4 percent cows and bulls.

Heifers comprised 39 percent of feeder and calf supply.

Nutra-Flo
FOLIAR PLANT FOOD
...the Yield Booster!

Completely Safe, Will Not Burn Plants

Nutra-Flo "foliar plant food" is completely safe for foliar application.

- made from 100% orthophosphate
- chloride-free
- 100% water soluble
- crystal clear, water-white liquid
- low-salt index
- neutral pH

Improves Soybean, Corn & Alfalfa Yields

Research shows foliar feeding boosts maturity, quality and yield. Plants get an immediate source of N-P-K when soil nutrients are unavailable. Large applications of nitrogen, high organic matter, high or low pH, dry conditions, excess moisture, extreme heat or cold can reduce macro or micronutrient availability.

CROP	BENEFITS OF FOLIAR PLANT FOOD	YIELD INCREASE
Soybeans	• Improves and increases pod set • Hastens maturity	Up to 12 bu/A
Corn	• Higher test weight • Drier corn at harvest	Up to 9 bu/A
Alfalfa	• Increased protein quality • Hastens maturity	Up to 4 ton/A

Easy to Apply with Post-Emerge Chemicals

Nutra-Flo foliar plant food can be piggy-backed with most insecticide and herbicide applications. It meets Monsanto's strict compatibility specifications for combining liquid N-P-K with Roundup® Ultra for application on Roundup Ready® soybeans.

Foliar Application Guidelines

CROP	FIRST APPLICATION	SECOND APPLICATION	AMOUNT FOR EACH APPLICATION
Soybeans	4th to 6th leaf trifoliate	60 to 80% pod set	3 to 6 gals/A
Corn	3 to 5 leaf collar	10 to 15 days before tassel	3 to 6 gals/A
Alfalfa	4 to 6 days after each cutting		3 to 6 gals/A

Lower Costs, Higher Yields

SAVE Up to 25%

Nutra-Flo foliar plant food costs less. You'll enjoy these other economic benefits when you foliar apply Nutra-Flo plant food:

- Higher profits
- High energy
- Faster maturity
- Drier crops at harvest
- Higher protein levels
- Better nutrient uptake
- Increased disease resistance
- More drought resistance
- Increased root growth
- No application costs when you combine with post-emerge chemicals

Butter Prices Weaken Because Of Over-Quota

- CME butter falls to $1.80 per pound.
- Block cheese prices strengthen to $1.58.
- Butter production down 15.9 percent.

There was a reversal of fortunes last week. Cheese prices strengthened some and butter prices softened a bit.

This shows how uncertain the market is regarding supply-and-demand conditions. This day-to-day volatility will continue through the early summer until the market finds directions. Right now, it's like the U.S. economy — too uncertain to predict.

USDA announced dairy product production for March 2001. The results show butter production down 15.9 percent from a year ago. That is a "big" drop. Cheese production, however, was mixed. American-type cheese production was down 4.6 percent, whereas mozzarella cheese production was up 4.8 percent. Total cheese production fell just 0.1 percent.

Despite the bad news regarding butter production, the cash butter market and the Class IV futures market (mainly driven by butter) were down this week. Grade AA butter fell from $1.8975 per pound on Monday, April 30 to $1.80 by Friday, May 4. And the Class IV futures during the months of July through October fell from lofty levels of $16 per CWT the week before to $14.80-$14.90 this week.

Why the decline in the butter market? Well, there was a "correction" in the market because of news of imports of butter from Eastern Europe and New Zealand (I have not confirmed this with USDA numbers). USDA reported this week "many domestic producers and handlers feel that the weakening cash price is reflective of lower priced imported butter being offered. Imported butter is reported to be entering the U.S. within and above quota levels."

As the market price of butter exceeds $1.85 per pound, it is economical to import butter from overseas and pay the higher out-of-quota tariff. I would argue this type of cooling off is good for the dairy industry since it lessens the chance of a quick run-up in prices, followed by a prolonged crash-and-burn scenario. Farmers make more money from the market with a sustained yet moderate price increase.

I have been traveling the country and have been speaking to many dairy producers and feed company executives. I have a mixed bag of results from these conversations. Many are reporting the cows in the west went through a rough winter of rain and mud. The Northeast is still suffering the effects of poor forage from last fall. We have only just now started to plant corn and harvest green chop in the Northeast. Many herds have cows that are mid-lactation. The argument is that these cows will have depressed milk production for at least several more months.

I have also heard that higher cull cow prices and high prices for open cows and dry cows ($2,000-$2,200 per cow) has thinned a lot of herds, particularly here in the east. Cash-starved producers need the money.

My view is that high milk prices and cheap feed will eventually bring a lot more milk. The question is when. We could get a nice rebound in milk production in the Northeast as early as July (assuming normal weather). Time will tell.

In the meantime, Class III futures prices are in excess of $14 per CWT for June through September, and Class IV futures prices are close to $15 per CWT for May through October. These are very good prices!

I can easily make the following recommendation: lock in a portion of your milk supply (not all of it) for July through November of this year. Avoid the close-up months, since these are still rising.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

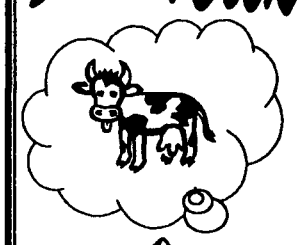
ARE YOU A GAMBLER... WITH FEED QUALITY??



If you bale hay and do not use a preservative, you may be a gambler! At Renaissance, we want to help ensure the quality of your hay...and all your forages. Don't gamble on quality. Not using preservatives? Here's your gamble:

1. Hay dries too fast - leaves are lost at baling and so is quality!
2. Hay not quite dry – the bales heat and mold and quality is lost!
3. Hay rained on - leaves and nutrients are lost, along with quality!

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE RENAISSANCE PROGRAM & get Results!

RENAISSANCE MAKES A DIFFERENCE

- FRESH CUT® by Kemin...for outstanding results with hay!
- Forage analysis and nutritionally sound ration formulation
- Expert advice on forage preservation that makes a difference
- Crop management and agronomic consultation

Prevent a Foot and Mouth Catastrophe

Watch for Signs of Foot and Mouth Disease

Clinical signs of Foot and Mouth Disease (FMD):

Early Signs may include:
- Fever
- Off feed
- Reluctant to move
- Excessive squealing when forced to move

Followed by blisters:
- Just above the hoof and on the heels
- Between the cloven hoofs
- On the snout

If you suspect Foot and Mouth Disease FMD in your herd:

1. Do NOT under any circumstances move any animals off the farm
2. Immediately report suspected case to either the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) or the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA).
   Contacts:
   PDA - Dr. Phil Debok at 717-783-8300
   USDA - Dr. Lynne Siegfried at 717-782-3442
3. A veterinarian especially trained to diagnose foreign animal diseases will come to your farm to make the diagnosis.
4. Government programs are in place to reimburse farmers for the value of their animals sacrificed in the control program.

able food and good nutrition in the Mid-Atlantic region.

The organization works to increase the availability of fresh foods and improve the connection between urban and agricultural communities.

The Trust operates 11 farmers' markets every week from June through November in the Mid-Atlantic region, besides conducting hands-on cooking and nutrition workshops at senior centers, high schools, and other community sites.

Additionally, the Trust sponsors a two-day summit, November 29 and 30 this year, "Future of Our Food and Farms," which promotes agriculture, features sessions teaching about trends in food distribution, and ultimately finds ways to reduce hunger.

The event combines the three major elements of food, farming, and hunger.

At the summit, "there's so many exciting and innovative sessions that go on," said van Hekken.

"The sessions address cutting edge, innovative issues in agriculture."

The summit provides a networking opportunity for collaboration between farmers, consumers, policymakers, and nonprofit organizations.

Industry representatives will have the opportunity to share ideas about problems and solutions affecting the farm and food system in the region.

"We have some of the richest agricultural lands in the world in the region, and yet there are many people in the shadows who remain hungry," said van Hekken. Inner city residents, she said, may struggle against not only low incomes but also limited access to grocery stores which sell fresh produce.

Food companies will be in attendance at the summit, which last year had sessions highlighting farmers using the computer and Internet to market, marketing ethnic produce, getting farm products into school cafeteria systems, marketing to the health-conscious consumer, involving youth in the food system, and marketing natural beef.

Genetic engineering, cooperatives, and supermarket produce were additional sessions at the summit.

Attendance at the event is "very, very diverse," said van Hekken. "We get farmers, food company executives, extension agents, local government officials, policymakers, and nutritionists."

Art Brown, Secretary of Agriculture of New Jersey, will be the opening keynote speaker at this year's conference.

After the summit, the Trust plans to disseminate policy recommendations that grow out of discussions to leaders in the farm and food system throughout the Mid-Atlantic region.

Summit information can be found at http:/ www.ibiblio.org arming-connection ffconf/.

Council Meeting Highlights

Members of the Council of Farm Organizations may possibly help to organize sessions on how local farming groups can get involved in policy work.

After Curtis Kratz, council president, called the meeting to order, council members discussed the nature of the organization. For instance members debated whether or not the organization should become more visible and active in the amount of legislative activity.

Because of the diverse interests represented on the council, however, taking an official stance may prove to be difficult, so members settled on continuing to alert farm organizations about upcoming issues in legislation.

Traditionally, the organization has not lobbied or supported particular legislation. Members agreed that the council is not a responder to legislation but advised agriculture organizations about issues at hand.

Comments on this year's Cornucopia were also part of the discussion. The well-received event received a $3,000 grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, according to reports. Members also noted that the positive responses and high attendence of new legislators attending the Cornucopia luncheon.

In new business, nine members of the council are on a committee to discuss the possibility of an "Ag Channel" on cable television in the future.

The legislative update included reports on House and senate Ag Committee activities.

Water regulation, carbon sequestration, vehicle codes, inheritance taxes, horse transportation, and changes to the nutrient management act are policies on the table on the legislative front.

Environmental Education Grants Announced

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Just one day after Earth Day, Gov. Tom Ridge announced 37 environmental education grants totaling nearly $300,000 to promote environmental stewardship and awareness across the commonwealth.

"I am pleased to announce this investment in Pennsylvania's future — our children," Gov. Ridge said. "By supporting environmental education, we develop tomorrow's environmental stewards."

This year, the grants will help fund projects that cover teacher training on Pennsylvania's new Academic Standards for Environment and Ecology, land-use education, acid mine drainage education, watershed education, and general environmental education.

With this grant round, the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) will have awarded $3.1 million for the expansion and support of environmental education since the creation of the Environmental Education Grants Program.

Environmental education grants of up to $10,000 are made available to school districts, private schools, intermediate units, colleges, county conservation districts and nonprofit groups with education and conservation missions. The program is funded by setting aside five percent of the fines and penalties collected by DEP.

Applications for the 2002 Environmental Education Grants will be available in June.

Growers Advised To Stay With Full-Season Corn Hybrids

DES MOINES, Iowa — When wet fields extend corn planting into May, the temptation mounts to switch to earlier-maturing hybrids. In most instances, though, the decision to stay with full-season hybrids most often yields growers their best results.

"Long-term studies by both Pioneer and universities have shown that full-season hybrids offer a clear yield and profit advantage over early-maturing hybrids, even when full-season products are planted late," notes Steve Paszkiewicz, agronomy research manager for Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. "When planted in a timely fashion, these hybrids can make use of the entire growing season to reach their full yield potential. But even when planting is delayed, full-season hybrids often out-perform early maturing hybrids because they adjust their development to reach maturity in a shortened growing season."

Pioneer Agronomy Sciences has conducted ongoing planting-date research for the past 14 growing seasons across central, north-central and far-north locations in the Corn Belt. Here's a summarized look at the results of these studies, broken down by region.

• Central Corn Belt — 34 environments in Nebraska, southern Iowa, central Illinois and central Indiana (Full-season hybrids rated at more than 110 days).

Results: Late-April planting is ideal. Full-season hybrids yielded consistently better at harvest than early maturity hybrids across all planting dates. Based on gross returns, maturity switches should not be considered until early June.

• North-central Corn Belt — 13 environments in southern Minnesota, South Dakota and northern Iowa (Full-season hybrids rated at more than 103 days).

Results: April planting is ideal. Full-season hybrids yielded better than early maturity hybrids across all planting dates. Based on gross returns, growers in this region can stay with full-season hybrids until May 20-25.

• Far-north Region — 15 environments in North Dakota, central and northern Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan (Full-season hybrids rated at more than 100 days).

Results: Selecting the proper maturity is most critical for this region since there is a far greater risk of the growing season being cut short due to cool weather or early frost. The studies in this region indicate that late-April/early-May planting dates provide optimum yield and profit. Still, even with the greater weather risk, gross returns suggest that producers in this region can comfortably stay with full-season hybrids until May 20-25.

The results of these Pioneer studies mirror the recommendations of university Extension agronomists in many Corn Belt states.

• University of Illinois: Hybrid switches are not required for northern Illinois until May 20-25; the deadline for switching maturities extends to May 31 for central and southern Illinois.

• Purdue University: Growers in northern and east-central Indiana don't need to consider switching to earlier maturity hybrids until the last week of May; producers in other parts of the state can delay switching until early June.

• University of Wisconsin: Maturity switches in central and northern Wisconsin are not necessary until May 20-25.

• University of Minnesota: Growers will want to consider switching to earlier hybrids if planting is going to be delayed beyond May 20.

Growers who face delayed planting conditions should consult with their local Pioneer sales professional for the best information and recommendations on switching hybrids in their operations.

DEP To Hold Public Meeting On East Watershed

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Southcentral Regional Director Michael R. Steiner has invited area citizens to attend an informational meeting on how the department will be reorienting its management to a watershed-focused, priority-setting approach.

"We need help from our citizens, watershed groups, farmers, local governments, business people and others in our commuity on identifying our environmental priorities," Steiner said. "The environment belongs to all of us, and for that reason, the process that sets priorities for its protection requires the public to be informed and involved."

The meeting will be conducted at Twin Valley High School, 4897 N. Twin Valley Road, Elverson at 7 p.m., Tuesday, May 15.

The Environmental Futures Planning Process (EFP2) will address how decisions are made about what each and every DEP employee does, and how budget dollars are spent. The process connects management of the department directly to improving the condition of the environment.

"A team of DEP staff will be establishing the baseline environmental conditions for the East watershed, determining the causes of environmental problems, and identifying priorities to be addressed," Steiner said. "Our resources will be assigned to address top priorities, and we'll also look to the community to work as our partner in protecting and restoring our environment. Measured improvements in environmental conditions will indicate our progress."

The East watershed includes the lower Lehigh and Conestoga rivers, Maiden, Tulpehocken, Mantawny-French, Perkiomen, Brandywine, Chickies and Pequea-Octorara creeks.

A team of DEP staff developed the environmental management process in 1999, and a pilot project was conducted in the Swatara Creek Watershed in 2000.

McKinstry Appointed Penn State Goddard Chair In Forest Resources

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Robert McKinstry, an attorney specializing in environmental law and litigation, has been selected as the new Maurice K. Goddard Professor of Forestry and Environmental Resource Conservation in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. He will begin his three-year term on July 1.

The School of Forest Resources created the endowed chair to honor "Doc" Goddard, Pennsylvania's "father of state parks." During Goddard's tenure in state government — first as Secretary of the Department of Forests and Waters then as Secretary of the Department of Environmental Resources — he succeeded in providing a state park within 25 miles of every Pennsylvanian and in overseeing the enactment of landmark environmental legislation. Goddard recognized early that environmental protection is not only consistent with economic growth, but is essential to such growth. He directed the school from 1952 to 1955.

According to Larry Nielsen, director of the school, McKinstry will spend half of his time on public outreach and policy, while teaching and carrying out special projects. The chair is unique in that those chosen to fill it need not have extensive academic or research experience.

"We look for someone who understands the big picture regarding the environment, but also has extensive experience in Pennsylvania," Nielsen said. "With Bob's expertise, we can expose our students to the realities of environmental and natural resource law."

McKinstry is a partner at Ballard Spahr Andrews & Ingersoll, LLP in Philadelphia, where he is the co-founder and co-partner in charge of the firm's 24-lawyer Environmental Practice Group. His work involves issues related to the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA, commonly known as Superfund), the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA), the Clean Water Act, the Clean Air Act and parallel state laws. He also deals with issues related to municipal solid waste regulation and planning, brownfields, wetlands and environmentally sensitive areas.

McKinstry has devoted his practice exclusively to environmental law since completing a two year judicial clerkship in 1981. He focused on environmental law during its infancy. He was the first joint degree candidate at Yale's School of Law and its School of Forestry and Environmental Studies, receiving a J.D and M.F.S. in 1979. "I look forward to returning to the intellectual life of the university and addressing topics from the point-of-view of what makes sense for society as a whole, rather than just individual clients," he said.

"I also look forward to working with Penn State scientists to help make their knowledge and perspectives available to decision-makers. I strongly believe my experience in environmental law will help bring together diverse interests to forge balanced and productive solutions to environmental issues."

McKinstry said he's particularly enthusiastic about working with college students. "It's the youth of our country that were responsible for much of the environmental change that has occurred since the first Earth Day," he said.

McKinstry hopes to provide a link between Penn State and both the environmental bar and national environmental law organizations, such as Environmental Law Institute, an internationally recognized independent research and education center devoted to the study of environmental law, policy and management. He is a member of the institute, as well as the Environmental, Mineral and Natural Resource Section of the Pennsylvania Bar Association; the Section on Environmental, Energy and Resource Law of the American Bar Association; the Delaware Valley Environmental Inn of Court; and the Environmental Law Committees of the Philadelphia and Chester County Bar Associations.

Washington County Cattlemen's Association Announces Fall Feeder Calf Show And Sale

MEADOW LANDS (Washington Co.) — The Washington County Cattlemen's Association has set Saturday, Sept. 22 as the date for its first annual feeder calf show and sale, to be held at the Washington County Fairgrounds in Meadow Lands.

The sale will feature 30 to 40 lots of show quality, halter broken heifers and steers, as well as a select few pens of three or four commercial feeders.

The halter broken lots will be shown and judged beginning at 1 p.m. and sold according to show placement at 5 p.m. that afternoon. Lunch and refreshments will be available throughout the day.

Applications for consignments to the sale are available to anyone in the tri-state area and can be obtained by contacting Brian Hrutkay at (724) 239-3556 or Dan Dye at (724) 222-8724. Deadline for applications is Aug. 22.

The Washington County Fairgrounds are conveniently located just off I-79 north of Washington and only a few minutes from the junction of I-79 and I-70.

New Buckeye Appalachian Ranch Tour

BARNESVILLE, Ohio — Visitors to Dickinson Cattle Co. Inc. (DCCI) are in for a treat when this famous family-owned working Texas Longhorn Ranch opens its gates for public tours June 1 to Sept. 4.

DCCI, the nation's largest Texas Longhorn, BueLingo and Watusi producer will commercially provide educational and historic pasture tours hourly from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The DCCI Longhorn bus will depart with personally narrated tours through the steep Appalachian hillside pastures.

Visitors will meet at the welcome pavilion each day and closely view championship Texas Longhorn steers, cows, calves and famous herd sires in the lush Ohio pastures of the near 4,000 acre Dickinson spread. Other stock will include BueLingo and an unusual African breed, Watusi.

The tour will present educational information, historical facts, conservation and ecological planning. DCCI is a modern day ranching miracle where coal was strip mined in Muskrat Valley valued at over two billion dollars, then reclaimed to become an open cattle ranch operation. The elevation on Muskrat Creek is 920-feet with numerous raw boned ridges up to 1,420-feet. Eleven lakes, numerous swamps, miles of spring fed streams, and thick groves of heavy timber make DCCI a living study in natural contradiction.

Horses are often required for cattle herding, but four-wheel ATV's prove to have more stamina in the lush tall grasses, steep hills and deep snow.

Don't let the DCCI eastern location interfere with the real western experience right in front of you. The spirit of the true western heroes — Texas Longhorns — can be captured just a camera shot away.

Guests should have reservations in groups of 50 or more. Between bus departures, beef lovers will find great lean longhorn meat products in the Longhorns Head to Tail Store, stacked with unique inventory.

The visitors welcome pavilion is on BueLingo Boulevard, one mile south of I-70 at exit 202, then 1.2 miles west on Muskrat Road. For more tour information, rope onto Website www.texaslonghorn.com, then advance to "DCCI Public Tours" or call (740) 758-5050 or fax (740) 758-5114 for reservations.

"Gibralter," 8-years-old, measures 88-inches tip to tip. He is one of the longhorns at Dickinson Cattle Company.

NFU: Ag Budget Agreement Short On Funds To Meet Needs Of Farmers For 2001

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Farmers Union (NFU) recently said that it is pleased that House and Senate conferees agreed to provide more funding for agriculture programs for 2002 to 2011. However, the family farmer-and-rancher organization expressed major concern that the additional $5.5 billion for 2001 is not enough to address the real problems in rural America of low commodity prices and skyrocketing energy costs. The proposed funding is far short of the $9 billion that farm groups had identified as necessary.

"We are pleased that policy makers recognize the need for additional funding," said Leland Swenson, president of NFU. "We are, however, disappointed that emergency funding in this agreement is little more than half of the previous commitment when todays problems facing farmers and ranchers are worse."

Farmers Union, along with over 20 other agriculture organizations, had identified $9 billion as the minimum level needed to address this years needs in agriculture. Farmers and ranchers face commodity prices that remain low for the fourth consecutive year and now face estimated increases of over $2 billion for costs such as those for fuel and fertilizer, as well as those associated with running irrigation systems, drying facilities and milking facilities.

"Congress, with the proposed budget guideline, will have a difficult time addressing the numerous challenges we face in rural America," Swenson added. "Farmers Union will work aggressively with members of Congress to craft a farm bill that improves market prices for commodities, thus decreasing the need for direct government assistance. We need to make sure that, in addition to improved commodity prices, the farm bill also addresses the needs of rural development and conservation."

Angus Beef Record Service Provides Online Features

The Angus Beef Record Service (BRS), a program that allows commercial cattle producers to record and process production records, continues to expand its services. The latest feature of the program, BRS Online, allows BRS users to access their data via the Internet.

BRS members who submit their data can now view the results at HYPERLINK "http://www.angusbrs.com" www.angusbrs.com , after creating a member profile that includes identification information and a private password for logon.

Once members are online, they can view their herd history and breeding information as well as all past information processed through BRS. Sortable summary reports are also available. In the future, members will also be able to submit their data online.

"This is the first of many steps to make the Beef Record Service more accessible," says Bill Bowman, director of the commercial relations program.

BRS Online is available 24 hours a day, and allows the members ready access to their records. With these online capabilities, reports and summaries are available as soon as the data is processed.

The BRS program provides a tool for serious producers who wish to link the end product to the producing factory by identifying genetics that work in their operation.

By using individual animal identification, comprehensive report forms, and reports generated by the American Angus Association to evaluate and compare the data, cattle producers can characterize their commercial cowherds and have a higher quality, more marketable product for their customer.

There is no fee to enroll in BRS; however, a $2 per head fee is charged for each weaning weight submitted.

For more information about BRS, contact the American Angus Association's commercial relations department at (816) 383-5100 or log onto HYPERLINK "http://www.angusbrs.com" www.angusbrs.com .

Brillion

Sure Stand Grass Seeders

THE ERGONOMICS OF USING A BRILLION "SURE STAND" SEEDER

Grass seed is a very expensive commodity. By properly placing the grass seed in the top 1/2" of a properly prepared seedbed you will realize maximum seed germination.

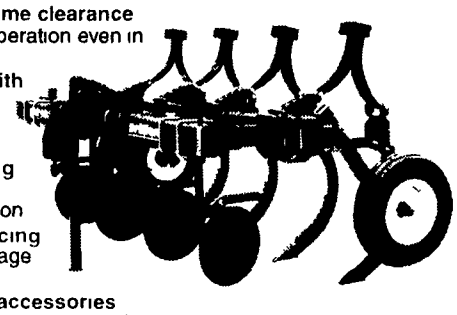
Because of Brillion's precision placement of the seeds, seeding rates can often be cut to nearly half of the rates previously used

In many cases the savings in seed alone will pay for a "Sure Stand" Seeder in just a short time.

Don't risk your crop to another system. Don't settle for less. Use the one seeding method that you can depend on to produce a top stand time after time . a Brillion Sure Stand Seeder.

Compaction Commander

- A full 39" of under-frame clearance assures trouble-free operation even in heavy residue
- Auto-reset shanks with 20" of trip height allows for non-stop tillage
- 20" maximum working depth to easily rip out hardpan and compaction
- Unlimited shank spacing to allow a variety of tillage functions
- Optional points and accessories allow controlled soil disturbance and distribution of surface residue



Pulvi-Mulchers

THE IDEAL ONE-PASS SECONDARY TILLAGE TOOL TO PROVIDE THE PERFECT CLOD-FREE SEEDBED FOR HIGHER YIELDS.

- Available in widths from 7'4" to 30' to accommodate any size operation
- High-clearance frame allows free flow of trash through the machine
- Choice of 20" notched or crowfoot ductile iron roller wheels with five year limited warranty against breakage
- Heavier duty, longer drawbar to accommodate dual wheeled tractors

Agricultural Planting, Farm Numbers And Land In Farms To Be Surveyed In June

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Variable conditions have been prevalent throughout most of Pennsylvania for early spring. Have these weather conditions changed producers' ability to meet their March 2001 intentions?

As of March 1, 2001, Pennsylvania producers intended to plant 1,550,000 acres of corn, the same as 2000. Pennsylvania hay producers indicated a 50,000 acre increase on March 1, 2001 to 1,850,000 acres. Spring plowing, barley headed and oats planted are some field progress and developmental stages that are over 10 percentage points behind the five-year average for the week ending April 29, 2001.

To gather the most accurate information about the 2001 crop acreages, USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) will be asking farmers about their crops in the June Agricultural Survey. The major commodities that the survey measures are small grains, corn, hay, soybeans, tobacco, potatoes, grain stocks, hogs, cattle and sheep. In addition, this survey helps to establish official statistics for the number of farms, land in farms, land values and cash rents.

This annual USDA survey is done nationwide. It's important that Pennsylvania producers participate in the June Agricultural Survey so that our region is properly represented. Nationwide, the crop estimates also provide producers with vital information about crop supplies, as well as market movements and trends.

Approximately 1,400 Pennsylvania farmers are being asked to participate in this voluntary study. Field enumerators will visit randomly selected areas throughout the Commonwealth and do a face-to-face interview from late May through mid June. Our enumerators will ask you to assist them with outlining tract and field boundaries on an aerial photo.

The national survey results will be available in the Acreage report on June 29 at 8:30 a.m. On July 11 at 8:30 a.m., the Crop Production report will be released for Potatoes. February 12, 2002 is the Farms and Land in Farms release date.

The Keystone Ag Digest is available on the Internet, but copies are also mailed to survey participants upon request. Internet reports can be accessed at www.nass.usda.gov/pa.

University Of Delaware To Conduct Crop Management Session

NEW CASTLE, Del. — Join your fellow farmers and extension staff for an interactive, hands-on experience as we discuss various issues dealing with wheat, barley, corn, soybeans, and nutrient management.

In addition to a walk-through evaluation of wheat and barley varieties, there will be an opportunity to answer questions and discuss specific demonstrations and current issues related to disease, insect, and weed control in all four crops. An extension nutrient management specialist will address nutrient management certification and the use of the Pre-Sidedress Nitrogen Test (PSNT). The session will end with a dessert treat and continued discussion on related issues.

The Delaware Department of Agriculture will award one (1) private applicator re-certification credit in the Agricultural Plant category.

The crop management session will be held on Wed., May 23, from 6 p.m. to approximately dusk. The site is the University of Delaware Research and Demonstration Area, three-quarters of a mile east of Armstrong Corner on Marl Pit Road (Road 429), Middletown. There is no cost to participate.

For more information, directions, or to request special access services, please call the New Castle County Cooperative Extension office at (302) 831-2506.

Cornman To Join American Veal Association, Pennsylvania Beef Council Team

MIDDLETOWN, Pa (May 3, 2001) — Michelle Cornman, Carlisle, will join the American Veal Association and the PA Beef Council as the Director of Veal Programs and Veal Quality Assurance at the end of May.

With her position, Cornman will direct Pennsylvania Beef Council veal programs such as Veal 101 and consumer marketing promotions. In addition, she also will coordinate the American Veal Association contract services and the National Veal Quality Assurance Program.

A May 2001 agriculture business management graduate of Penn State, University Park, Cornman previously interned with CNH Global Inc., New Holland Division.

At CNH Global she assisted in designing training materials for sales representatives and service personnel. She also tracked market industry forecasts and developed market and field outlook reports for the company.

In addition to her internship experience, Cornman also was active in several college organizations. She led the Penn State National Agri-Marketing Association to second place finish in national competition in 1999 and was a member of the Alpha Zeta Fraternity, Dairy Science Club and the Penn State Collegiate Livestock Judging Team.

York County FSA Accepting 2001 Crop Acreage Reports

YORK (York Co.) — The York County Farm Service Agency (FSA) is currently accepting 2001 crop acreage reports. The 1996 Farm Bill removed the acreage report requirement in most cases for county farmers to remain eligible for USDA benefits. However, the commodity loan program and loan deficiency payment program still requires timely filed acreage reports by those who wish to pledge stored commodities as collateral for these nine-month loans or receive LDP payments.

Producers interested in reporting must visit the county office, review aerial photographs and indicate the location of their crops. The office is located at 120 Pleasant Acres Road in York and is open Monday through Friday 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

Appointments are encouraged and farmer's may call ahead to have the aerial photos mailed to mark at home. This will significantly reduce time spent in the office. Final certification date is July 16 for corn, soybeans, fruit and vegetables.

The Reigels credit their grandfather for "giving them their start" in farming, with advice and free labor.

After graduation from Annville Cleona High School where he was president of the FFA, Jeff began by farming his grandfather's place which was about 30 acres. Jeff farmed with his father and then went out on his own the next year. He began growing soybeans in 1979.

Steve, who was the vice president of his FFA club, joined his brother in farming a few years later.

The two brothers have expanded their farming partnership to about 200 acres. They own 43 acres in partnership and rent 167 acres on which they plant 80 acres of soybeans, 60 acres of corn, and 40 acres of wheat. The also have about 60 acres in pasture that accommodates their purebred herd of Herefords, now numbering 17 cows and 23 calves. Rounding out the Reigel farm enterprises is a 34,000-bird broiler operation.

The soybeans were grown for a cash crop, not for livestock feed as many dairymen are now doing. The crop will be sold this summer. They are in storage "for hitting August highs," said Jeff.

Expansion in their farming operation is definitely on the agenda for the Reigel brothers. "We would grow more of everything if we had the ground," Jeff said. "We're looking for the opportunity to expand, but we're competing with developers just like everybody else."

Not only do they work the soil in farming, but the Reigels spend a lot of time in the dirt with the family's excavating business, P and N Excavating. Their older brother Dwilan is company president and Steve is vice president. Their youngest brother Kent is in the trucking business.

When they are not too busy farming and excavating, hunting is a pastime of choice for both brothers. Jeff and his wife, in fact, just came back from a honeymoon trip to South Africa where they enjoyed a Safari. Beside hunting, Steve also takes snowmobiling trips during the winter months.

Soybeans have carried the "magic" label for years, but there is no crop that could be called more practical today than the magic beans. The mainstay market for soybeans has been cooking oils and livestock feed.

According to the ASA, tofu production alone utilizes 22 million bushels of specialty soybean production. They also report that soy ink is being used by one third of the nation's newspapers. That includes Lancaster Farming.

Accounting for the tremendous growth in soybean acreage and its future importance, the ASA lists other uses for soybeans such as soy-blended biodiesel, recyclable soy-based containers, building products, and a host of other uses being tested.

The Pennsylvania Soybean Yield Contest is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Soybean Association with soybean checkoff funds and conducted by John Yocum, Penn State extension agronomist and manager of the Southeast Regional Ag Research Farm in Landisville.

Yocum said that the growth of soybean acreage in Pennsylvania did not take away from corn. Farmers planted more soybeans instead of wheat and barley, he noted.

For more information about participating in the soybean contest, contact Yocum at P.O. Box 308, Landisville, PA 17538, (717) 653-4728.

Use In Agriculture

GIS may also be used as a tool to help determine areas with highest potential for erosion. Diane Waters, a bioscholar at Virginia Tech, was part of a team which grouped together to complete the "Kentland Farm Project."

Kentland Farm is a collection of fields owned by the university and used for research. Containing alfalfa, corn, and various pastures, the fields are also host to small wildlife areas. The goals of the project were to predict erosion rates and see what areas are susceptible to erosion. Further research would identify if there was any dominating factor to erosion.

Diane Waters

Pulling soil, field delineation, and contour line data from Website information, they calculated soil erosion by plugging in their numbers into an accepted formula.

For instance, besides Website information, they performed math calculations, got crop information from the farm manager, and measured the slope of the area.

Multiplying all factors together, the group calculated values for soil loss for each field. The corn fields were the highest area of erosion, not surprising since they are a row crop, said Waters.

"We cautiously concluded that the crop factor is the best predictor of the highest erosion," she said. Researchers measured soil loss in tons per acre per year based on slope, grass cover, support, type of soil, and rainfall amount.

A Useful Tool For Environmental Managment

Mapmaking applications include mapping and classifying the Chesapeake Bay watershed to provide solutions to government or Bay-related organizations working on restoration.

Researchers at the geography department at the University of Maryland, for example, mapped the impervious surfaces in the Bay watershed area to measure urbanization, one step in calculating the effect of development on the Bay.

Since increased runoff, erosion, flooding and decreased water quality are hallmarks of urbanization, mapping impervious surfaces is a useful tool.

In addition Towson University Center of GIS has posted, at Chesapeakebayfromsapce.net, a visual reminder or forest fragmentation, the degree or urban sprawl, and the large-scale land clearance on the Delmarva Peninsula.

Also in Maryland GIS provides an automated review process for agriculture preservation candidate's properties. GIS allows analysis of soil compatibility, land cover, and the conformity to preservations guidelines.

GIS is also used to protect bogs by identifying them quickly for construction and zoning decisions. Because of the system, zoning maps are available to the public. The tool is also used for officials to recalculate watershed boundaries with GIS information.

The Chespeake Bay was the focus of many GIS projects. River basins or urban sprawl could be mapped with GIS systems. Additionally stormwater runoff programs can be developed.

Mapping Green Cover

"Cities nationwide are losing their green cover," said Mike Lehman, direct of sales, CITYgreen software.

Lehman's organization, "American Forests," is a nonprofit organization based in Washington, D.C. By regionally analyzing tree cover, the organization can help cities determine, in dollars, what tree cover is worth.

The organization provides cities with statistical data on storm water runoff, energy benefits, and air pollution statistics with GIS used as a tool for analysis.

"It's a decision management tool," said Lehman. "Policymakers can then budget for tree conservation or replanting." Carbon absorption and energy savings are just a few of the benefits of trees, said Lehman.

Stephanie Orndorff, representative of Advanced Technology Solutions, Inc., presented her work in identifying trends in human population growth in proximity to ecologically significant areas.

Using GIS for the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Orndorff was able to plot census data and overlay the map with a map of species richness, where the greatest diversity of kinds of animals reside. Pike, Monroe, Carbon, York, Montgomery, and Berks counties placed highest in species richness.

Orndorff found, however, by overlaying the population map with the species richness map, that these areas were also rich in species diversity. Applications of the project, said Orndorff, was to identify areas of low population growth so the land could be acquired easily and cheaply for preservation.

Agribusiness Takes Lead In Updating Water Quality Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Walter N. Peechatka, executive vice president of PennAg Industries Association, recently told the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee that his 600 members recommend and support enhancement of the state's Nutrient Management Act (Act 6 of 1993) and its accompanying regulations.

"Pennsylvania was first in the nation when it adopted Act 6, which was applauded by the agricultural and environmental communities for its foresight in regulating manure application to crops and providing strict criteria for storage areas. Other states are just beginning to catch up," Peechatka testified. "Now, nearly a decade later, we are ready to raise the bar again with the primary goal of protecting water quality."

"How we proceed with this program will help shape the future of agriculture in Pennsylvania because it affects the keystone advanced farms and the thousands of farms which are supported by them," Peechatka said.

"Successful farms today often are more concentrated, are more diverse, use more advanced technology and must produce more per acre to compete — what we call advanced farming. But this trend does not have to come at the expense of our environment."

Act 6 and its regulations have numerous requirements based on farm livestock per acre (animal equivalency units). These include comprehensive nutrient management plans prepared by certified specialists and applicable clean stream, federal water quality and storm water management permits. In addition, there are public participation, erosion and sediment control plans, contingency plans, and manure storage facility design, location, construction and certification mandates.

Since 1992, higher yield farms have been required to emit "zero" discharge — none at all — under the federal Clean Water Act.

Dairy Farmers Learn

good right now, but unless dairy farmers 'lock in' these prices through their cooperative or the futures market, they're subject to marketplace whims."

Funded by the USDA and delivered by Penn State Cooperative Extension agents in 25 counties, DOPP will allow farmers to buy "put options" on the sale of their milk against a future date.

Purchasing a put option for a future month creates a guaranteed minimum "floor price" that a farmer will receive for a specified amount of milk at the time the option is due to expire, Bailey said.

For example, a farmer during the month of May who is concerned about the possibility of low milk prices in September could buy a put option contract that sets a floor price above what he expects the market price to be in September.

When September comes, if the market price of milk is indeed lower than the purchased floor price, the farmer will receive a check from his broker that makes up the difference between the market price he received from his milk buyer and the floor price set by his put option contract.

But what if the market price of milk when September comes is higher than the put option floor price?

That's when having a put option can seem like a win-win situation, Bailey said. Even if the market price of milk goes higher than the put option floor price, the farmer will still receive the higher market price for his milk.

"If the farmer is always guaranteed the higher price between his put option and the market price, what is the catch?" Bailey asked the group of farmers.

"The catch is that put options come with a price," Bailey said. The farmer must risk the premium he pays for the option.

The price of put options vary according to the futures market and the floor price sought, Bailey said. Locking in a higher floor price requires a larger premium

One feature of DOPP is that the USDA will pay 80 percent of the cost for each put option purchased by a dairy farmer enrolled in the program. The USDA will also pay $30 of the broker fees involved in each transaction.

Bailey said that this government cost-sharing makes the program a lot more affordable at this time while giving farmers an opportunity to learn how to use the futures market.

"Right now, options are expensive," he said. "Five years from now, they might be less so."

Ron Jones of the USDA's Risk Management Agency pointed out that the success of using put options will depend on current and future milk markets.

"It's not always going to be beneficial (to use put options)," he said.

According to Bailey, few farmers participated in the pilot program conducted in Tioga and Lebanon counties one year ago.

"Farmers could have locked in prices for the fall in June. Then the markets deteriorated and the Class III price fell to a 20-year low. Producers could have protected a lot of their income," he said.

Sam King, who milks 30 cows on 60 acres south of Georgetown, said that the program "sounds interesting" and that he would consider enrolling in it.

King said he was attending the four-hour training session to fulfill a requirement of the USDA's Farm Service Agency loan program.

Chester County extension agent and Southeast Region DOPP coordinator Tim Fritz said that an unofficial post-training session will be offered later in the year for farmers who want to learn more. Those who missed the official training session can also start to learn about DOPP in preparation for the 2002 program.

The training session conducted on May 3 was timely, Fritz said, given the relatively high price of milk and the uncertainty of the market in future months.

Eckstine Recognized For DHIA Service

MERCERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Robert Eckstine, Mercersburg, was recognized by the Franklin County Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) for his many years of leadership and service to the organization. Eckstine served on the board of directors for over 10 years, several of them acting as president.

Eckstine was also recognized for 20 years of service as a 4-H dairy club leader.

The DHIA plaque was presented at the Franklin County Holstein Club annual meeting. Accepting the award with Eckstine is his wife Rhodena.

Legislation Updating Pa. Fertilizer Regulations Passes House

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Legislation sponsored by Rep. Paul Semmel to update Pennsylvania's current regulations affecting fertilizers and other soil and plant additives recently passed the state House by a vote of 199 to 0.

Semmel explained that House Bill 437 is a complete re-codifying and standardizing of the state's statutes and regulations that bring them into line with U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) definitions and standards of uniformity.

"These standards have not been updated since 1956 when the Pennsylvania Fertilizer, Soil Conditioner and Plant Growth Substance Law was first enacted. Scientific and agricultural advances have had a dramatic influence on not only the fertilizer industry, but also on how our lawns, trees, shrubs, flowers, vegetables and farm fields are planted and maintained through the growing seasons," Semmel said.

"My legislation gives ordinary homeowners and farmers alike accurate information about the ingredients contained in both household and agricultural-strength fertilizers," Semmel said. "It provides a safety net and assures them they're getting what they paid for.

"Our farmers need to have complete confidence in what they purchase and how to use it when they are spending hundreds of hard-earned dollars for tons of fertilizer. House Bill 437 will give them that knowledge and assurance," he said.

The lawmaker added that it's also important to have fertilizer standards that conform to USDA parameters as a way of further protecting Pennsylvania residents that live near the state borders.

"Those living along the borders with New Jersey, New York, Maryland, West Virginia and Ohio often shop in our neighboring states," Semmel said. "By making our laws uniform with a national standard, these farmers and homeowners can be assured that the contents of one fertilizer product purchased in a bordering state is identical to the same product sold in Pennsylvania.

The bill next goes to the state Senate for consideration.

Over 150 People Attend West Snyder FFA Awards Banquet

BEAVER SPRINGS (Snyder Co.) — More than 150 members and guests gathered for the West Snyder FFA Chapter annual Awards Banquet on Thurs., May 3. A turkey dinner was served in the high school cafeteria followed by an awards presentation in the auditorium.

Heidi Good, a West Snyder graduate and the PA FFA Association North Central Regional vice president, served as the keynote speaker for the evening. Heidi congratulated the members of the chapter on their honors and shared stories about the dedication and work ethic of FFA members.

Throughout the evening, there were many awards received by FFA members. The Star Greenhand award was given to Amanda Shaffer. Amanda has been active in dairy judging and chapter procedure career development events, attended several leadership conferences, and has dairy herd, sheep finishing, on-farm employment, and Practicum skills as an SAE project.

The Star Chapter Farmer Award went to Hannah Etzler. Hannah has participated in the Livestock Judging CDE and attended the State Legislative Leadership Conference and FFA Activities Week. Hannah has sheep finishing and breeding, market hogs, and on and off-farm employment for an SAE project. Hannah will serve as a chapter vice president next year.

Tiffany Esbenshade earned the Star Agribusinessman award. Tiffany has both off and on-farm employment as well as Practicum skills as SAE projects. Tiffany will serve as the chapter secretary next year and is a member of the chapter procedure team.

Kenneth Boyer, high school principal, recognized Kate Heeter as the DeKalb Agriculture Accomplishment award winner and Jodi Fetterolf as recipient of the Agricultural Leadership award. Both Kate and Jodi have served on the Chapter Procedure Team, earned gold medals in the state prepared public speaking CDE, and were honored to serve as Second Year Scholars at the State Legislative Leadership Conference.

West Snyder FFA

In memory of Nevin Zerby, a supporter of the West Snyder and Pennsylvania FFA programs, the Nevin Zerby Memorial award was given to James Wright. James has selflessly devoted countless hours to the FFA Chicken Barbecue Committee and provided technical assistance for the FFA Chapter.

Zerby Livestock Farms presented Heather Hollenbach with the Zerby Livestock award. Heather has been active in Livestock Judging CDE's and has sheep finishing and breeding, swine finishing, and off-farm employment as her SAE projects.

Mrs. Shawn Frantz of Ag-Choice Farm Credit presented Amanda Shaffer with a plaque and $50 for having the top SAE record book in Snyder County.

Harold Kratzer, assistant superintendent of the Mid-West School District, presented the Keystone Degree Pins to the six West Snyder FFA Keystone Degree winners.

Dr. Arnold, superintendent of the Mid-West School District, awarded the FFA scholarship pins to Jodi Fetterolf, Kate Heeter, Heather Hollenbach, James Wright, Phaedra Wray, Lance Herman, Victoria Adams, Jenna Briggs, Tiffany Esbenshade, Derek Fetterolf, Andrew Kreamer, and Sheri Hood.

The Honorary Degree team presented the Honorary Degree to Mr. and Mrs. Lester McWilliams, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Fetterolf, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Herman, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Hollenbach, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Heeter, and Ms. Joy Young.

Chapter Proficiency awards were presented to: Lance Herman and Melissa McWilliams, Agricultural Communications; Chuck Kessler and Andrew Kreamer, Agricultural Mechanics Technical Systems; James Wright and Phaedra Wray, Agricultural Sales and Service; Brad Novinger, Agricultural Services; Brandon Herman and Kate Heeter, Beef Production.

Also, Spencer Etzler and Jessica Harper, Creed Speaking; Amanda Shaffer and Melissa McWilliams, Dairy Production; Heather Hollenbach and Hannah Etzler, Diversified Livestock; Heather Hollenbach and Doug Hollenbach, Environmental Science; Kate Heeter, Extemporaneous Public Speaking.

Also, Mike Sheaffer, Feed Grain Production; Sheri Hood, Floriculture; Derek Fetterolf, Forestry Management; Jenna Briggs, Home and Community Development; James Wright, Poultry Production; Phaedra Wray, Prepared Public Speaking; Heather Hollenbach and Hannah Etzler, Sheep; and Jodi Fetterolf and Laura Knepp, Swine Production.

Trans-World Genetics Ltd. Receives First Madigan Award

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Trans-World Genetics Ltd., Sheboygan Falls, Wis., has been selected as the recipient of the first Edward R. Madigan U.S. Agricultural Export Excellence Award.

Louis A. Prange, chief executive officer and founder of Trans-World Genetics, was presented the award on behalf of the company for its entrepreneurial efforts in foreign markets by USDA Secretary Ann M. Veneman.

"As one of the main architects of the 1985 and 1990 farm bills and later as secretary, Edward Madigan was a visionary in recognizing that vigorous export growth is vital to the prosperity of rural communities across America," Veneman said. "It's a measure of the deep and wide respect in which Ed Madigan is held by his former colleagues in the Congress that an award bearing his name was established as part of the 1996 Farm Bill.

"Trans-World Genetics epitomizes the ingenuity and entrepreneurship of America's small businesses," said Veneman. "From its founding in 1974 as a shipper of live cattle, it has met the technological challenges of a changing marketplace and evolved into a provider of advanced livestock genetics products and services. The company has developed a strong presence in more than 20 countries, and records annual export sales of between $2 and $3 million annually."

The award, named in honor of the late Edward R. Madigan, U.S. secretary of agriculture from March 1991 to January 1993, is presented for development of new products or services for agricultural export markets, development of new agricultural export markets, and creative marketing of products or services in agricultural export markets. Trans World was selected as the inaugural recipient in December 2000 by the Edward R. Madigan Agricultural Export Excellence Award board of evaluators, made up of members representing a broad spectrum of agricultural interests.

Gypsy Moth Larvae Emerging

WOOSTER, Ohio — Gypsy moth larvae are beginning to emerge from egg masses throughout the state, and egg hatch will continue for the next couple of weeks, said Dan Herms, Ohio State University entomologist.

Larvae will hatch from egg masses over the next three weeks, then climb into the canopy of host trees and spend the next two months feeding on the leaves. "Mid-to-late June is when 80-90 percent of defoliation will occur," he said. "One caterpillar will eat 25-30 leaves in its lifetime. Generally, if you find one caterpillar per 25 leaves, there's the potential for 100 percent defoliation."

During early and mid-May, the Ohio Department of Agriculture will take steps to help slow the spread of gypsy moth outbreaks in Ohio by making aerial applications of a biological pesticide derived from the naturally occurring bacterium Bacillus thuringiensis, commonly known as Bt. Gypsy moth larvae are most susceptible to Bt when they are small, so applications will be made to susceptible trees in urban and forested areas of Ohio before damage becomes evident.

The gypsy moth, an invasive insect accidentally introduced to the United States from Europe in 1869, has spread to Ohio in recent years from Pennsylvania and Michigan. It feeds on more than 100 species of deciduous and evergreen trees, leaving them defoliated and susceptible to other stresses and diseases. Several years of defoliation will eventually kill a tree.

Oak trees are the insect's favorite host. Last year more than 20,000 acres of Ohio trees were damaged by the gypsy moth, and state agriculture and forestry officials fear this year's outbreaks could be more severe as the insect continues to spread through the prime oak forests that dominate much of eastern and southern Ohio.

A gypsy moth caterpillar is easy to recognize by the five blue dots and six red dots on its hair-covered back. After feeding in early spring, it pupates in late June or early July, and the adult moth emerges about 10 days later. The female moth, which cannot fly, lays its egg mass on any object it comes across, such as rocks, houses, recreational vehicles, trees or car tires. "That's how the moth can spread rapidly from one place to another," said Herms. "It's important to check your equipment and cars, if you going camping, for example, and destroy any egg masses you find."

Natural predators, such as birds and mice, have been found to have some impact on controlling the gypsy moth, but only in low populations. Entomophaga maimaiga, a natural fungal disease of the gypsy moth, substantially decreased gypsy moth defoliation in northeast Ohio in 2000. But its effectiveness is highly dependent on environmental conditions. The fungus, which affects the caterpillar stage of development, is easy to distribute and spreads rapidly under favorable conditions. But it is only effective during wet conditions in the spring.

During gypsy moth outbreaks, the most effective means of preventing defoliation during outbreaks is to apply insecticides. Bt is the most environmentally friendly because it affects only caterpillars and is harmless to humans, pets and birds. But even Bt has met controversy because of toxic effects on native butterflies and moths.

"Bt can be very effective, especially if it's timed correctly," said Herms. "Studies have shown that Bt has very little impact on non-target organisms. It has less of an impact than other insecticides that would affect a much broader range of insects." Dimilin, a growth-regulating insecticide that interferes with exoskeleton formation during the molting process, is also used in the state gypsy moth suppression program, but to a lesser degree because it affects a wide range of immature insects and remains in the environment much longer than Bt. Single property owners or groups of property owners with at least a 50-acre block of trees can apply to the department each year in September to have their property included in the state suppression program the following year. There is currently no charge to the property owner for participation in the program. Homeowners can also contract with private applicators to have trees sprayed from the ground or the air, depending on the number and area of infested trees. For more information on the gypsy moth, log on to www.state.oh.us/a gr/Index.htm or www.hcs.ohio-state.edu/ODNR/Health/Health.htm.

Grange Pushing For High Speed Internet Access In Rural Areas

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In a letter writing campaign to Congress and the Federal Communications Commission, the National Grange is pushing legislators and regulators to make high speed internet access a reality in rural America.

The Congressional letter asks for support of the Internet Freedom and Broadband Development Act of 2001, H.R. 1542, which creates incentives for private businesses, government agencies and private citizens to deploy advanced internet technologies in rural areas.

The FCC letter asks Chairman Michael Powell to reallocate existing communication satellite licenses to applicants whose business plans include providing affordable high speed internet access to rural areas via direct satellite links.

The root of the problem, explains National Grange Legislative Director Leroy Watson, is a lack of sufficient internet technology deployed to serve the needs of rural areas. According to a report published last year jointly by the Departments of Agriculture and Commerce, fewer than five percent of towns with a population of 10,000 or less had access to high speed internet service. Fewer than one percent of towns with populations of 2,500 or less had access to high speed internet service. Both Grange letters urge immediate adoption of new legislation and regulations that encourage greater investment in high speed internet technology to serve rural communities.

Watson criticizes the FCC for not "aggressively exercising its authority to assure that satellites are in place in all the orbital license locations that it has jurisdiction over." He feels the FCC has given the existing licensees too much leeway and time to put satellites in service. The licensees have not done so, because they have been pursuing more lucrative satellite television broadcast services. The appropriate response from the FCC to this inaction, Watson argues, should be to reassign those licenses to other private companies that have made a commitment to put communications satellites in orbit in order to provide high speed internet services to rural communities. "Rural America cannot afford the luxury of a regulatory decision making process that moves at a tractor's pace in the speed-of-light internet age," Watson proclaims in the letter.

New Website Provides Dairy Checkoff Information

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East recently launched its official dairy farmer Website designed to help dairy farmers and promoters stay up-to-date on their dairy checkoff promotion program.

The site, found at www.adadc-mideast.com, provides information about national and local dairy promotion activities. In the "About ADADC Mid East" section, dairy farmers can learn about their board of trustees, find answers to frequently asked questions, or obtain background information about the checkoff program.

Visiting the "Checkoff Program Highlights" section offers farmers an overview of dairy promotions efforts in areas such as milk, cheese, export and nutrition marketing. Visitors are encouraged to browse this site for frequent program updates.

Included in the "Useful Resources" section are dairy promotion tips and downloadable promotion resources such as coloring sheets, word finds and games. Dairy farmers in the ADADC Mid East region can also order promotion materials by simply filling out the online order form.

Links to other useful Websites and a calendar of upcoming dairy promotions/dairy-related events are also included in this site.

ADADC Mid East is the local planning and management organization responsible for increasing demand for U.S.-produced dairy products on behalf of America's dairy farmers. ADADC Mid East works closely with Dairy Management, Inc.™, the national dairy promotion organization, to implement dairy promotion, education and research programs nationwide. The dairy farmer checkoff program funds both organizations.

Since the program began in 1984, dairy promotion programs have helped sell more then 225 billion pounds of total milk above the amount projected by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Scouting Is Best Defense Against Potato Leafhoppers In Alfalfa

DES MOINES, Iowa — Potato leafhopper infestation levels in alfalfa fields can vary from year to year. What makes this pest so dangerous is that early symptoms are very subtle and can easily be missed. But producers have a good defense against this costly pest by scouting fields for potato leafhopper activity.

"Potato leafhoppers damage alfalfa plants, reduce yield, lower forage quality and sometimes reduce stand persistence," said Carl Bannon, technical information manager for Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., in Mt. Joy, Pa. "Economic losses from severe leafhopper infestations can reach up to $50 per acre per cutting or one ton or more per acre a year. Also, potato leafhopper damage can stunt the plants and make them less competitive, allowing weed infestations into the stand. By the time producers see the first signs of damage, which is V-shaped yellowing of the leaves, it's too late to recapture lost yield or quality."

Each year, potato leafhopper frequently causes damage to alfalfa fields from the midwest through the east.

Scouting alfalfa fields with a sweep net is the only effective method of monitoring leafhopper activity. Bannon recommends scouting weekly beginning in late May or early June.

Fields should be scouted at least two to three times before the first cutting. After cutting, once re-growth reaches two- to three-inches, Bannon recommends scouting again for at least three consecutive weeks. New stands of alfalfa are more sensitive to potato leafhopper damage and should have the highest priority for scouting.

Most damage takes place on second and third cuttings after potato leafhopper populations have had a chance to increase. However, new seedlings, which are especially susceptible to leafhoppers because of underdeveloped root systems, may require earlier and more frequent inspection.

To measure leafhopper activity, Bannon says to make 10 sets of sweeps (10 sweeps per set) from different areas of the field. Make sweeps while walking through an area by moving the net from side to side in a sweeping motion through the foliage. Count both adult and nymph leafhoppers. After each set of sweeps, measure the height of at least two stems in each area. Economic thresholds follow.

If leafhopper numbers are at or above threshold levels, the pest can be managed by cutting immediately, provided the crop is close to the normal harvest time. If threshold levels are present, but the alfalfa isn't ready to harvest, Bannon recommends producers consider applying an insecticide. "A timely treatment will prevent a yield and quality loss, but early detection is essential."

He adds, "If infestations are allowed to continue, yield and quality losses begin to occur. Producers can see significant reductions in crude protein from heavy infestations. Leafhopper damage makes it harder for the alfalfa plant to survive the winter and can reduce the overall life of the stand."

Potato leafhoppers thrive in dry weather and when temperatures are between 70 to 90 degrees Fahrenheit.

Growers can also choose to plant alfalfa varieties with resistance to potato leafhopper as another effective way to reduce forage losses to this pest. Research at Iowa State University indicates that in established stands, leafhopper resistant alfalfa varieties may be able to tolerate three to five times higher threshold levels than conventional varieties.

"Overall, solid management and early detection is key to keeping leafhoppers in check and growing quality alfalfa," says Bannon. "While newer varieties with leafhopper resistance offer improved resistance and yield potential, each grower should assess his or her operation to determine the best approach."

National Conference, Show Draws Highlanders To Harrisburg

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co) — Whether they are red, silver, dun, black, a wooly calf or a long-haired adult, Scottish Highland cattle attract attention.

Recently Harrisburg hosted the American Highland Cattle Association's (AHCA) annual national convention featuring the unique breed. Special activities included a show, performance-tested bull and select heifer sale, and educational workshops.

In addition the American Highland Breeder's Association, a national organization headquartered in Denver, Colorado, conducted a meeting during the conference.

Events included seminars addressing performance data, a carcass competition, and farm tour. The Mid-Atlantic Highland Association (MAHA) Spring Classic show, with approximately 125 animals entered, was conducted at the Farm Show complex.

Participating producers came from Ontario, Connecticut, Minnesota, New York, Virginia, Nebraska, Michigan, Tennessee, and Ohio. A bull and select heifer sale followed the show.

The bull test included a 140-day feed test, breeding soundness exam, and collection of performance and ultrasound data. Out of the 25 bulls on test, 19 were slated to be sold at the sale.

Shows Conducted Around The U.S.

Larry Wentz, East Greenville, owns 55 Scottish Highland cattle and took three animals to the show. Wentz has attended numerous Highland shows, including taking a trip to Bozeman, Montana last year.

He is planning to go to the conference in Washington state next year. He has shown cattle for the last 4-5 years in Syracuse, New York; Louisville, Kentucky; and Cambridge, Ohio, besides attending a show in Denver, Colorado.

"The animals are unique, hardy, docile, and fun to work with," said Wentz. "They produce some of the best meat you can buy. Also, I wanted easy calving cattle."

Herd expansion "just seemed to happen" to Wentz, who had only three head of Scottish Highland cattle five years ago. "I just keep buying more," he said.

Wentz also sells the cattle as freezer beef and breeding stock. Because of the breed's double hair coat, back fat is less than other conventional breeds.

"Color is sort of predictable but the calves can be one of three or four colors," said Highland owner Judy Ligo, Grove City. Ligo and her husband, John, are dairy producers and also own 40 head of Scottish Highland cattle.

According to Ligo, the cattle can be silver, or "white with black trim," (black noses and feet) said Ligo, a deep dark red to a very light red to yellow. Others are dun, a gray color, black, or even white.

"The traditionalists prefer red since most of them are red," she said. "Hobbyists like variety. We happen to have a variety, which is kind of fun. My mother (Jan Harding), calls them the 'jelly bean herd.'"

They have found the best market to be families with 5-10 acres looking for pets, according to Ligo. "We work hard with the calves as far as halter-breaking them, combing them, and getting them used to people. The calves will follow us around easily. They loved to be combed."

Shat Acres Farm

Ray Shatney, Greenboro, Vermont, exhibited four Scottish Highland cattle at the show. His family, which now owns 40 head, began raising the cattle in 1967, one of the first operations in the Northeast to own a herd.

"One of our original cows was a cow from the Dakotas," he said. Since the animals were rela-

Larry Wentz, East Greenville, combs out "Jitterbug," a 13-month-old Highland heifer. "It usually takes two to three hours to get them ready for show after they are clean," said Wentz.

USDA Names AMS Deputy Administrator

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) has announced the selection of Barbara C. Robinson as the new deputy administrator of the AMS Transportation and Marketing Program.

Robinson began her career with USDA in 1980, working in domestic and international policy areas at the Economics Research Service (ERS). She went on to become the assistant director of the National Economics Division of ERS.

In 1989, Robinson began a year with the White House Council of Economic Advisors. From 1991 until leaving ERS in 1992, she served as economics editor of Agricultural Outlook magazine.

In 1992, Robinson moved to AMS as the deputy associate administrator, where she worked to help oversee program management and direct marketing services. During this time, she also served as executive director for the USDA Advisory Committee on Agricultural Concentration.

Robinson received a master's degree in agricultural economics from Clemson University and a doctorate in agricultural economics from the University of Maryland.

Lehigh Conservation Farm Adapts To Challenging Terrain

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW TRIPOLI (Lehigh Co.) — Dennis and Carol Dorney used to raise corn and soybeans on the hills of their Lehigh County farm. Over time, the deer damage got so severe that they decided to switch entirely to crops of alfalfa, grass, and rye.

"The deer pretty much ran us out of the corn business," Dennis said.

The alfalfa and grass-based style of farming, however, has proven to be compatible with the practice of soil conservation on the steeply-sloping fields of the Dorneys' Church Hill farm and the adjoining farm of Dennis' mother, located about eight miles southeast of the Blue Mountain.

The Dorneys received the 2000 Conservation Farmer of the Year Award for Lehigh County. The award was presented by the Lehigh County Conservation District in recognition of the Dorneys' efforts to "implement and maintain soil conservation practices on their farm."

The Dorneys began in 1984 farming the shaley-loam fields that Dennis said have a slope of anywhere from 3 to about 25 percent.

"Our land is very challenging," Dorney said. "It doesn't lend itself very well to crop production."

The Dorneys raise a total of about 125 acres of alfalfa, orchardgrass, and timothy. The hay is harvested by wrapping it in plastic in round bales at about 50 percent moisture. A portion of this baled haylage is used for feed in their own beef operation, consisting of about 15 brood cows and their offspring, which are fed from start to finish on the farm.

The Dorneys also sell hay both privately through a customer base and at public auctions. The market is weak for wrapped bales at the auction, Dorney said, mainly because bale-wrapping is a fairly recent innovation which makes buyers unsure of the product. At this point, Dorney said he is satisfied to sell his hay for half the price of conventional hay (about 15 percent moisture) — even though the difference in moisture between his hay and conventional hay is less than 50 percent.

Dorney said conditions don't always allow him to make four cuttings of alfalfa — but that's not all bad.

"I find the fields last longer if you don't push them," he said.

Rye is also grown as a source of bedding for the cattle, producing high-quality straw as well as requiring relatively low input to grow, Dorney said.

The Dorneys have implemented various soil and water conservation practices on the farm, several of them as part of cost-share programs offered by the National Soil Conservation Service (NSCS) and the Farm Service Agency. These projects included the construction of fences along streams to prevent access to cattle, a spring-waterer that collects water from a tiled slope, and an open-air manure storage facility.

The manure storage facility, basically a pole barn with a pressure-treated, tongue-and-groove wall about 4 feet high on three sides, was built in 1995 by Dorney and his son Duane, following blueprints provided by the NSCS. The structure provides a stable, aerated site for manure to be piled.

Exposure to air allows the manure to dry out considerably, leaving less water to haul to the field. Dorney said that he also turns the pile with a loader tractor from time to time.to aerate and encourage composting of the manure.

The spring-watering trough was built so that cattle would not have to go to the stream to drink. The water level in the trough is maintained by a gravity-fed tile system that drains a sloping pasture above it.

High tensile fencing along waterways provides further insurance against erosion and pollution of streams by cattle.

The Dorneys pasture about 20 acres divided into four paddocks. Dennis said it's his goal to double the number of paddocks by providing more waterers to the cattle. He plans to install a well with a solar-powered pump and storage tank at the top of the pasture hill to supply each paddock with a waterer so the cattle will be more apt to graze the whole area.

At this point, the grazing range for the cattle is limited because "it's hard to get them to go farther than they have to," Dorney said.

Pa. Holstein Hires Sales Director

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Holstein Association recently hired David J. Lentz, New Bloomfield, as sales director. Lentz begins with the association May 15.

Lentz brings a wealth of experience to the association, having worked for the past seven years as a regional representative for Holstein USA. While at Holstein USA, he worked both in the southeast region and in Pennsylvania in cattle marketing, identification work, and member relations.

Lentz is an active Penn State alumni. He is president of the Penn State Dairymen's Club and is a member of the Ag Advocate Alumni group.

Lentz was an active 4-H, FFA, and Junior Holstein member. He received the Pennsylvania and National Distinguished Junior Member Award for his outstanding work and achievements.

Lentz will be handling domestic marketing, private treaty sales, herd dispersals, and consignment sales for the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

He can be reached at (814) 234-0364, (717) 582-7560, or by e-mail at pha@vicon.net.

Agriterrorism Bill Passes Senate

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The state Senate has approved legislation that would combat agriterrorism, or the deliberate infection of farm animals with contagious diseases such as foot-and-mouth, according to state Sen. Noah Wenger (R-36), the bill's prime sponsor.

Senate Bill 816, which now goes to the House of Representatives for consideration, is "moving quickly through the Legislature, indicating how important these protections are for farmers," Wenger noted. The bill was introduced April 24.

The measure was developed in response to the recent outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease and the spread of mad cow disease in Europe — both of which have had a crushing impact on European consumer confidence in animal products.

"Foot-and-mouth disease has wreaked havoc with the European economy, and England, in particular, continues to struggle with the disposal of animals," Wenger said. "Should someone ever intentionally infect animals in Pennsylvania, where agriculture is the number one industry, the effect would be similarly devastating. We need to take this potential threat seriously."

S.B. 816 would establish penalties for the deliberate spread of virulent pathogens such as those that cause foot-and-mouth disease and bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE), commonly known as mad cow disease. Along with facing criminal penalties, violators would be required to pay farmers restitution for losses related to the destruction of livestock, soil testing, and cleanup.

Wenger noted that Pennsylvania farms house $1.54 billion worth of cattle, hogs, and sheep, and $634 million worth of poultry.

"Because we rely upon agriculture as a mainstay of our economy, this issue is of tremendous importance to Pennsylvania," Wenger said. "I will encourage House members to act quickly on this bill, just as the Senate has."

Foot And Mouth Meetings Scheduled In Northeastern Pa.

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension will be holding meetings on foreign animal diseases, including foot and mouth disease May 22, at two locations in northeastern Pennsylvania: the NIER Building in Mayfield, Lackawanna County from 1 p.m.-3 p.m. and the West End Fire Hall in Brodheadsville, Monroe County from 7 p.m.-9 p.m.

Topics include: "What the Devil are Foreign Animal Diseases," "Foot and Mouth Disease and the British Mess," "Mad Cows, BSE, and Sheep in Vermont," and "Travel Plan Do's and Don'ts." Dr. Dave Wolfgang, PSU extension veterinarian and Dr. Lawrence Hutchinson, PSU veterinary science extension coordinator, will be on hand to present the information and answer questions.

Advanced registration is not required. For further information on the meeting, contact extension agents Dwane Miller (570) 421-6430 or David Messersmith (570) 253-5970, ext. 239.

Highlanders To Harrisburg

tively obscure, "we started buying everywhere we could buy them."

Shatney has seen great improvement in the last few years in the quality of Highland cattle, which he attributes to a focus on genetics and proper feeding and care. "People are realizing that the animals need more than scrub pasture," he said.

Shatney's animals have the roaming rights of 150 acres of pasture and woods.

"They'll find the coolest place in the woods," he said. My cattle have never been inside of a barn. They just wouldn't want a barn. All they need is a the windbreak of trees and bushes."

Although the double layer of hair makes the cattle well adapted to cold climates, the breed also can reside, and perform, in states such as Virginia and Florida, to name two. "We've even sold cattle to Australia," said Shatney.

Joyce Harman, Flint Hill, Virginia, acquired her penchant for the breed from Scotland itself. "I lived in Scotland for three months and walked past a field every day to work. I decided I was going to have some."

Last year Harman took advantage of an opportunity to buy several animals.

Now the owner of 12 head of the cattle, Harman is participating in her first year in the show ring.

20 Years Of Experience

Hugh Wilson, Sunbury, is a 20-year veteran showman of Scottish Highland cattle. He also serves as a judge for Highland shows.

With 33 cattle at home, Wilson brought seven to MAHA's Spring Classic show. He has owned Highland cattle since 1973.

A Vermont resident at the time, Wilson "needed an animal that could stand up to the predation of coyotes, take the tough climates of Vermont. I was also interested because of my own Scottish heritage," said Wilson.

He has found that the animals filled the bill. "They produce very good beef," he said. "The ribeyes are way above acceptable, and they are easy calving animals. Also they have a large scrotal circumference, which has been found to be related to pelvic diameter in a female.

"They don't give the appearance of weight but they're actually very big.," he said, noting that a 1,100-pound animal will yield a 550-pound carcass and grade medium Choice.

"All they really need is shade and water in the summer," he said.

The cattle can be silver, yellow, or the more traditional deep dark to very light red. Others are dun, a gray color, black, or even white.

Judy Ligo and her husband John, Grove City, own 40 head of Highlanders. "We work hard with the calves as far as halter-breaking them, combing them, and getting them used to people. The calves will follow us around easily. The loved to be combed," she said.

Milk Promotion Group Partners With Area Sports Teams

PHILADELPHIA — In a move to increase milk demand, the American Dairy Association/Dairy Council (ADA/DC) Middle Atlantic is continuing its sponsorship of several area sports teams.

For more then 20 years, ADA/DC Middle Atlantic has partnered with various teams to promote milk and dairy products.

"Professional and minor league sports offer us a great way to reach thousands of consumers," said Patricia Purcell, ADA/DC Middle Atlantic's director of advertising and retail programs. "Over the years, we have worked with several Mid-Atlantic teams, from baseball to basketball."

This year, ADA/DC has worked with four different professional teams from Harrisburg, Baltimore and Philadelphia. Indoor soccer fans got a dose of milk while attending Baltimore Blast and Harrisburg Heat games this winter. The "got milk?" logo was displayed in the team's arenas on scoreboard messages, banners and dasher boards.

In Philadelphia, Phantoms minor league hockey defense player Francis Lessard and Philadelphia 76ers basketball forward George Lynch donned their own milk mustaches on growth posters. The posters were handed out to the first 5,000 kids aged 14 and under attending the March 11 Phantoms game and the March 16 76ers game.

In an effort to reach more female sports fans, ADA/DC has signed on with the Philadelphia Charge women's soccer team. The Philadelphia Charge is a member of the Women's United Soccer Association (WUSA), the first professional women's soccer league in the United States. The Charge will play 10 home games at Villanova Stadium near Philadelphia during the 2001 season beginning this month.

"We are excited to be a sponsor of the Philadelphia Charge," Purcell said. "Soccer is a popular sport among both girls and boys. Through our affiliation with the Charge, we have the potential to reach thousands of kids and their parents with our 'got milk?' message."

Milk will be in the limelight on June 3 as the Charge takes on World Cup player Mia Hamm and the Washington Freedom. Young fans attending the game will receive a "got milk?" growth poster featuring a Charge player. And "got milk?" signs will be displayed prominently throughout the stadium.

According to Purcell, milk and sports are ideal teammates.

"Sports highlight the importance of exercising and staying fit," she said.

"Milk, with all of its health benefits, is the perfect complement to this healthy lifestyle."

The American Dairy Association/Dairy Council Middle Atlantic is a regional milk promotion organization funded by dairy farmers to increase product demand in the Middle Atlantic region through advertising, communications and nutrition education programs.

Envirothon To Provide Conservation Learning

SUNBURY (Northumberland Co.) — The Conservation Districts of Northumberland, Columbia, Montour, Snyder and Union counties are sponsoring the Central Susquehanna Valley Middle School Envirothon. The third annual middle school Envirothon will be conducted on Tuesday, May 15, at PPL Montour Preserve, Washingtonville. PPL Montour Preserve will provide lunch for the participants.

Teams from Shamokin, Danville, Warrior Run, Milton, Bloomsburg, Benton, Middleburg, Greenwood Christian, Bloomsburg Christian, St. Joseph's, West Snyder, West Snyder, St. Monica's, Central Columbia, and a home school team will be participating in this year's event.

The teams will rotate through five testing stations consisting of forestry, wildlife, aquatics, soils, and a non-testing station. The focus of the Susquehanna Valley Middle School Envirothon is educational, intended to provide students with the opportunity to learn and apply concepts relating to conservation and to make knowledgeable decisions concerning the use of our natural resources in the future.

For additional information please call the Northumberland County Conservation District at (570) 286-7114, ext. 4.

N.J. Ag Secretary To Deliver DVC Commencement Address

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — New Jersey Secretary of Agriculture Arthur R. Brown Jr. will deliver the commencement address at Delaware Valley College, Sat., May 19, at 10:30 a.m., on its Doylestown campus (Route 202), according to Dr. Thomas C. Leamer, president.

Leading the agricultural agenda in the nation's most urban state, Secretary Brown has charted a course for taking Garden State agriculture into the 21st Century, a course focused on marketing, farmland preservation, biological control, soil and water conservation, and animal and plant disease prevention.

The N.J. Department of Agriculture is recognized nationally for its award-winning Jersey Fresh program. It is also renowned for its efforts in biological control — using beneficial insects to control crop pests — and preservation of soil and water.

In a state faced with loss of farmland due to development, Brown has led the way to retain agriculture's healthy status. The Garden State Trust Fund is a constitutionally dedicated source of funding for farmland and open space preservation, that will fuel the preservation of 500,000 acres of farmland by 2010. He has also played an important role in recent amendments to the state Right to Farm Act, legislation which protects responsible farmers from unnecessary government restrictions and nuisance legal actions.

Born in Fulton, N.Y. and raised on a Massachusetts dairy farm, Brown understands the challenges faced by agriculture. He received his bachelor's degree in animal science from the University of Massachusetts and master's degree in horticulture from Cook College, Rutgers University. He worked as a county agriculture agent for 11 years and attained the rank of professor at Cook College before being named Secretary of Agriculture.

A member of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture, Brown currently serves as chairman of the United States Department of Agriculture's Census Advisory Committee and chairman of both the New Jersey State Agriculture Development Committee and the State Soil Conservation Committee. He is also a trustee of the Southern New Jersey Development Council and chairman of the Aquaculture Advisory Council. Earlier this year, he was named to the Farm Credit Regional Council as a representative of the northeastern states.

In 1999, he was elected president of Food Export USA/Northeast (formerly EUSAFEC); appointed by Governor Christie Whitman as a member of the Northeast Interstate Compact Commission; named to the United States Department of Agriculture's Advisory Committee on Agriculture Statistics; and inducted into the New Jersey Nursery and Landscape Association's Hall of Fame.

He is a member of the board of managers of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, and a member of the New Jersey Agricultural Society, the New Jersey Agriculture Museum, the New Jersey District Export Council of the United States Department of Commerce, the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture and the New Jersey State Planning Commission.

Producers Share Direct-Marketing Strategies

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

MIFFLINBURG (Union Co.) — Producers and processors of agricultural products ranging from beef, milk, and poultry to garlic and herbs gathered on the farm of Bill Callahan north of Mifflinburg Tuesday to share ideas about how to sell their goods directly to consumers.

About 20 interested agriculturalists, from age eight and up, toured Callahan's pasture-based beef and poultry operation. They heard Callahan detail the methods he is developing to sell what he calls "source-verifiable" food to the local community, including the towns of Lewisburg and Mifflinburg.

The meeting was one of a continuing series of grazing-focused events conducted in the central Susquehanna area of Union, Snyder, Northumberland, Montour, Columbia, and Lycoming Counties.

Begun in 1994 by Columbia County extension agent Dave Hartman, the meetings primarily offer a forum to pasture-based producers of meat, milk and eggs, although the direct marketing topic of this meeting attracted vegetable producers as well.

Hartman is working to form a direct-marketing group for local farmers. According to a survey he conducted last year, about 20 people from the area are interested in a meat-marketing cooperative. Only about half of those, however, said they would be willing to spend time in organizing it. Hartman pointed out that a large amount of commitment is required to make such a cooperative work.

"Change is slow to come," Hartman said. "But there is a good niche for small producers."

In a related project, Callahan raised the possiblity of a direct-marketer's map that would highlight all of the farms in the area who directly sell products. Referring to a similar map already published in Lehigh County, Callahan said such a map would provide the benefit of public association between producers.

"(The map) would put you in a group setting," he said. "It would allow you to market with producers who are already marketing."

Callahan is working with the local Chamber of Commerce to develop the poster-sized map which would be displayed in various public locations around the area.

The map would be another tool for small-scale marketers to compete with large-scale food vendors, Callahan pointed out.

"Our products are fresh in a way (the supermarket's) will never be," he said.

The group discussed various other marketing tactics including a new producers-only market in Mifflinburg, marketing to tourists who come to the area for vacation, as well as word-of-mouth advertising through places of employment, friends and church.

Callahan said that the key to his own operation is a low-input approach to producing a final product that brings a premium price.

"I buy a healthy, cheap animal and raise it inexpensively," he said.

Callahan described how he purchases week-old Jersey calves directly from a dairy farmer at bargain prices — prices that reflect the undesirability of Jerseys in the veal market.

The calves are fed milk-replacer while also learning to forage in the pasture almost immediately, picking at the grass and clover that will be their sole diet from weaning age to slaughter at 18 to 22 months.

"I've seen them nibbling grass at a week old," Callahan said.

The calves consume about a 50-pound bag of milk replacer before weaning, at which point they become totally dependent on forage.

Part of the late fall and winter diet for the cattle consists of forage turnips that Callahan seeds in the summertime. He also offers hay, either harvested from his own pastures or bought as needed.

At slaughter, a typical carcass will dress out 80 to 85 percent lean and between 400 and 500 pounds, Callahan said, most of which is ground into hamburger.

Callahan said he prefers the Bill Callahan feeds milk replacer to his latest batch of Jersey calves. He will raise the calves on a pasture-based program to an age of 18 to 22 months when they will be slaughtered and sold directly to consumers in the form of hamburger. Callahan buys the Jerseys from a dairy farmer at bargain prices when they are about a week old. "I buy a healthy, cheap animal and raise it inexpensively," he said. Callahan receives a premium price for the lean, grass-fed ground beef.

Direct-Marketing Strategies

simplicity of hamburger for marketing purposes and because a majority of beef is consumed in burger form. He also said that with hamburger he doesn't have to worry about the meat being too tough.

Much of the ground beef is sold by the pound through Callahan's wife, Pat, at the Evangelical Community Hospital in Lewisburg where she works as a nurse. The health-conscious environment of a hospital makes it an ideal place to sell lean, grass-fed beef, Bill Callahan said.

Callahan also raises Cornish cross and a traditional heavy red breed of broiler chickens on pasture and a grain-based feed that he formulated himself out of various other recipes.

The chickens are slaughtered and processed in a facility run by Eli Reiff and his family near Mifflinburg. The Reiffs process about 36,000 birds per year, many of them for small producers such as Callahan who sells his poultry before it is slaughtered, thus avoiding the need for a USDA inspector's stamp on the final product.

Callahan took customer orders for about 500 fresh broilers last year with a batch of chickens ready to go nearly every week during the growing season.

Slaughtered in the morning, the dressed birds are picked up in the early afternoon, bagged, weighed, and delivered fresh to customers by Callahan himself.

Callahan said he clusters his poultry sales in Mifflinburg and Lewisburg and that delivering the chickens — at an average of about five minutes per delivery — has proven to be more efficient than having customers come to the farm to pick them up.

Reiff said that his small, family-run processing facility offers a service that is hard to find anywhere else in the area.

Bill Callahan, left, talks with Eli Reiff and son Stanley Reiff about the benefits and challenges of direct-marketing meat to consumers. The Reiffs process about 36,000 poultry per year, many of them for small producers like Callahan.

Miller's Agriculture By-Product Technology Bill Earns Committee Approval

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee recently approved legislation introduced by Rep. Sheila Miller (R-129) that would encourage the use and development of environmentally sound and affordable methods of managing manure and other agricultural by-products.

Miller introduced this legislation last session and was pleased that it passed the House in December 1999. Because it was not considered by the Senate before the close of the two-year legislative session last November, the Berks County lawmaker reintroduced the Agricultural By-Product Technology Act earlier this year and is pleased the chairman of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee scheduled the bill for consideration.

House Bill 674 requires the Department of Agriculture to evaluate new management practices and promote the education and use of those practices through loan and grant programs.

"As the agriculture industry grows more competitive, it is increasingly important to look for ways to improve agricultural practices, including by-product management," Miller said. "These practices help farmers deal with livestock manure and other food production by-products in ways that also protect the environment."

Miller said developing manure digesters and other agricultural by-product technologies results in the production of energy, pathogen-free fertilizers, animal feed supplements and clean water that help increase revenues for agricultural producers.

"Better by-product management also protects the environment by reducing potential pollutants to air and water," she said.

Miller's bill also creates the Agriculture By-Product Technology Board, which will work with the Department of Agriculture to research and evaluate new technologies. It will also be responsible for assessing the regional manure and by-product reduction needs and for encouraging cooperation among the agricultural community, industry and local government regarding the use and development of the new technologies.

these buildings can be very long, block the open space view, and lower neighbors' property values. Two or three short buildings close to other farm buildings are acceptable, but five to 10 very long buildings are not acceptable.

Southeast Pennsylvania, home of the state's best farmland, should not become slowly saturated with buildings inside agricultural zones.

The farmhouse, other buildings, paved lanes, and parking lots should be no more than five to 10 percent of a farm's acreage or no more than five to 10 acres for every contiguous 100 acres. Every farm does not need a large CAFO in order to remain financially successful.

Reuben W. Weaver, III
Ephrata

Editor's Reply: But it is imperative that farms be profitable if farming is to continue at all in southeastern Pennsylvania. The farmer still must be paid for the commodity he produces — not simply relying on taxpayer money to keep the farm afloat.

Editor:

This past year, I had the honor and the privilege of serving as the Lebanon County Dairy Princess. I, along with my court of one alternate, one maid, and one lil' miss, have traveled to every corner of Lebanon County promoting the dairy industry.

We try to educate people on the importance of milk and dairy products and we encourage them to drink three to four glasses of milk every day for healthy bones and teeth.

One June 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the Lebanon County Career and Technology Center, we will be holding our annual dairy princess pageant. That night, I will be passing on my crown.

This past year has been a lot of fun, but it will be exciting to see the enthusiasm of the girls that will serve as the new court. I encourage everyone to come out and watch our new court and watch our new court be crowned because, after all, they will be representing everyone in the county. Lastly, I would like to thank everyone who helped make this year so enjoyable; it has been one I will never forget.

Thousands Flock To Maryland's Sheep And Wool Festival

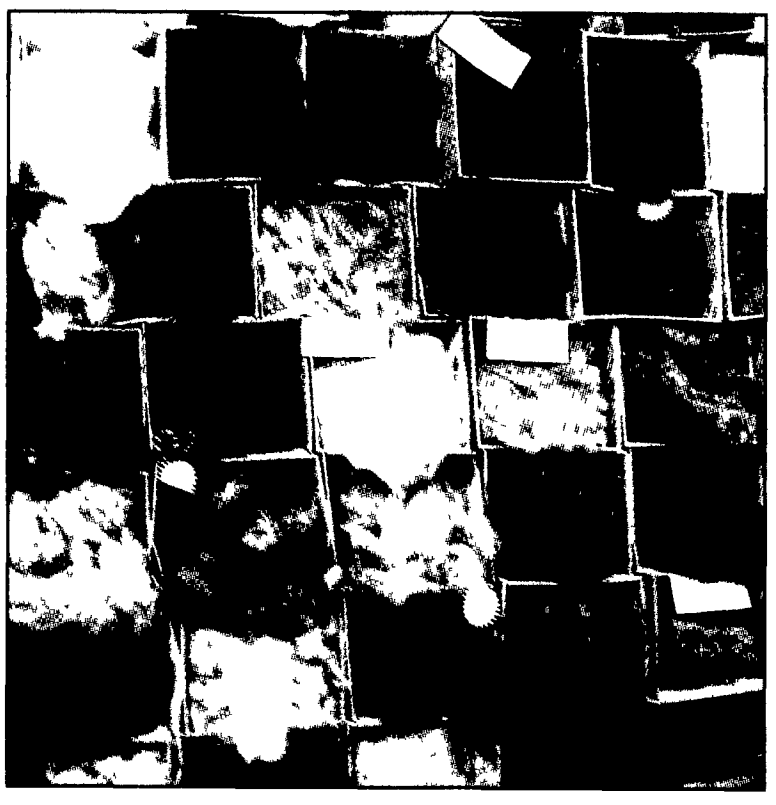
MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

Each year at the Howard County Fairgrounds wool spinners, sheep breeders, and those who are simply curious gather to celebrate the contributions of the animals found backyards and barnyards across America.

At Maryland's annual Sheep and Wool Festival, sheep showed up in paintings, hooked rug designs, Christmas stockings, or even as puppets. Spinning and weaving equipment, sheep health supplies, fencing, and even Border Collie puppies were for sale during the event.

Also during the festivities Emma Little, Churchville, Maryland, was crowned Maryland's Lamb and Wool Queen. Grace Patterson, also 15, from Butler, Maryland, became the Maryland Lamb and Wool Princess.

Helper Russell Herculson, 13, Jarrettsville, Maryland, aids Hans Kefauver, White Hall, Maryland, grill lamb for the event. The business, Greenes' Lamb, will move approximately 1,200 lamb carcasses in one day of both fresh and cooked versions, 1,200 total pounds of meat.



Colors are carded together so when they are handspinned, the wool becomes a variegated yarn. The colored, carded, ready-for-spinning wool — called "roving" wool — is found in abundance at the festival.

The stands are juried for entry, according to Carolyn Buckingham, chair of the Sheep and Wool Festival committee. "This year, out of 260 vendors, only seven new stands were let in," said Buckingham. "It must be sheep or wool related. The only people that get in are the people that are really doing something different and new," she said.

Vendors that do get in, said Buckingham, tend to stay. "This is our 28th show and we've had vendors who have been to every one."

Since the show is free, said Buckingham, show organizers have a difficult time estimating the number of festival attenders, although she calculates the number of visitors to be around 60,000-70,000.

"This is the biggest sheep festival on the East Coast and possibly anywhere," she said. "We have visitors from all over the world," she said, who come for "the variety of breeds of sheep and the equipment and supplies right from the producer."

The versatility of wool was clearly evident as it appeared in hats, braided or hand-loomed sibly anywhere," she said. "We have visitors from all over the world," she said, who come for "the variety of breeds of sheep and the equipment and supplies right from the producer."

The versatility of wool was clearly evident as it appeared in hats, braided or hand-loomed rugs, chair pads, in comforter fillings, clothing, and even magnets. Along with the various wool displays, colorful sweaters graced the backdrop of many of the stands.

Contests included a sheep-to-shawl, wool, and photography and fine arts competitions, besides the various sheep shows conducted throughout the weekend.

Also during the festivities Emma Little, Churchville, Maryland, was crowned Maryland's Lamb and Wool Queen. Little, 15 years old, grew up showing sheep as she helped to raise her family's Jacob's Sheep, Cotswold, and Border Leicester animals.

Grace Patterson, also 15, from Butler, Maryland, became the Maryland Lamb and Wool Princess. Patterson, who moved from the city when she was eight, has enjoyed working with sheep since she was 10 years old.

Wool was not the only sheep product for sale. Lamb sausages, lamb burgers, gyros, kabobs, or even pit lamb — sliced for sandwiches or cubed and in a pita — were on the menu at the various food stands.

Kathy Davidson, Potosi Sheep Farm, Glen Rock, has been to the show for 10 years. "It's a fun, well-run show," she said. A self-taught spinner, Davidson blends colors by instinct. "I just have an eye for what I like together," she said. "There's a color for everybody."

OMESTEAD OTES

Kathy Davidson, Potosi Sheep Farm, Glen Rock, has been to the show for 10 years. "It's a fun, well-run show," she said. After buying three sheep from a friend for wool to have wool to spin, she gradually increase numbers and now has 40 breeding ewes and 65 lambs.

Davidson dyes her products with chemical dyes, then lays them on the floor and cards color together "so when they are hand-spinned, it becomes a variegated yarn," said Davidson. The colored, carded, ready-for-spinning wool — called "roving" wool — is found in abundance at the festival. She enjoys marrying the subtle hues of purple, rose, or gold in different arrangements.

A self-taught spinner, Davidson blends colors by instinct. "I just have an eye for what I like together," she said. "There's a color for everybody."

There's no wool like Merino wool, according to Andrea Colyer, Hubbardston, Massachusetts. The fine, soft, durable, "no itch wool" is the only type sold at her stand. Her fourth year at the festival, Colyer only sells Merino wool from her own herd of 75 sheep at the stand.

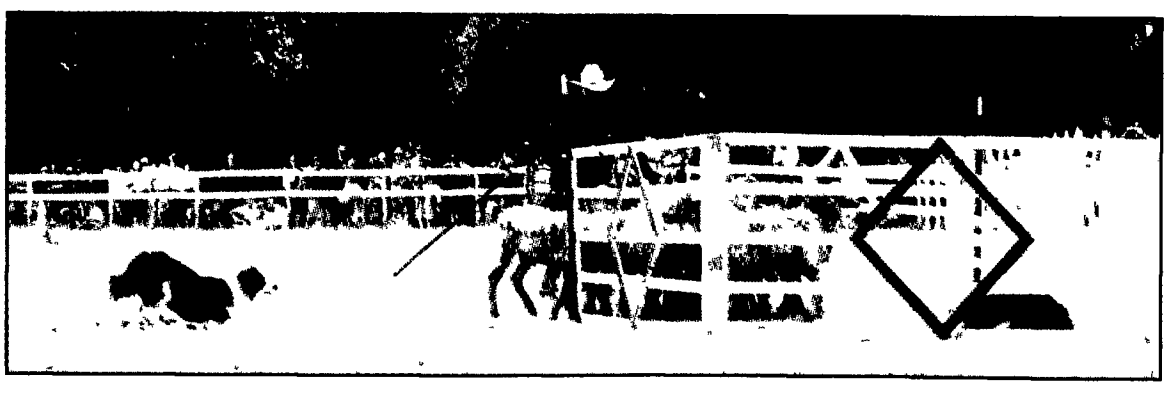
At a hand-shearing demonstrations, visitors watched as the fleece was shaken out and "skirted," and the contaminated wool removed.

The finished fleece is folded in thirds and rolled rump to head so the best product, with the white side out, is visible. In another demonstration Border Collies exhibited their shepherding abilities with the heat-tolerant Black Belly Barbados sheep, developed in the tropics.

The dogs' natural instinct to gather was displayed as they used subtle intimidation to work the sheep around the ring. The owners' whistles, which the dogs can understand easily at a distance, directed the dogs.

Not to be ignored for their contributions of wool, along with the various breeds of sheep Angora rabbits, llamas, and alpacas made an appearance at the show.

Monica Mitchell, 7, of Marshall, Va., helped her family sell Angora rabbits.



The sheep were a little more reticent to enter the fenced-in area when they discovered "Rose" lying in the corner. Since herding sheep into the fence proved to be a little too tame, the dogs' owner decided to add the additional element of challenge. Through the subtle intimidation the dogs are known for, the sheep did finally enter the area with the gate closed securely behind them.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

"Eat your vegetables." "Drink your milk." "Don't lie to me."

"Put on clean underwear; suppose you were in an accident and they had to take you to the hospital?"

"Get in trouble in school and you'll be in twice as much trouble when you get home."

"I don't care what all the other kids are doing."

"Yessss, mother."

Did you mom say all that stuff to you too? I recall realizing one day — with a shock — that I sounded just like my mother. Now, I hear our daughter, sometimes, sounding just like her mother. And like my mother. And like her mother before that, most likely.

Except the kids still remind me that farm moms not only repeat the same "mom-isms" as non-farm mothers...they add some specific extra ones. Like...

"No riders on tractors!"

Wish I had a buck for every time I did — still do raise heck about that one. Tractors and self-propelled equipment with enclosed cabs have raised my tolerance level a bit; I still get hyper if I spot someone riding on an open piece of machinery. Keep that kid off the open tractor, for crying out loud! And, also...

"Stay out of the haymow."

They didn't, of course. Haymows are natural kid-bait, what with all those bale cliffs to scale, forts and tunnels to build, high places to swing from if you can fasten a big, old heavy rope in the right place overhead. Luckily neither of them — that I know of — ever tumbled out of a haymow and down through.

"Don't fall through the hay hole."

Newer-style farm facilities don't usually have hay storage overhead, which has eliminated these dangers designed in upper-story barn floors to drop bales through to the first floor for feeding. Landing areas under bale-drop-openings usually include the likes of concrete floors, troughs, metal pipes, etcetera. Most have trapdoors or coverings — often left propped open.

On a lucky day, you could tumble through one and soft-land on a soft, mushy, smelly manure pack. Your mom will still yell at you, even while saying under your breath a prayer of gratitude for the absence of bumps, bruises or blood. Not to mention...

"Not until Dad checks the ice."

Ponds are a wonderful farm scenic addition, wildlife attraction and anti-fire device, to say nothing of their entertainment potential. The natural attraction of a slick ice-coated pond on a brisk, sunny winter day is the stuff of which childhood memories are made: skating with friends, including a skidding dog, pick-up games of ice hockey, toasting marshmallows, and warming numb fingers over a crackling bon fire at water's edge.

Mostly what moms see are kids tumbling through some weak spot. So dad was always sent out ahead as the safe-ice scout. And on the subject of ponds.

"Don't take the cats fishing."

This last one recalled by our daughter, who still cringes at the day they snagged a favorite cat on a fishhook. The Farmer ultimately had to remove the jagged barb from the mouth of the fish-snatching pet — a big (furry) one which didn't get away.

There are lots more "momisms;" all we have to do is listen to ourselves.

As recently as a few weeks ago, I admonished our firstborn, using her full given name, as moms do when they want your full attention. The mom-to-be, who was to deliver our fourth grandchild in about 10 days, was lifting something her own mother thought was way too heavy. She good-naturedly chuckled at getting the full-name mom-scolding treatment.

Moms never change.

We just get more experienced.

To all new and veteran moms, Happy Mother's Day!

Chester Co. Extension

So you want another job? Ahhhhhh! — The job search!

You've been employed in your current position for more than a year and have decided that this job is not for you. You wake up in the morning with dry mouth and sweaty palms as thoughts race about your day ahead. You've decided to start exploring other employment possibilities. This time you want to ensure that you are making the right career move.

Many disgruntled and unproductive employees in today's workforce aren't passionate about their current occupation because they didn't have the resources to make a well-informed career decision. For most companies, the bottom line is making a profit and/or providing excellent service to it customer/clients. If an employee isn't passionate about his/her job, the company will suffer by low profits and lost customers/clients and ultimately that employee may loose his/her job. To avoid this from happening, one must have a job search plan.

Before searching for another job, conduct a need assessment within yourself. You've already taken the first step by examining you (your short, medium, and long-range goals)...right? And have analyzed your own resources: values, interests, aptitudes/abilities and personality. If you have taken these steps, then you are ready for the third and fourth steps in the career decision-making process.

Now it is time to start exploring occupations. You should research occupations based on these nine factors: values required, duties and responsibilities, work environment, working hours, aptitudes and abilities required, education and training required, data-people-things relationships, salary, fringe benefits, and career outlook. Gathering information on each of these factors for each career you investigate enables you to compare careers directly and make a wise career decision.

For instance, choosing a career is a lot like purchasing a car. When purchasing a car you first want to define your need or want (you want a car). Second, you would need to analyze your resources (study your finances to see how you'll pay for the car). Third, identify your choices (check all the available sources of cars). Fourth, gather information (you will need to know such things as cost, condition, insurance and warranty). Fifth, evaluate your choices (review the information you have gathered to determine which factors are most important to you). Finally, you make your decision (decide which car best meets your needs for the price you are willing to pay). And then it is time to plan how to reach your goal (finalize your plans to buy the car).

Since you have acquired information on yourself and a few occupations that are of interest to you...you've now made a well-thought out decision. Chances are you are going to be satisfied with your decision because you have taken the time to find an occupation that is not only satisfying, but also realistic to fit your lifestyle goal. Following these steps may help you in becoming a productive and satisfied employee that everyone wants to hire.

Memory Walk To Benefit Alzheimer's Association

READING (Berks Co.) — The Berks County branch of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association invites you to gain an appreciation for the city's history and heritage by walking its streets on Thursday, May 17, as we celebrate Older American's Month.

Our tour, conducted by Amy Woldt, city historic preservation specialist, will begin at noon at Trinity Lutheran Church, located at 100 North Sixth Street. The church is one of several city sites listed on the National Register of Historic Places. From there, we will continue through the downtown commercial area, focusing on the Callowhill historic district. Of special interest will be the progress achieved at what is a magnificent part of Reading's future, the Sovereign Center.

The Alzheimer's Association has its own historical links to "walks." Many thousands of people nationwide participate in our "Memory Walk," the largest fund raiser for the disease. This year's Memory Walk will take place at another Berks County historic site, Gring's Mill, on Saturday, October 13. Dollars raised through Memory Walk allow the association to provide free education, support and services to Alzheimer's patients and their families and caregivers. There are more than 14,000 families in Berks County alone coping with the devastation of Alzheimer's disease.

To preregister for our "Historic Tour of Reading," contact the Alzheimer's Association at (610) 375-4990.

Seeds Of Change Will Save Money And Environment

Paul Boyer
Penn State
Master Gardner Graduate

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) — This spring, make a resolution to reduce the amount of pesticides you use in your garden and around your home. You will save money and create a healthier environment for plants, animals and people.

A few simple strategies will help you take the first step.

Pesticides are the chemicals used to kill bugs. Herbicides kill unwanted plants. The popularity of both is soaring.

The National Audubon Association reports that 67 million pounds of synthetic pesticides are applied annually to home lawns. That is eight pounds per acre, about three times more than farmers use.

The problem is that many of these products are highly toxic. The National Audubon Association estimated that at least 67 million birds are killed annually from pesticide exposure. When applied indiscriminately, beneficial insects are also lost. Human exposure is also dangerous, especially to children.

By changing a few gardening habits, however, it is possible to reduce exposure without sacrificing the beauty and productivity of your garden. There are many effective strategies to pest and weed control that are simple and really do work.

If pest control is likened to a battle, then the first rule is: Avoid conflict. Find ways to stop weeds before they sprout and lessen the risk of disease. Begin with fertile soil. By digging deeply when you prepare flower and vegetables beds, using lots of rich compost, and keeping the soil at the proper pH level, you produce plants that are vigorous and healthy.

Weak plants are less productive and more prone to illness.

Now is a good time to get soil tested at Penn State's soil test lab. Call your county cooperative extension office for information.

Growing plants that are resistant to disease infestation is another way to avoid trouble. Some varieties of vegetables are better able to fend off diseases than others. The same is true with flowers, trees and shrubs. Native plants are an increasingly popular choice in the home landscape because they are generally less prone to illness. Read seed packages and talk with knowledgeable staff at local nurseries before buying.

In the lawn, you can avoid trouble simply by cutting the grass higher. Taller grass blades — 2½-inches is a good height — shade the ground and help prevent weed seeds from growing. Regular mowing, meanwhile, prevents the development of new seeds. Depending on the condition of your lawn and your tolerance for some weeds, it is possible to eliminate annual applications of broadleaf herbicides.

The second rule is know your enemy. Tom Butzler, an extension agent for Clinton County tells me that homeowners frequently try to use a pesticide when the symptoms are actually caused by something else — perhaps a fungus. If you see a plant in distress, try to identify the problem before pulling out the sprayer. Look at the leaves and stems. If possible, examine the roots. When in doubt, use a disease identification guide or call the county extension office for advice.

The third rule is use the least toxic solution. Some pests are easily eliminated by simple methods. If aphids are identified early, you may be able to wash them off with a forceful spray of water. Sometimes you can simply pick off other bugs by hand. Row covers — filmy sheets of fabric that lay directly on vegetable plants — effectively deter leaf chewing pests in my garden.

If you do go to pesticides, remember that some are more toxic than others. I have found that insecticidal soaps take care of aphids in my home greenhouse. So why turn to more toxic and dangerous chemicals? When considering different pesticides, look at the warning labels that are printed on every bottle. Those with a caution label are less toxic than those with a danger or warning poison label. The latter is the most toxic of all.

Finally, it is important to accept imperfection in the garden. We too, easily imagine that every lawn must look like a putting green and that every fruit and vegetable must be glossy and blemish free. But remember that a price is paid for that kind of perfection. If you reduce or eliminate pesticides from your home, you will have a richer and more biologically diverse environment.

Enhancing Skills For Elder Care

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — While only a small percentage of elderly are actually cared for outside of the home, those who are in established care situations need and are deserving of the best care possible. The first step toward this goal would be to examine the basic needs of the elderly, the changes they face, and how these changes affect their functioning.

To work toward this goal, Penn State Cooperative Extension of Carbon, Luzerne, Monroe and Pike counties are offering a day long program, Enhancing Skills for Eldercare, on Tuesday, May 15. The program will focus on topics of interest to those in the eldercare field. Topics will include Managing Dementia and Related Behaviors, Nutrition and Special Diets, Intergenerational Programming Possibilities, and Understanding Urinary Incontinence.

The program will be held from 9 a.m. — 4 p.m. at the Victoria Inn, Rt. 315, Pittston. Cost for day is $30, which will include lunch. Registration is required by Tuesday, May 8.

This program has been approved through the State Board of Social Workers for five credits.

For more information or to register, contact the Pike County Cooperative Extension office by phone: (570) 296-3400, by e-mail: PikeExt@psu.edu, or by fax: (570) 296-3406. Also, check out the Pike County Cooperative Extension Website at http://pike.extension.psu.edu.

CORN PONE

1½ cups corn meal
1½ cups flour (white or whole wheat)
1 cup sour milk
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
½ cup butter
Pinch salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
¾ teaspoon baking powder

Mix all ingredients and pour in a greased and floured 9x13-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes. The corn pone is good when crumbled in a bowl and sugar and milk is added.

In 1945 Mary Flory married Wilburt Stauffer. They raised four children on their small farm between Hopeland and Brickerville. Glenn who lives on the farm with his wife Elaine and two children; Darlene and her husband Herb Kreider, a dairy farmer, live south of Quarryville with their three children; Abe married to Coral has a son and lives in Lock Haven; Fern lives in Cuyler, N.Y. with her husband Dave Bollinger and their two children. The eight grandchildren ages 5-23, enjoy visiting Grandma and Grandpa, who are retired and live north of Lititz.

Mother and Dad were both busy with farm life. Dad also worked at the Wilbur Chocolate Company, Lititz. My parents raised four children in a loving Christian home.

I remember Mother working busily in our farmhouse kitchen as she prepared a delicious roast or yummy pies and cakes. She still loves to bake and invites friends and family for meals. Our family favorite is a pig stomach and her baked rice is a hit at family reunions.

In 1995 my parents celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. This August, my mother will celebrate her 80th birthday.

Happy Mother's Day, Mother!

Love,
Darlene

Wilburt and Mary Stauffer , parents of Darlene Kreider, celebrate their 50th anniversary.

CRACKER PUDDING

1 quart whole milk
1 cup cracker crumbs (crushed soda crackers)
½ cup coconut (optional)
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon sugar
2 egg yolks
2 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix together first five ingredients and scald. Pour about a cup of hot milk mixture over the egg yolks. Blend egg yolks and hot milk together before returning to the hot mixture. Cook until thick. Add vanilla. Pour into a baking dish and cover with meringue.

To make meringue, fold sugar into beaten egg whites and beat until it stands in peaks. Pile on pudding and brown in medium oven for 15 minutes.

No one but Pennsylvania Dutch would think of making a dessert with crackers. When I was a little girl at home, we always enjoyed having this dessert. No one could make it like Mom. She is a good Mom, she was always there when my sisters and I needed her.

My mother Kathryn G. Burhart married Sylvester W. Burkhart. They had seven children, 1 boy and six girls, and from those children were born 21 grandchildren and 31 great grandchildren. All the little ones love her as their grammy. She was always there whenever anyone of us needed her.

She did a lot of cooking in her lifetime and it was always good tasting. She move around quite a bit from farm to farm and is now living in Leesport.

There were always a lot of children around, which made her happy. She never was a complainer and never interfered in our married lives. It is surely a treasure to have a mother like her. God bless those people and children who were never able to have this kind of wonderful and happy life.

One thing we have all learned from her is patience and kindness. And life on the farm is still the best place for children to be raised.

We all love her as Mother and Grammy.
Happy Mother's Day, Mom!

GRAMMY'S SHELLAC COOKIES

2 cups brown sugar
1 cup buttermilk or sour milk
½ cup butter
1 teaspoon baking soda
3-4 cups flour
1 egg yolk

Mix together sugar, butter, and baking soda. Gradually alternate with milk and flour. Mix well. Drop on cookie sheet. Brush with egg yolk. Bake at 325 degrees.

These cookies were made by my grandmother. She shared the recipe with my mother. One day years ago, my brother told mom to make Grandma's cookies with shellac on them. Hence the name. The cookies are still a family favorite.

My mom, Millie, is a mother of three, grandmother of 5. She seems like a mom to hundreds and hundreds. She is a teacher's aide. She loves children whether or not they are hers or yours. She helps on the farm, is a teacher's aide, works part-time at Agway, and still finds time to take care of those she loves and keep house.

She is a great friend.

I love you, Mom. Thanks for everything.

MOM'S MEATLOAF

2 pounds lean ground beef
1 egg
2 teaspoons chopped parsley
½ cup finely chopped onion
3 slices bread moistened in milk
1 teaspoon salt
Black pepper, scant

Combine ingredients in a mixing bowl. Shape into a loaf and add ½ cup water to a 9x13-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 1½ hours.

My mother Mary T. Shive is mother of four and grandmother and great grandmother of 32, and the oldest of 12 children.

Our mom is noted for her delicious cooking. What a treat to go to her house today and have the comfort foods we grew up eating. She changes recipes from time to time, but I always ask her to go back to the way she cooked when we were small children at home. She is 87 years old and still cooking every day.

She is a wonderful mother as well as our friend. Happy Mother's Day, Mom. You are loved so very much.

nilla in one, vinegar in the other, and oil in the last one.

Pour water over entire mixture. Beat for about two minutes until well mixed.

Grease and flour a 9x13-inch baking pan. Pour mixture into the pan and bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes or until it tests done.

I can remember my mom making this recipe more than 40 years ago.

Growing up with six brothers and sisters, my mom always tried to make something that would make enough for our large family and something that was economical. I remember my mom making her favorite cake recipe, Never Fail Cake. It is quick to make, doesn't take a lot of ingredients, and the ingredients are normally what one has on hand.

My mom always said, "It doesn't take much, but it goes far."

Today I make this same recipe for my family, and it is enjoyed just as much now as when my mom made it when I was growing up.

Since the death of my father in June 2000, my mom devotes most of her time volunteering in the nursing home where my dad was a resident up until his death. It gives my mom a satisfying comfort knowing she can help the needs of others, just like she did for my father and still does for her family.

MOM'S POTATO SOUP

4 medium potatoes, diced
1 medium onion, chopped fine
1 stalk celery, chopped in small pieces
Salt and pepper
Water to cover

Combine ingredients and cook until vegetables are soft. Mash cubes with fork, do not drain. Add:

3-4 cups milk

In a separate pan, while vegetables are cooking, melt

4 tablespoons butter

Slowly brown 3 slices bread, cubed. Then pour 3 beaten eggs over toasted bread and stir until egg is set. Add to the milk and vegetables. Heat and serve.

This is delicious and nourishing. This is submitted by Erma Adam to honor my mother, Lizzie Swoyer, who is remembered with love and respect many years after her death.

My mother was a hard working Pennsylvania Dutch farm wife, mother of seven children. We lived on a farm in Berks County, and had dairy cows, a flock of chickens for eggs and for an occasional chicken dinner, a huge garden, dug with a hand shovel — no garden tractor - a few apple trees, and a few pigs raised for winter butchering.

We made very few trips to the grocery store since we had our own milk, butter, eggs, and vegetables from our big garden. We had flour ground from our own wheat. Mother always planted lots of string beans, the low garden variety and the climbing variety, which were planted to climb and wind around the corn stalks in the field. She would dry bushels of those beans for winter use. My mouth waters for the taste of those beans cooked with a piece of our home cured ham.

For all those years, my mother never had a refrigerator or an ice box. All perishable food was carried to a ground cellar during hot weather. She always cooked on an old-fashioned kitchen range, burning mostly wood — never a gas or electric store.

I still marvel how my mother raised her children, made good, nourishing meals, tended a big garden, and always helped with the milking, many times with the field work, using a team of horses and mules, and still remembered her Creator on a Sunday morning by attending church and Sunday school.

SHOO-FLY PIE

Filling:
2 eggs
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup molasses
3 cups water

Crumbs:
⅔ teaspoon baking soda
2 cups flour
⅔ cup brown sugar
⅓ cup butter
⅔ teaspoon cream of tartar

Combine flour, brown sugar, and molasses. Add boiling water. Boil until thick and let cool. Add eggs when cooled. If you add them while it is boiling the whites will cook. Combine ingredients for crumbs. Divide filling and crumbs between two prepared pie crusts. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes.

As a child, this was my favorite pie made by my mother who received it from her mother Alice Glackin. She always made the best. Both she and my grandmother were excellent cooks. They derived great joy watching others enjoy their cooking.

SUGAR COOKIES

2 cups sugar
1 cup shortening
1 cup buttermilk
1 well-rounded teaspoon baking soda
Vanilla or lemon juice
3 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
4 cups flour, not sifted

Separate yolks from whites of 3 eggs. Using a mixer, beat the egg whites in a small bowl, set aside. Beat three egg yolks gradually adding sugar. Add shortening and salt to egg yolk mixture. Add 2 cups flour, then buttermilk alternately. Add cream of tartar and soda to second 2 cups flour. Mix well and add beaten egg whites. Add either vanilla or lemon juice. Sprinkle with sugar before baking. Bake 10 minutes at 400 degrees.

This a heirloom recipe handed down from my mother Edna Pickel. She was well known for her delicious sugar cookies and had many requests for them.

FRIED PARSNIPS

Peel raw parsnips and cut into thin sticks like carrot sticks.

Parboil for about two minutes and drain while still firm, not mushy.

Heat butter in a large skillet. Add a single layer of parsnips and brown on all sides. When crispy and brown, let children grab them as they go through the kitchen. Cook more if you want any left to serve at the table.

Maxine Lay, a dear friend and neighbor, introduced us to parsnips grown in her own garden. They are sweet and delicious.

This year Maxine and her husband Bob are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary. Although she was a teenage bride and seems much too young to be my mother, Maxine is a great role model and mother substitute. The Lays have a large and wonderful family, and we are blessed to be included in it.

KETCHUP

5 quarts tomato juice
1 pint vinegar
4 large onions
2 tablespoons salt
2 cups sugar
2 tablespoons pickling spice
½ teaspoon cloves
1 tablespoon red pepper (scant)
2 tablespoons dry mustard

Mix dry mustard with a little cold water, add remaining ingredients. Boil everything together for 2½ hours. Add Clear Jel to thicken and cook about 15 minutes longer. Put into jars and seal.

This is our favorite homemade ketchup. My mother-in-law Esther (Mrs. John) Zimmerman gave me this recipe.

I want to say a special thank you to my mother-in-law, for tenderly guiding and caring for my husband as he was growing up. Thank you for teaching him about God and living a good example for him to follow.

Thank you for the many times you've come and lend a helping hand. Thank you for loving us and the many kind deeds you've done for us. Our children have been blessed to have a grandma like you and I have been blessed to have you for my mother-in-law.

FEATHER PANCAKES

1 cup flour
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg, beaten
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons cooking oil

Mix together flour, sugar, baking powder, and salt. Add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Fry on hot skillet until golden brown on both sides.

Thank you to my mother Mary (Mrs. Allen Hoover). Thank you for teaching me about God and showing me what truly caring means.

Thank you's could go on and on for the many things you've done for me as I was growing up, rocking me to sleep when I was just a baby to bandaging my scrapped knees, getting ready for our wedding, and a thank you for taking such an interest in your grandchildren.

Thank you for being here whenever we needed you. We have been blessed in having a mother like you.

Do You Suffer From Fibromyalgia?

When I was introduced to New Image I was 50 pounds over weight and suffered from fibromyalgia I was so depressed and in pain the majority of the time I was taking steroids and four other medications, one of which made me so 'groggy' I could hardly get out of bed and another gave me ulcers I began taking New Image secretly because I thought my family would make fun of me After a month, I discovered I had lost eight pounds and seven inches Wow! Then it dawned on me, I was feeling better, the depression and pain were gone In two months I was off all medications "I feel SUPERIFIC!" Now, two years later I have lost 43 pounds and 30 inches Thank you New Image for giving me a new life again Judy Swift - Mt Washington, KY

ANSWER — Thanks to Melinda Wolfe, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess, for sending in recipes for National Osteoporosis Month. She writes that osteoporosis usually does not have symptoms in the beginning. The first sign is generally a bone fracture, and by then the person may have had osteoporosis for years. You are at risk if you are a woman more than 30 years of age, if you smoke or are a heavy drinker, if there is a history of osteoporosis in your family, or if you're not getting enough exercise or your diet is low in calcium.

While weight bearing exercise helps to maintain healthy bones, adequate calcium consumption is what gives bones their strength in the first place. Getting enough calcium is as easy as drinking three 8-ounce glasses of milk a day or a glass of milk with each meal. Try these suggestions to boost your calcium intake:

• Drink chocolate milk for a refreshing break. Eight ounces equals 300 mg of calcium and the same nutrients as unflavored milk.

• Add cheese to a sandwich, hamburger, baked potato or salad. One ounce of cheddar or mozzarella cheese equals 200 plus mg of calcium.

• If you're lactose intolerant, try smaller amounts of milk with meals, aged cheeses, or yogurt with active cultures.

• Enjoy yogurt at breakfast, lunch, or a quick snack. One cup (plain) contains about 400 plus mg of calcium.

You can also try blending milk and ice cream for an easy calcium-rich shake like these:

Raspberry-Banana Shake

¾ cup cold milk
3 scoops red raspberry frozen yogurt
½ banana, peeled, frozen
2 tablespoons rasberry jam, melted

Place all ingredients in blender container, cover. Blend on high speed until smooth. Serve immediately.

Zebra Shake

⅓ cup skim milk
⅓ cup fat-free cream cheese
4 scoops vanilla ice cream
1 medium-size, firm-ripe banana, peeled
6 reduced-fat vanilla wafer cookies, broken into large pieces
2 maraschino cherries

Place milk and cream cheese in a blender container, blend until smooth. Add frozen yogurt; blend until smooth. Slice banana; reserve three slices. Add cookie and remaining banana slices to blender; pulse two times. (Bananas and cookies should be chunky). Pour into tall glass and top with whipped cram. Alternate cherries and reserved banana slices on straw, place in glass.

ANSWER — Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Melinda Wolfe sends in some recipes to encourage children to eat healthy, tasty treats to increase calcium intake.

Cheesy Dog

2 tablespoons shredded cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon each chili sauce, pickle relish
1 hot dog bun, split
1 frankfurter

Combine cheese, chili sauce, and relish. Spread cheese mixture inside bun. Place frankfurter on top of cheese. Wrap filled bun in paper towel. Microwave on high for one minute or until cheese is melted and frankfuter is warm. Serve immediately.

Animal-Shaped Grilled Cheese

2 slices bread
1 slice American cheese
Softened butter

Cut bread and cheese into desired animal shapes with cookie cutter. Place cheese between bread slices to make sandwich. Spread outer sides of bread slices with butter. Cook over medium-low heat on griddle or in nonstick skillet until brown on both sides, turning once. Serve immediately.

ANSWER — Thanks to LaVonne, Erie County, for sending this recipe.

Freezer Rolls

1¼ cups warm water
2 packages active dry yeast
½ cup warm milk (100-110 degrees)
⅓ cup butter, softened
½ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
5½-6 cups all-purpose flour
2 large eggs

Place ½ warm water in large warm bowl. Sprinkle in yeast; stir until dissolved. Add remaining warm water, warm milk, butter, sugar, salt, and 2 cups flour. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes. Stir in enough remaining flour to make soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured surface. Knead until smooth and elastic, about 8-10 minutes. Cover with plastic wrap; let rest for 20 minutes.

Punch dough down. Shape into desired shapes for dinner rolls. Place on greased baking sheets. Cover with plastic wrap and foil, sealing well. Freeze up to one week.

When frozen, rolls may be placed in plastic freezer bags.

Remove from freezer; place on greased baking sheets. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place until doubled in size, about 1½ hours.

Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or until done. Remove from baking sheets; cool on wire racks.

Shaping the dough: Crescents: roll each half to 14-inch circle. Cut each into 12 pie-shaped wedges. Roll up tightly from wide end. Curve ends slightly to form crescents.

Knots:Divide each half into 12 equal pieces; roll each to 9-inch rope. Tie once loosely.

Coils: Divide each half into 12 equal pieces; roll each to 9-inch rope. Coil each rope and tuck end under the coil.

Twists: Divide each half into 12 equal pieces; roll each into 12-inch rope. Fold each rope.

To bake without freezing: After shaping, let rise in warm, draft-free place, until doubled in size, about 1 hour. Bake according to above directions.

Chickentown Gas And Steam Show Scheduled For Memorial Weekend

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — On Memorial Day weekend for the eighth annual Chickentown Gas and Steam Show, instead of "rolling out the red carpet," the Chickentown Gas and Steam Association will "throw out the welcome mat" on the Chickentown Grove's all natural turf.

The days are Saturday and Sunday, May 26, 27 from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the stomping grounds of an organized group of hobbyists. The fellows enjoy preserving a bygone era while they hang out together and listen to those old engines hiss and puff.

Association member Dave Weimer once said: "You fill the boiler with water, grease and oil her up, build the fire and heat the water until it turns to steam...then that monster comes alive!" You'll fit like a glove if you amble in wearing comfy bib overalls that have a red or blue work hanky poking out of the rear pocket because everything at the Chickentown Gas and Steam Show is laid back and neighborly.

The site is five miles southwest of Somerset off the Pennsylvania Turnpike Exit 10. From the toll booth, turn right at the second light onto North Center Avenue and follow some two miles to Cannel Drive. Then, watching for directional signs, go three more miles.

The newest thing for this year's show, Rayman said, will be an operating 1921 Model TT fire truck.

Rayman emphasized the association welcomes all antique equipment that friends and neighbors want to bring to the show. Before coming, however, contact him by telephone at (814) 445-7070.

Again, this year the Farquhar sawmill they reconstructed in the Chickentown Grove will be operating. They tediously dismantled and numbered the boards at the former Somerset State Hospital.

On Sunday, May 27, at 2 p.m., a Farmall C tractor that was restored by Luther Cramer of Confluence will be raffled off. Both days there will be plowing, corn shelling, corn plowing and other demonstrations.

A farm toys show, crafts, a tractor pull for kids, and live music will be featured. Also available is primitive camping for the outdoorsy types. In keeping with the old timers' enjoyment of good food, there will be Chuck Wagon Bar-B-Q, homemade pies and a bake sale.

Saccharin Warning Label To Be Removed

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — On Dec. 21, legislation was signed to remove the warning label that had been required on saccharin-sweetened foods and beverages since 1977.

Sound new scientific research results of more than two decades of study have decisively proven saccharin's safety. The federal government's National Toxicology Program (NTP) removed saccharin from its Ninth Report on Carcinogens. In doing so, NTP joined numerous other world health agencies in recognizing the safety of saccharin. Additional information about saccharin can be found at www.saccharin.org, and about low-calorie sweeteners at www.caloriecontrol.org.

Thanks, Mom

1 teaspoon dry or regular mustard
1 cup sugar
½ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon flour
2 eggs

Combine all ingredients but eggs. Bring to a boil and cook several minutes. Remove from heat and cool. Add 2 beaten eggs and bring to a full boil for a minute or two. Makes about one pint. Add two quarts diced potatoes and whatever else you wish to use such as a little onion, a few carrots, celery seed and a couple hard-boiled eggs, chopped.

My mother, Ruth Seager, always enjoys working outside. She helped my dad in the field and enjoys her garden and raising her own vegetables.

Flowers are another of her favorites.

Her church is very important to her. She has been active in Women's Society and has played the piano and organ for 65 years. She will be 84 in July.

RACHEL'S PEANUT BUTTER COOKIES

1 cup lard
1 cup peanut butter
1 cup sugar
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs

Mix together all ingredients and add:

2½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt

Mix well, roll into balls. Place on cookie sheet. Press with fork to make a crisscross. Bake at 375 degrees for 8-10 minutes.

A very special lady came into my life 17 years ago. Despite our age difference we became the best friends. Her name was Rachel Smeltzer, who helped me become the person I am today. By her example, she taught me the value of a simple life, family, and to live by the fruits of the Spirit listed in Gal.5:22-23 (love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self control).

We never missed a day without talking or my visiting. We spent hours in our rockers by the cookstove, solving the problems of the world and just being together. There is so much I learned from her. We canned meat, vegetables, and fruit, made jam and soap, all on the cookstove.

Rachel taught me how to quilt and all about farming, and always saved "Lancaster Farming" for me to read.

Rachel also shared her bread and pies and other tasty dishes. No canned or frozen food was ever in her home. Everything was made from scratch.

Rachel filled a void in my life and my heart and I love her very much. She is now with God and I miss her terribly. We shared quality time together and had fun no matter what we were doing. I was with her the day she died and was able to tell her one last time, "I love you and thank you for loving me, for being my friend.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Spring is the time for colorful flowers on the trees and bushes. Many people have beautiful beds of red and yellow tulips too. I've been digging flower beds in order to plant annuals. Petunias, impatiens, and dianthus have been purchased from three different stores.

Then our youngest daughter added to the flower business by sending me a bouquet of delphiniums, daisies, iris, and tulips. She remembers me every May 1 with a bouquet. This year she sent them early as she knew we planned to go away. Even as a child, she picked flowers along our lane and laid them at the front door.

Last week, my husband bought a load of hay at Green Dragon near Ephrata for our son to feed to his many heifers. This gave me an opportunity to browse in the produce area. There was a great variety of vegetables and fruits plus meats. I was surprised to see Jerusalem artichokes. On the farm, we always had a big row of them to dig. My mother pickled them, but I like them simply cooked with salt and butter. They have pretty yellow daisy-like flowers each fall just in time for the children to take some to school. Some things are seasonal, like trimming the grapes around the smokehouse every spring.

Our asparagus patch is giving us lots of produce to eat, freeze, and to give away. We forgot to check on it and the first picking gave us 175 stems. Some were thin, but good. The long row of peas will be needing a fence soon. However, the sweet peas did not come up as the seed was purchased last year. At that time, we had red, purple, and pink flowers to pick.

Students Learn About Agriculture Through 'Caretakers All' Program

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A firsthand experience is a lasting experience, and organizers of "Ag in the Classroom" day take advantage of this rule to provide an enduring educational experience in the minds of schoolchildren.

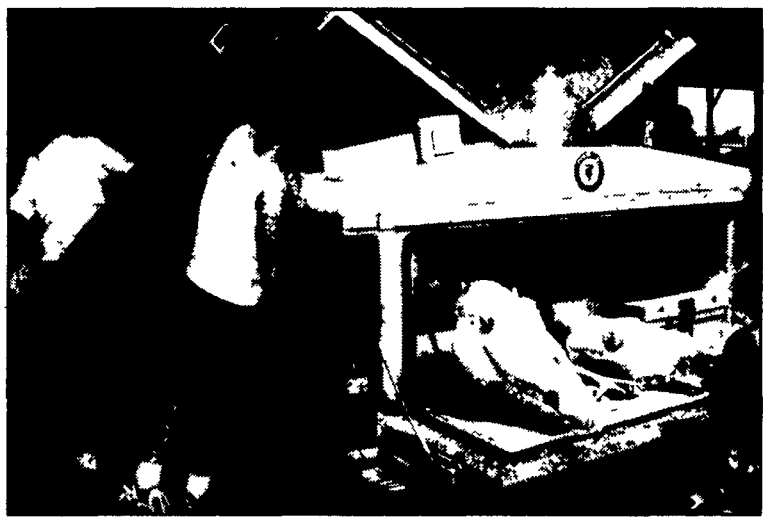
As tractors rumble past, taking care of everyday business on the farm, students rotated through six stations and a lunchtime tour of the cow barn, milking parlor, and calf areas.

The annual Ag in the Classroom day draws spring-fever-smitten students from their classrooms to two farms within the district for a day of learning about the farms which they see every day.

Fourth graders from four elementary schools in Conestoga Valley School District learned about agriculture through the "Caretakers All" program supplied by the Pennsylvania Beef Council.

The benefits of ground cover became blatantly obvious when students measured and observed the amount of soil washed off into the collection jar.

A model illustrated the dangers of insecticides, pesticides, fertilizer, oil, and trash washing into the waterways as students watched a "thunderstorm" move pollution into the streams and lakes of the model.



"This is my office," explained veterinarian Dr. Steve Foulke at the caretakers of animals station as students explored the contents of his truck.

Firsthand Look Into Agriculture

The field trip teaches the 350 students, plus parents and teachers, important lessons about how farmers are working to preserve and enrich the land.

Although many schools have their ag in the classroom day at the school, organizer Bonnie Ranck believes the extra planning necessary to take the students to the farm is worth it.

"They get the feel of the farm," said Ranck. "The presenter talks about soil and the students are right there. For example, they took soil samples directly from the field on the farm.

In addition, when the presenters talk about farm preservation, they are seeing the farmland. Students also get a tour of a dairy farm while they're there.

All the elements of the day, said Ranck, come together to give students a broad base of information about agriculture.

"I want to get across that Lancaster has something special and we should hold onto it," said Ranck.

"The goal is to get students to appreciate and want to take care of the land — and that we're all responsible to do our part in preserving and enjoying agriculture.

"When students spend the day at the farms, they're able to see that farmers work hard to keep it special."

Two of the four elementary schools gathered to hear the presenters at the George Hurst farm, Lancaster, where co-organizer Pat Ranck oversaw the day's events.

Veterinarian Dr. Steve Foulke fielded questions and impressed students with larger-than-life aspirin pills and bleached skulls during his presentations.

Foulke showed the contents of his truck while explaining that veterinarians do not just heal animals but also go to the farm periodically to look over records with producers.

His truck proved to be a point of interest to students who clambered over it to view the contents. "This is my office. It's a lot easier for me to go to the cow than the cow come to me," said Foulke.

Students studied the impact of corn at the "Caretakers of Community" stations. Randy Ranck, Pioneer Seed representative, told the students about Lancaster's largest-acreage crop, corn. If silage is the salad for dinner, said Ranck, shelled corn is a fudge brownie for desert for animals.

One bag of corn, said Ranck, will plant three acres of corn. To give students perspective, he compared an acre to the size of a football field, goalpost to goalpost. "Students thought it was fascinating that one bag of seed corn gives 600 bags in return," said Ranck. Ten bags of corn, said Ranck, yields 30 acres of harvested crop.

On the historical side, students participated in a pioneer-times game where they planned what they would do with the harvest from eight bushels of corn, including saving for seed, making corn meal, and feeding animals.

Lancaster Farmland Trust's Jeff Swinehart, land preservation specialist, and Carol Crosby, director of community outreach, showed students a map of Lancaster with areas of lost farmland in the last 75 years highlighted.

Randy Ranck, Pioneer Seed representative, put corn production in perspective with the visual aids of a bag of seed and silo in the background.

At the "Caretakers of Water" station, Julie Dippner taught students about how their behavior affects the health of the Chesapeake Bay.

A model illustrated the dangers of insecticides, pesticides, fertilizer, oil, and trash washing into the waterways as students watched a "thunderstorm," a spray bottle of water, move the drink mix and cocoa "pollution" into the streams and lakes of the model.

The web is more than an internet connection, students found at the "Caretakers of Plants" station. In an interactive skit they received name tags which designated them as a dead insect, dead plant, grass clippings, mold, fungi, a snail, pillbug, earthworm, millipede, or roundworm.

Each level was linked, such as the snail strung together with the leaf, for a visual representation of the food chain.

An important part of teaching students about agriculture is teaching them the significance of farmland preservation. Jeff Swinehart, land preservation specialist, and Carol Crosby, director of community outreach, showed students a map of Lancaster with areas of lost farmland in the last 75 years highlighted.

Students split into two groups to plan their own community of businesses, apartments, hospitals, libraries, and of course arcades, malls, skate parks, swimming pools, and theaters. As good caretakers of resources, they also worked farmland into their plans.

Grass cover, runoff, irrigation, and soil types were part of Gerald Heistand's "Caretakers of Soil" station. Heistand sliced an apple, a representation of the earth, in half to show the proportion of water and land. He continued to slice the apple down until the peel was left to illustrate the farmland that was left as a part of the entire earth.

Students quickly realized the importance of farm preservation and danger of unchecked development, "because someday we will run out of room to plant," said a perceptive, and forward-thinking, student.

The other two elementary schools participating in the program went to the farm of John and Myrna Smucker, Bird-In-Hand.

Five Hans Herr FFA Members Attend State Legislative Leadership Conference

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Five members of Lancaster Mennonite High School's Hans Herr Chapter of the FFA attended the State Legislative Leadership Conference in the Grantville, Harrisburg and Hershey areas in March. The conference trains students in how our state government works.

Students who participated are: Kristopher Good, son of Daniel and Sharon Good, Mountville; Paul Hostetter, son of James and Mary Louise Hostetter, Holtwood; Timothy Keener, son of Ronald and Fern Keener, Elizabethtown; Yohannes Yosef, son of Yosef Yohannes and Himmanot Alemayehu, Addis Ababa, Ethiopia; and Kevin Nolt, son of James and Ruth Ann Nolt, Mount Joy.

Hostetter, who also attended the conference last spring, was chosen to be one of five second-year scholars to attend and assist with this year's conference.

The conference is sponsored by the Pennsylvania FFA Association which is part of the National FFA Organization, an institution that seeks to present opportunities for leadership and careers in the science, business and technology of agriculture. The conference is designed to help FFA members learn more about their local and state government and how their organization can become more involved with local government.

Conference highlights included a legislative breakfast where FFA members spent time socializing with Senator Noah Wenger and other senators and representatives. In addition, FFA members had a chance to participate in a legislative simulation and learn more about the legislative process through workshops and hands-on activities. They also toured Milton Hershey School, the Hershey Zoo, the Hershey Chocolate Factory, and the historic state capitol.

Manor FFA Breakfast With John Barley

The Manor FFA was invited to a breakfast with State Representative John Barley in the Hoffman Building at Solanco fairgrounds on Fri., Mar. 23. The Manor FFA sent the officer team to discuss agricultural issues in our community and in the world.

Manor FFA was not the only guest at this breakfast. The Secretary of Agricultural Samuel E. Hayes was a guest speaker at the breakfast. One of the main concerns at the breakfast was the Foot and Mouth Disease.

At the breakfast, people from the farming community came to express their concerns and their desires for agriculture in the future.

On Mar. 27, three students from Manor FFA attended the Lancaster County Cooperative seminar at the Farm and Home Center. They participated in various activities to learn and understand how cooperatives work and ended the day with a test on what they learned.

Three students, who attended Kristy Eshbach, Dan Harnish and Bob Garrett, will be going to Shippensburg University to attend Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives Camp.

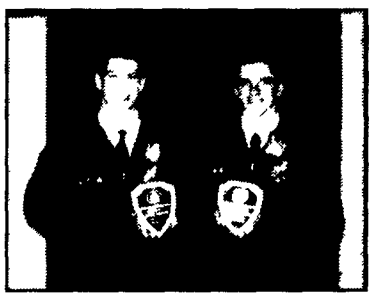
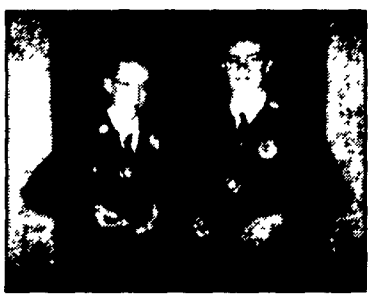
Manor FFA Awards Banquet

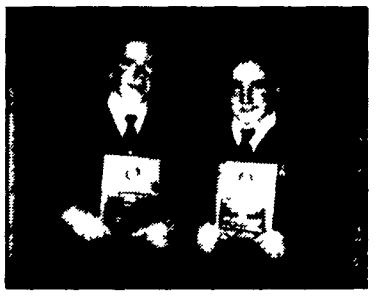
MILLERSVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — This year's annual Manor FFA Banquet was held on Thursday, April 19 in the Penn Manor High School cafeteria. Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes open the banquet with greetings from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.



Dan Harnish and Lamar Stoner.



Andrew Herr and Brian Rankin.



David Martin and Ben Railing.

Awards were given out in many areas to recognize students' achievements. Eight of the seniors received Keystone awards, the highest FFA honor in the state. Also this year, Henry Barley received the Blue and Gold award for his many years of supporting our FFA chapter.

Officers for next year were installed: Lamar Stoner, president; Ryan Hoover, vice president; Dan Harnish, executive vice president; Robert Garrett, program vice president; Candice Hartraft, secretary; Jenna Bleacher, corresponding secretary; Jeremy Appel, chaplain; Jenifer Faul and Charles Clark, reporters; Kris Enterline, sentinel; Ben Railing, adviser; Zadok Leggett, parliamentarian; Andrew Herr and Tyler Rohrer, treasurers.

Receiving the Star Greenhand award in production was Ben Railing and in placement, David Martin. Andrew Herr won the Star Chapter award in production and Brian Rankin in placement. The Red Rose award in placement went to Lamar Stoner and in production to Dan Harnish.

Garrett R. Neff received the Dekalb Agricultural Accomplishment Award for his excellence in academics, leadership and Supervised Agricultural Experience program (SAE).

Mifflinburg FFA

Two Mifflinburg FFA members earned honors in FFA north central region public speaking competition at the Pennsylvania College of Technology.

Shanda Bingaman placed first in junior public speaking, and Lindsay Spangler placed third in general public speaking. They both earned the opportunity to participate in state competition at Penn State University in June. Penny Spangler placed fourth in junior public speaking and is an alternate to attend the state competition.

Other Mifflinburg FFA members who participated in the regional competition, after earning honors in area contests, were Sheila Spangler, general public speaking; Sarah Erdley and Clint Morris, extemporaneous public speaking; Jeff Sanders, conservation public speaking; and Joe Spangler, creed speaking. The students were accompanied by FFA adviser Glenn Spangler.

Sheep Produces Wooly Wonders 'Ewe' May Find Difficult To Believe

York Co. Correspondent

MT. WOLF (York Co.) — Ewe may find this tale hard to believe. Lots of other folks do.

Despite his own initial disbelief, Mt. Wolf Shepherd Wayne Liek is still marveling at the lambing repeatability this spring by one of the Tunis ewes in his flock of 13.

On Feb. 21, Liek's ewe #34 lambed out in her pen with a pair of healthy female twins. Liek dutifully recorded the lambing in his records logs, as he always does to keep track of his flock additions.

Three and a half weeks later, on Sunday morning, March 18, Liek made his usual morning trip to the pens to check the flock before church. While putting down fresh bedding, he became worried when he spied ewe #34 passing placental tissue. Placental "afterbirth" is normally expelled just after lambing, so Liek was afraid the ewe had some sort of problem. When he walked around the feeder in the pen, he spied a tiny ram lamb.

"I just stood there; I was puzzled," he recalls. Moments later, he found a second tiny ram, its tightly-curled infant wool still wet. Totally baffled, he tucked the newcomers into a special lambing pen, then headed for the house to check his record book. His records confirmed his memory of the earlier date of #34's lambing.

Impossible as it seemed, Liek finally concluded that his ewe had lambed twice. Every other ewe's lambing had been noted and recorded. Plus, #34 was showing obvious signs of birth as well as caring for all four of them.

Eventually, Liek was put in touch with Dr. Larry Hutchinson, a veterinarian at Penn State. After speaking with the York County shepherd about his flock size and spring lambings, Dr. Hutchinson's acknowledged this unusual quirk of reproductivity.

"I haven't seen this before, but I'm reluctant to say it couldn't happen," said the extension veterinarian. "There would have been the opportunity for multiple breedings, because of the ram remaining with the flock."

"We are not looking at a cast of hundreds of ewes in this instance; in large flocks one can fairly easily claim another's lambs at birth," adds Dr. Hutchinson. Because of the small size of the flock and the obvious post-birth observations of Liek, he concluded that the usual explanation of a ewe claiming another's lambs at birth does not fit in this instance.

"There is just not any good explanation of the physiology of such an occurrence," Dr. Hutchinson observed. He added that the onset of lambing and its dramatic hormonal changes would usually cause any other material in the uterus to be expelled during the lamb delivery.

Some other shepherds, however, relate similar experiences.

John Eaton, Windsor, has been breeding and exhibiting Dorset sheep since he was a young 4-H member. Eaton, an agriculture lender with People's Bank, has experienced the same phenomenon once in his own flock.

"I had a ewe that had a single lamb, and then had another three weeks later. It's not common; the second lamb will usually be born, too early and too small, at the time of the first delivery," said Eaton.

Linda Spahr, York County extension agent, explains that when one horn of an animal's uterus begins growing a fertilized embryo, the opposite horn grows in a "sympathetic" hormonal manner. Thus, if another egg is fertilized, the environment in the opposite horn of the uterus would be receptive to receiving and nurturing it. She concurs that the hormonal changes which suddenly and dramatically occur at birth would usually cause any second fetus to be expelled with the full-term one.

Liek and his wife, Tanya, are still awed by this double lambing in their flock of "redheads," his nickname for the gentle Tunis ewes. Tunis lambs are born with a dark rusty, almost burgundy, colored coat, then lighten to the traditional creamy-color of wool by the time they are about six months old. The wool around their heads retains the soft, rusty-red shading, hence their "redhead" label.

The couple has owned a flock representative of this ancient African breed of sheep for about eight years, replacing their earlier flock of Southdowns acquired when they first became shepherds. Liek, who says his favorite color is red, became enamoured by the reddish-shaded animals with very fine hair over their wool when he saw them several years ago at the Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival. Their first Tunis ewes were crossed with Finn sheep, but the flock is now mostly purebred stock.

Tunis breeding dates back about 3,000 years, according to a reference book of Liek's "Raising Sheep The Modern Way," by Paul Simmons. The breed first came to America in 1799, imported from Tunis, Africa, into Pennsylvania. The reference manual further notes that George Washington selected a Tunis ram to help rebuild the flock at his Mount Vernon, Virginia plantation.

Liek's Tunis bloodlines come from the Elizabethville, Dauphin County, flock of Bill and Helen Mende. Helen Mende is the secretary of the Tunis breeding organization and handles the breed's records and data base. Every three years, Liek "trades" in a ram for another from the Mende's flock. Because he wants the ewes to be well-grown before lambing, Liek does not breed them until their second year. Most of the flock's lambs arrive as twins; from 13 ewes this year, the flock produced 22 lambs.

The double-bred/lambing issue possibility also raised a question earlier this spring in the sheep barns of Ron and Yvonne Trostle, Red Lion. The Trostles have tended sheep for almost 20 years; both are active in sheep and swine organizations and leadership in York County.

"You question it when one of your ewes has a normal, maybe 16-pound lamb, then also delivers a very small one at the same time," relates Yvonne of a lambing incident from their flock earlier this year. The second lamb, which she estimated to weigh perhaps only five-pounds, did not survive. "You question it. Was the umbilical cord twisted around the lamb, that it didn't develop properly? Or was it something else? You just don't know."

"We had at least one time when a full-term lamb was born and then three weeks later, the ewe started pushing. We were afraid she was going to prolapse (expel the uterus); then when we realized she was lambing again, it was too late to save the second lamb," she remembers.

Based on their years of sheep breeding experience, Yvonne Trostle speculates that Liek's two sets of twin lambs were likely identicals, each set growing in a separate uterine horn, since each set was of the same sex. Probably, she adds, the ewe cycled and was bred, and then — against normal reproductive physiology — cycled and was bred a second time.

With the odds of physiology and hormones so heavily weighted against the likelihood of a ewe giving birth to two sets of healthy twins, three weeks apart, Wayne and Tanya Liek continue to marvel at their "miracle" lambs. He is especially interested in hearing from other animal breeders who have had similar experiences and may be contacted at 435 Long Road, Mount Wolf, PA 17342, telephone (717) 266-4009.

Wayne and Tayna Liek continue to marvel at ewe #34's bounty of baby lambs and enjoy showing them to grandson Dylan.

Wooly wonders, the two sets of twins delivered three weeks apart by Wayne Liek's ewe #34 are healthy and growing. Their mama, protective of her four babies, seems to have taken her unusual reproductivity all in stride.

Tips For Tree Planting

LANSING, Mich. — Grab the shovel...gather the kids...and plant a tree.

Plant carefully, advises the Michigan Forestry and Park Association, Inc. (MFPA), Chapter of the International Society of Arboriculture, Inc. (ISA). How a tree is planted and initially maintained makes all the difference in the world. Too many people are content to simply plant a tree, but ensuring that the tree can go on to live for many years is just as important.

Tree Planting Tips

According to the MFPA, there are a few simple tips to remember when planting your tree this spring:

• Prepare the perfect hole for planting.

Dig the hole two to three times the width of the root ball. Do not dig deeper than root ball depth. Makes the sides of the hole slant gradually outward.

For bare root trees, neatly cut away any broken or damaged roots. Soak the roots for a few hours prior to planting to allow them to absorb water.

Container-grown trees should have the plastic or metal containers completely removed. Carefully cut through any circling roots. Remove the top half of pressed peat/paper containers.

Balled and Burlapped ("B&B") trees should have all of the ropes cut. Pull the burlap at least ⅓ of the way down; slit remaining burlap to encourage root growth.

• Plant the tree.

Gently place the tree in the hole. Partially back-fill with the soil from the hole.

Water to settle the soil, then finish back-filling the hole. Stamp the soil gently, but do not step on the root ball. Remove tags and labels.

Do not stake unless the tree has a large crown, or if the planting is situated on a site where wind or people may push the tree over. Stake for a maximum of one year.

Prune only the damaged branches.

Soak soil well, making sure no air pockets from between roots. Wait until next year to fertilize. Spread two- to three-inches of mulch over the planting area, but do not place it up against the trunk.

Be sure the tree has plenty of water throughout the year.

Anyone with questions about choosing the right tree, or proper planting and maintenance is advised to contact an ISA Certified Arborist. ISA Certified Arborists have completed an experience requirement and rigorous testing to ensure their knowledge on the latest techniques in tree care. They are required to maintain their knowledge through a continuing education requirement.

For additional information on planting and other tree care topics, contact MFPA at (517) 482-5530.

Berks Dairy Royalty Continue Families' Traditions

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Being crowned Berks County Dairy Princess last Saturday met continuing a rich family tradition for Kristy Gross. She is the third sister of dairy farmers Marilyn and David Gross to hold the title.

The Gross family are strong supporters of the dairy industry. They farm Smak-B Dairy, Hamburg, and have helped their daughters not only in dairy promotions as dairy princesses but through many years as ambassadors for the program.

Berks County Dairy Princess Kristy Gross and Little Miss Caitlyn Pool follow in the footsteps of sisters who previously were part of the county's dairy royalty.

The pageant conducted at the Berks County Agriculture Center featured the homecoming of Little Misses from the past 15 years. One of these was Lynette Heffner, 20, who had the distinction of being crowned the first Little Miss for the county. Saturday's event was even more notable because Lynette's 6-year-old sister, Caitlyn Pool was selected as this year's Little Miss. Caitlyn is the daughter of David and Martha Pool.

Little Misses are 4-6 years old, their parents must be connected to the dairy industry and live in the county. Judges select the Little Misses based solely on the youngsters' responses to the pageant emcee in front of the audience on pageant night.

According to Lolly Lesher, mother of Jaylene Lesher, last year's Little Miss, the little girls charm audiences by quoting a poem or singing a song. She helps princesses forget self-conciousness as they concentrate on helping their young charges to help with store promotions. Most Little Misses are eager to tell audiences about life on the farm.

Like many of the former Little Misses, Lynette continues to be active in dairy-related activities. She is 20 years old and is a senior at Penn State majoring in food science. She enjoys showing dairy and beef cattle and is the Ag Student Council representative.

The county depends upon ambassadors, who are 13-years-old and older, to help promote the dairy industry. These include Kara Brendlinger, Trisha Geist, Vicki Kieffer, Joell Koller, Adrienne Phillips, Rebecca Dietrich, Marisa Koinski, Kelli Phillips, and Pamela Werley.

Last year's Berks County Dairy Princess Lucinda Bray bid the audience farewell.

Judges for the pageant were June Leiby, Schuylkill County, and Junia Isiminger, execture director for Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Promotion Services, Inc. (PDPPS). Paul Miller, Dauphin County served as the emcee.

The county promotion committee includes volunteers Angela Davis, chairperson; Barbara Grimes, treasurer; Lolly Lesher, booking chairman; Sandy Gross in charge of ambassadors; Frances Davis, Jennifer Davis, Cathy Geisinger, Mary Haag, Debbie Kieffer, Dottie Koinski, Karen Mohn, Martha Pool, Sue Treichler, Connie Troutman, Donna Werley, and Linda Youse.

As the newly crowned Berks County Dairy Princess, Kristy Gross, right, continues a family tradition. She is the third sister to attain the crown. With Kristy are sisters Sandy, left, who reigned in 1992 as both Berks County princess and state alternate, and Alicia, who reigned in 1998.

Remembering Mother

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — My deceased mother's name was Loveta Carletta (Ash) Killius. I have always been grateful — despite a middle name I detested for years — that she and Dad (Walter Killius), decided on simple and straightforward "Gay Nadine" for their third daughter and fourth child.

James was the eldest, then Joyce, and our sister Nonna, who is now deceased. Despite being a very loving parent, Mother could administer discipline in no uncertain terms and her compliments were sparing because she was protecting us kids from developing the unhealthy kind of pride that goes beyond plain old self-esteem.

Still, my inherited identity of "Our Baby," was an embarrassing distinction between myself and three older siblings. How little then, did I understand their pride in me when Mother and Dad, at every opportunity, announced who I was.

Mother's bent for hospitality — she adored entertaining — disagreed with my shy and bashful personality when I was very young.

Especially, during those annual weekends, when the Ash Reunion was held in Bittinger, Maryland. We had kinfolk galore who lived in Delaware, so every August that skinny state was emptied of Ashes who were en route to our house and those of other local relatives.

Known far and wide for her jovial personality, Mother had a high old time entertaining her cousins while percolator after percolator of coffee disappeared.

Around these unfamiliar people, the bashfulness of Mother's little girl increased all the more. Much as I wished for a hideout to escape being seen, none ever materialized. Instead, the torture began when my timid face peeped, tentatively, around a door where all the relatives gathered to have fun.

Excited voices fussing over me would erupt and I would flee to the shelter of mother's side.

"Don't tell me this is little Gay?" they chorused. "My, how you've grown. You're not little anymore."

"Ugh" I thought.

'Yes, this is our Baby," my folks answered without hesitation.

Later, Mother's compassionate heart was stirred for the plight of a Polish family of refugees brought to the states as a result of great trouble in their homeland Somehow, they were temporarily placed in our community to work on a farm and establish a new life. Their belongings were few and their command of English, poor, but we went to welcome them at the house where they were lodged.

A great relationship was spawned by the gesture that continued for decades despite their eventual move to Rockford, Ill.

Rather than offend the new friends when they were invited to our house for dinner, Mother and Dad relented and permitted the serving of wine, even though they never used alcohol themselves or even entertained a thought of keeping it in the house at other times.

Mother finally stopped calling me her baby when the pet name no longer seemed suitable for the intrepid teenage who used her dad's .22 rifle to nail with bullets a few house snakes that hung around the foundation of the house.

When my mother underwent surgery for a large benign tumor and had other complications, I was 15. Already I was quite the homemaker and adept at running the house, so she turned everything over and I went on with planning meals, cooking, washing up, and maintaining a clean house for us.

Mother was fussy about the wash we did every Monday morning with a Maytag wringer washing machine. Dad had built a clothes shoot and under it soiled laundry coming down from upstairs was caught in a big oblong basket.

Every week, before going into the hot suds for a thorough laundering, all the whites were soaked in a cold bleach and water solution.

Thus, at our country home, flapping merrily outside on the clothes line, were feed bag dish towels, homemade tablecloths, sheets, pillow cases, and the snowiest white men's underwear you ever saw.

You ask you answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — Tim Bowigeois is an intern at the New Jersey Museum of Agriculture and is conducting research on the use of steam power for agriculture in New Jersey during the 1800s and early 1900s. His research is focused on the how, when, where, to what extent, and possibly who used steam tractors or engines in agriculture and other related fields such as lumber harvesting. Does anyone know of steam engine and tractor manufacturers or dealers that were based in New Jersey during that era. Any assistance would be greatly appreciation. Contact Tim at Rutgers, State University of New Jersey, 18384 CPO Way, New Brunswick, NJ 08901-8633 or phone (856) 447-5259.

QUESTION — D. Hatt, 402 Chapel Hill Rd., Sinking Spring, PA 19608, is looking for a manual or instructions on how to operate a Weldex Welder made by Welder Inc. of Detroit, Mich. Hatt wants to use the welder to weld band saw blades.

QUESTION — Louise Oberholtzer, Shippensburg, wants the music to the songs, "Home On the Range" and "Country Roads."

QUESTION — A reader wants to know if someone has a two-seater bike to sell. Phone (717) 445-5969.

QUESTION — The Yoder family is restoring an old spring wagon, with the name W&H Rowland — Philadelphia stamped on the springs. Does anyone know when this company was in business?

QUESTION — A Union County reader is interested in buying used, small-scale milk processing equipment such as a pasturizer, cheese making, bottling, etc. She is also interested in talking with people who process and market goat's milk and goat milk products. She did not include an address or phone number.

QUESTION — Mrs. Luke Hoover, Mifflinburg, wants to know where to buy flower bulb baskets, used to grow and store bulbs, at a low price.

QUESTION — Stephanie Luckenbaugh, Abbottstown, is looking for a recipe or instructions on making dandelion shampoo.

QUESTION — Thomas Lehman writes that his ancestor Peter Leisey (1802-1859) lived in Denver, Pa., and wove coverlets. Lehman has been told that the coverlets were beautiful and had Leisey's name or initials in the design. Does anyone know where Lehman could see one or where one might be for sale? The Lehmans can be contacted by phone at (717) 867-1246.

QUESTION — Diana Hansen, Turnersville, N.J., would like instructions for making with braided rugs from rags or the craft for painted floor mats.

QUESTION — Earl Brinton, Severn, Md., has a problem with crows nesting in his area. This resulted in no baby robins last year. What can be done to discourage crows from settling in residential neighborhoods?

QUESTION — Cindy Eshleman, Jonestown, wants to buy a Halcraft small wooded alphabet bead set or at least the letters "L" and "R."

QUESTION — A reader wants to know of a homemade mixture to control or eliminate carpenter ants.

ANSWER — Jennifer Douglas, thanks readers for their generosity in sending Betty Crocker points to her her class. They received enough points, so send them to another organization in need.

ANSWER — Bernice Haas, 5854 Chestnut Hill Church Rd., Emmaus, PA 18049-5401 thanks numerous readers for answering her request for the words and music to the hymn "Beautiful Valley of Eden."

ANSWER — Peg Carson, Lansdale, wanted to know how to tighten a washline so that it will not sag. Thanks to Aaron and Millie Yoder, Dry Run, who writes that she should use plastic coated cable — NOT plastic-coated wire. You can purchase the cable at hardware stores. Use cable clamps to hold it tight.

ANSWER — Melvin Esch, Lykens, wanted ideas on how to get rid of thistles with runner roots, which are taking over the asparagus and strawberry patches. Thanks to a reader for e-mailing that this is a tough problem to deal with. Canadian thistle is spread by root rhizomes so cultivating simply makes them multiply. The reader has had success using a hand held sprayer with a shield and Roundup. If done in the fall, you get better control, but many berry plants may be wiped out also. He doesn't recommend spraying when the plants are blossoming. Otherwise it may be better to start a new patch in a different location using Roundup the year before planting to get better weed control when planting new plants.

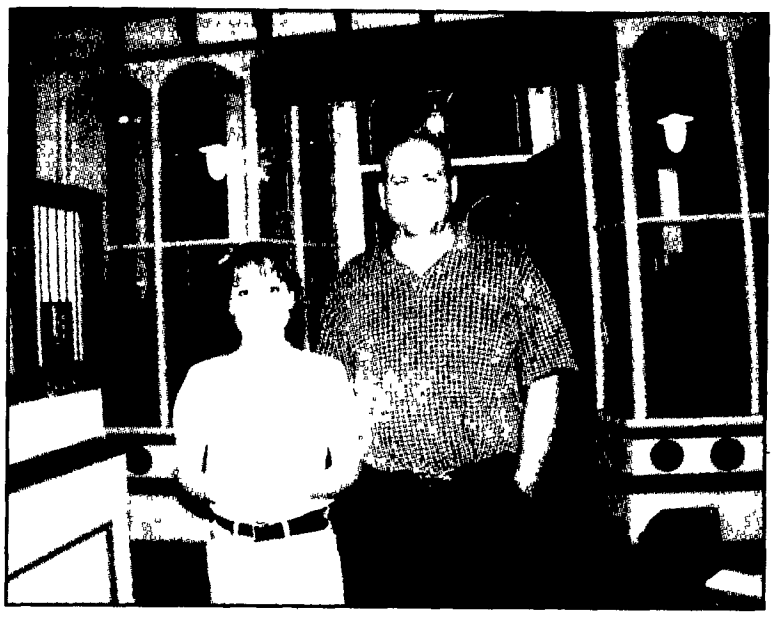
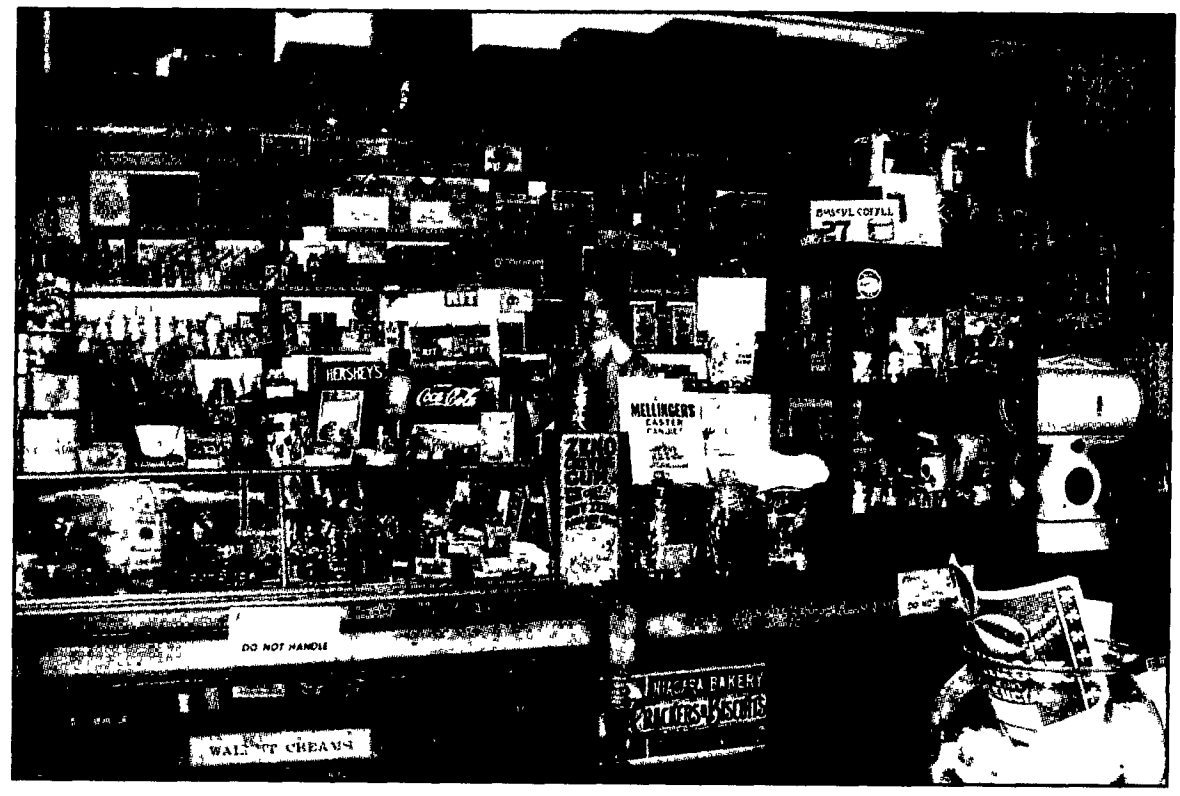
Kready's Country Store Opens Door To Past



Paul and Andrea Brown welcomed guests to Kready's Country Store Museum, Lititz.



Thousands of items are displayed to show store merchandise available in bygone days.

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Collectors often rejoice when they find an original Borax tin, a store advertisement, or a box touting the goodness of soap powder from the turn of the century.

To find thousands of items of store merchandise still intact without broken seals is almost unbelievable. But that's exactly what Paul Brown, Lititz, discovered a few years ago.

In 1993, Brown began the long process of acquiring the merchandise from E.E. Kready General Merchandise Store, which operated in Manheim from 1865-1957. When the owner died, his son closed the store with everything still on the shelves.

For more than 43 years, the contents were hidden from the world. Black soot from the coal stove that heated the building accumulated on the ceiling and the store merchandise. But the dust did not dim Brown's view of the treasures. He knew the whole store was something he wanted not only for himself but to share with the world.

Brown envisioned a museum with the merchandise set up as an original 1860's country store. The store would be like stepping back in history, a place to show the heritage of the county.

But before Brown's dream came true, he had an overwhelming amount of work to do and some unexpected turns along the way.

Buying the merchandise was no easy feat.

"I bought it piece by piece," Brown said. "Even though I bought the sewing cabinet, I had to buy every spool of thread in it separately."

He negotiated prices with Elias E. Kready Jr., who had been the protector of the items in his father's store.

Junior demanded that Brown come each day at 5:30 p.m. to decide the price.

"If I was a minute late, the blind was pulled, and we couldn't do business that day," Brown said.

Although his eccentric behavior was a bit frustrating at the time, Kready nonetheless endeared himself to Brown and his wife Andrea.

"I'm a version of the crabby, old man. I'm the son he never needed," Brown said of the relationship that he continues to maintain with the 87-year-old despite the final sale of the property.

"We couldn't have done this without Kready. He helped set up the store displays. He'd say, 'You can't put the tobacco next to the flour.'"

Meticulous restoration was undertaken. The original linoleum, gas lights, and fixtures are in place. In all the years of operation, store inventory had never been discarded but simply stored in adjacent rooms or in the attic.

Brown was thrilled to find some items from the 1850s, and complete, unopened displays of many salesmen's samples. Calendars with photographs of scenes throughout the century provide a glimpses of bygone eras.

In working condition is the Whitings Travel System, in which customers deposited a penney to see 20 stereographs typical of the 1880s.

(Turn to Page B24)

"Elsie the Cow" was a popular icon for Border's milk for many years. These depict the World's Fair in 1932.

Presentation is everything, Brown said of the meticulously arranged displays.

Kready Museum

"When children came into the store, they headed to the candy counter and to this stereograph to see the pictures," Mrs. Brown said.

Candy of every shape, size, and variety of bygone eras are on display. Museum visitors often reminisce about the candy they remember buying as children. Even the box that children stood on to peer behind the counter glass and glass, tin, and terra cotta candy scoopers, and the paper bags to package the candy, are displayed to make what Junior calls "a tut of candy."

Not only does the store include small items but also such items as an 1888 washing machine and an 1887 vacuum cleaner, and wringers.

Unique items such as new vintage clothing, cookbooks, dolls, and preserved advertisements piqued visitors' attention at every turn.

The oldest item in the museum is a 1771 20-shilling piece. Of interest are what Brown calls "bizarre stuff" such as a sign, "Do not spit on the floor. To do so may cause disease," and Playtex girdles still in the tube.

On display is only a small portion of the thousands of pop-up valentines and children's books.

Brown also had purchased the store property in Manheim, but it had no offstreet parking. After much forethought, the Browns decided to move the whole store — including the exterior — to Lititz. Of his decision, Brown said, "Manheim is a town you drive through, but Lititz is a town you drive to."

The Browns purchased a rundown warehouse-type of building formerly used as a recording studio. The Browns did much of the remodeling themselves. Within the building is the complete two-story store complete with the summer kitchen that was dismantled and rebuilt inside the warehouse. The building also houses a Country Store Cafe, an arts and crafts marketplace, a room filled with vintage pinball machines, and a delightful room for private-catered luncheons that opens into a garden patio.

The private parties are Mrs. Brown's forte. She loves to decorate for the ocassion by incorporating items from the museum, such as using antique baby bottles for flower holders when the event is a baby shower.

She also has planted many of the flowers for the outdoor area. "It's my pride and joy," Mrs. Brown said of the garden.

Even the bushes, trees —including one that reaches 70-feet — and perennial flower beds had been moved from the Kready store and home to the Lititz property.

Somewhere in between all the moving and restoration, the Browns had a daughter Madeline, now 22 months old, who holds her parents' fascination.

Mrs. Brown, a psychology major, switched careers to devote full-time to the museum. She writes magazine articles about many of the items found in the museum.

Brown's restoration captured the attention of three national magazines, numerous newspapers, and even served as the site for an English movie. The museum was awarded the highest level of designation for its significance to Lancaster County's Heritage.

"Presentation is everything," Brown said of the museum that now draws almost daily bus tours, tourists, and locals.

But the Browns are far from finished with their project. They recently purchased Sprecher's Hardware, another store landmark in Ephrata, which they plan to set up as a place to sell the thousands of duplicate items that aren't displayed in the museum.

The Lititz Museum is located at 55 N. Water St., one-half block behind Sturgis Pretzels.

General admission is $4, $3 for seniors, and $2 for students. Group rates are available, as is a lifetime pass for $12.

Hours from April through December are Monday-Friday 9 a.m.-5 p.m., and Saturday 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Other hours are by appointment.

From the Frozen Charlotte dolls of 1880 to the Shirley Temple dolls, this display shows the dolls that captured little girls' hearts between 1880-1957.

THE ANTIQUE DETECTIVE

Anne Gilbert

Cast A Second Glance At Aluminum

What comes to mind with the word aluminum?

Chances are you picture bread baskets and trays in a variety of shapes, mostly with floral designs.

The current exhibit at New York's Cooper-Hewitt National Design Museum will change your mind. It is sure to add not only knowledge but a new concept, guaranteed to raise prices and rev up a new generation of collectors.

There has always been a dedicated group of aluminum collectors but prices have stayed modest considering the craftsmanship involved. And, collecting has centered mostly around utilitarian pieces. American names like Wendell August Forge and Arther Armour are well known but what about Bruce Fox and the Cellini shop in Evanston, Illinois? Or, for that matter, how about designers such as Eero Saarinen who used aluminum in his 1950s furniture designs or George Steedman whose garden furniture done in the 1930s is museum worthy?

Whatever the name, aluminum has come a long way since the 1850s when it was considered "a marvel of science."

In the decade from 1856 to 1862 aluminum was made in such limited quantities that it was considered rare. During that time it was so valued that when made into jewelry it was combined with gold and other precious metals. Even perfume bottles combined aluminum with a variety of materials such as gold and glass.

Unfortunately by 1862 it had fallen from fashion.

Before it lost the appeal of "newness", architectects such as Frederick Osterling used aluminum leaf for trim in the Henry Clay Frick Pittsburg home. Since money was no object he had first considered silver. But, rejected it since silver tarnishes.

By the turn of the century aluminum had moved from elegance to everyday items such as combs and exercise machines.

English designers were making such humble items as biscuit boxes in the early 20th century creating unique designs in aluminum.

Interest was stirred up in 1932 by the Philadelphia Museum of Art exhibit of contemporary industrial art. Aluminum tables, lamps, chairs, venetian blinds and kitchen utensils introduced the public, once again to aluminum. Designer Russel Wright created an aluminum breakfast room.

Detective

Aluminum began to be seriously used as cookware as early the 1890s when it was cast and stamped. Among the first manufacturers were Pittsburgh Reduction company (later Alcoa), Wagnerware and Illinois Pure Aluminum Co.

The Century of Progress International Exposition, Chicago, 1932 offered a variety of aluminum souvenirs that included playing cards. Until the beginning of World War II every bride received at least one aluminum wedding gift.

CLUES: Many 19th century pieces go unrecognized as being aluminum because people don't expect to find antique opera glasses, cruet stands and jewelry made of aluminum.

Longtime Fort Lauderdale dealer, collector Harvey Hesse, has some tips for beginning collectors. "Collecting by pattern is "hot." Fast sellers are large serving pieces. The older the piece the better."

He also points out that rare items like candle snuffers and pieces combined with other materials keep rising in value. An example would be candle holders with jade green, bakalite handles. Any small pieces of furniture like the modular tables designed by Isamu Noguchi in 1954.

Remember, if it almost looks like silver, but isn't, think aluminum.

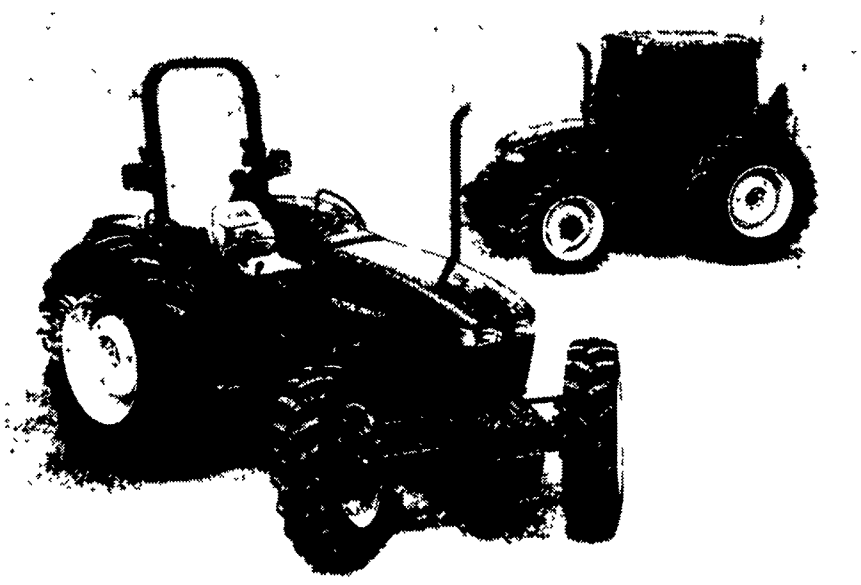
NEW HOLLAND CREDIT



Building on a good thing

You might recognize the engines, drivelines and axles on the new New Holland TS tractors. They have excellent reputations based on past performance. Thousands of customers have put these components to hard use and benefited from their performance and durability.

So, New Holland wasn't about to change a good thing. They made other improvements to these 70- to 90-PTO-hp tractors instead – like increasing the horsepower, improving the comfort of the cab, relocating the fuel tank for added convenience, adding a top road speed of 25 mph, upgrading the electrical system and adding outlets and modernizing the styling.

Better see these exciting 70- to 90-PTO-hp TS tractors for yourself. And find out how good design can become even better.

NEW HOLLAND

A new standard from the 3-cylinder leaders

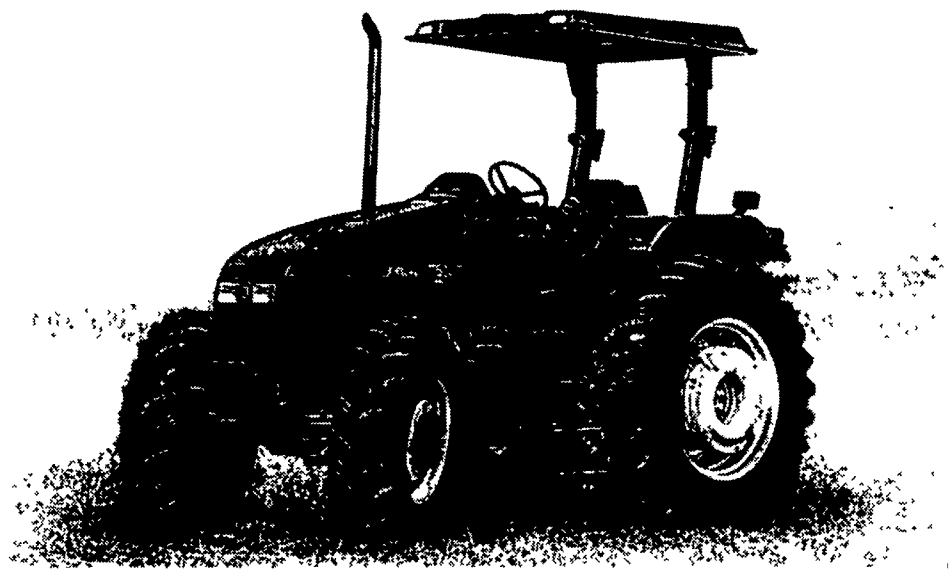
New Holland has raised the standards for 42 to 62 PTO hp tractors with the introduction of TND and TNS models.

The higher standards include:

- Proven engines: up to 36% torque rise
- Exclusive SuperSteer™; 76 degree turning
- Exclusive Traction Management System
- Iso-mounted, fully enclosed cab with standard A/C, heater, tilt/telescope steering, front/rear washers/wipers, best electronic dash, best visibility, and more
- Clutchless power shuttle fingertip control

State-of-the-art 16x16 Synchro Command™ transmission with 4 speeds under 1 mph

NEW HOLLAND



BOOMER™ THE ULTIMATE POWER TOOL

With an innovative sloped-hood design and sleek styling, Boomer compact tractors set new standards for efficiency, maneuverability, and versatility.

Grain/commodities harvested from Roundup Ready® corn and Roundup Ready corn with YieldGard® is approved for U.S. food and feed use, but not yet approved in certain export markets where approval is not likely to be received before the end of 2001. As a result, the Grower is restricted from introducing such grain/commodities into channels of trade where the potential for export to such markets exists. The Grower must channel such grain/commodities for feeding on farm, use in domestic feed lots or other uses in domestic markets only Growers should refer to Monsanto's Technology Use Guide for information on crop stewardship regarding the potential movement of pollen to neighboring crops. For assistance in locating domestic outlets for all other corn grain/commodities, view the ASTA web site at www.amseed.org or contact Monsanto at 1-800-768-6387. Always read and follow label directions. Junior Angus Members Plan LEAD Conference

Junior Angus members ages 14 to 21 will want to plan now to attend the 2001 LEAD (Leaders Engaged in Angus Development) Conference, August 2-5 in Nashville, Tenn. This year's conference, "A Cut Above the Rest," will feature industry speakers, leadership workshops by the National Junior Angus Association (NJAA) board of directors, and a day of tours in the Nashville area.

Motivational speakers Stewart and Casey Kennedy will highlight the event and will interact with the young Angus leaders throughout the week. In addition, Angus producers and other industry spokespeople will visit with the young leaders.

A full day of touring Nashville and its sites is planned. Those in attendance will be able to learn about the history of country music while visiting the Grand Ole Opry Museum. They will also tour the Hermitage, home of president Andrew Jackson, cruise on the Cumberland River on the General Jackson, and take in a performance at the Grand Ole Opry.

Finally, the 12 directors of the NJAA board will conduct workshops, which will teach about etiquette and interviews, paradigm shifts and country dancing. As usual, an industry game show will also take place that allows the participants to compete for prizes and test their industry knowledge.

For more information about 2001 LEAD, contact the junior activities department at (816) 383-5100, or access registration online at HYPERLINK "http://www.angus.org/njaa'' www.angus.org/njaa . The early registration fee is $175 for juniors and $125 for advisors. All registrations and medical release forms are due June 15 to receive the early pricing.

New Skid-Steer Loader System Offers Hand Or Foot Controls

WEST FARGO, N.D. — Bobcat Company, a business unit of Ingersoll-Rand Company and the leading designer and manufacturer of compact equipment, introduces the industry-first Bobcat® "Advanced Control System" (ACS) for selecting hydraulic lift and tilt functions in skid-steer and compact-track loaders. The 'Bobcat ACS gives operators the ability to select either hand or foot control in seconds simply by pushing a rocker switch on the loader's dash.

ACS is available as a factory option on Bobcat G-Series loader models 753 and larger.

This factory-installed ACS option includes the hand controls, foot pedals, dash panel switch and the lift-arm float control button, which is mounted on the left control handle facing the operator. Ideal for fleet owners and rental centers, the ACS option allows machines to be used by a number of operators who can each choose their preferred control option. Instead of having two different machines — one equipped with foot pedals and one with hand controls — owners can now satisfy any operators' preferences with a single ACS-equipped loader.

With the introduction of ACS, Bobcat loader operators now have three factory options for hydraulic lift and tilt functions:

- ACS, which includes both Advanced Hand Controls and Advanced Foot Controls,
- Advanced Hand Controls only, or
- Foot pedals only, standard on all Bobcat loaders.

Engaging the lift arm float function is now controlled by a detent button on the left handle of machines equipped with Advanced Hand Controls or the Advanced Control System.

For more information on Bobcat products, contact a Bobcat dealer. Use the dealer locator at www.bobcat.com to find the nearest location.

Snyder Promoted To Plant Manager For Chore-Time Hog Production Systems

MILFORD, Indiana — Denis Snyder has been promoted to plant manager of Chore-Time Hog Production Systems' plant in Schaefferstown, according to George Zimmerman, vice-president and general manager for the Chore-Time Brock (CTB, Inc.) business unit. His new responsibilities will include leading and managing personnel, resources and manufacturing operations.

Snyder has worked for Chore-Time Brock since 1982 and has held various positions with his most recent being supervisor of the company's machine shop and MIG welding departments in Milford, Indiana. He graduated from Vincennes University, Vincennes, Indiana, with an associates degree in accounting, and earned an associates degree in machine tool technology from Ivy Tech State College, South Bend, Indiana.

Snyder is a native of Bourbon, Indiana, and resides in the Nappanee, Indiana area with his wife, Kathy, and son, Joshua. He plans to relocate with his family to the Lancaster area.

Land Pride Offers New Post Hole Diggers

SALINA, Kan. — Featuring tubular yokes and booms are reliable Pengo brand augers, Land Pride Post Hole Diggers are ideal for a wide variety of applications.

All Land Pride augers feature hardened reversible cutting teeth, cast steel pilot with three drill points and ¼-inch thick flighting. Three new hydraulic models have been added to the existing line of three-point PTO driven models.

The hydraulic driven bucket mount Post Hole Digger is easily bolted to the side of a front end loader bucket. The hydraulics on the bucket can be used as additional force in digging through heavy soil. The hydraulic driven three-point tractor mounted Post Hole Digger uses tractor hydraulics to turn the auger. Auger direction can be reversed, easing the strain on the auger when extracting it from the ground. Both hydraulic driven models are available in HD25 Series, rated at 5-12 GPM, or HD35 Series, rated from 10-25 GPM.

Use the skid steer to push the auger into the ground with the SA30 or SA35 Series Post Hole Diggers. The skid steer mounted Pole Hole Diggers offer high torque output, planetary gearbox, two-inch hex or two 9/16-inch splined output shaft and augers sized 9-inch to 36-inch.

Case IH STX Series Steiger Tractors Set 17 Records In Nebraska Tests

RACINE, Wis. — Three Case IH STX Series Steiger® tractor models set 17 records in the recent independent Nebraska tractor tests.

"The Nebraska tests have long been regarded as a 'consumer report' for new agricultural tractors," explained Randy Wood, Case IH product marketing manager for large tractors. "These tests confirm that the STX Series tractors — introduced in 2000 — provide customers with new standards in power, versatility and productivity."

The tests verified that several performance standards of the STX Series tractors surpass any other tractor in their class. Among these standards:

- Approximately 50 percent torque rise, higher than all leading competitors.
- Lowest fuel consumption at maximum power.
- Approximately a 50 hp power growth.
- Highest three-point hitch lift capacity using the OECD testing criteria.

And what were the 17 records? The STX375 and STX440 wheeled tractors set these records for four-wheel-drive (4WD) tractors:

STX375 Wheel: PTO fuel economy at reduced PTO speed — 0.371 pounds/hp-hour; Drawbar fuel economy at 75 percent load at reduced engine rpm — 0.370 pounds/hp-hour; Drawbar fuel economy at 100 percent load at reduced engine rpm — 0.376 pounds/hp-hour; Torque rise at 80 percent of rated engine speed — 43.9 percent.

The STX 440 Quadtrac set these Nebraska test records for "tracklayer" tractors: PTO Power at rated engine speed — 399.14 PTO hp*; Maximum PTO Power — 450.29 hp*; three-point hitch lift capacity — 19,728 pounds; Unballasted drawbar horsepower — 386.04 hp; Unballasted maximum pull — 38,412 pounds; Maximum hydraulic flow — 55.2 gpm; Maximum hydraulic hp — 69.0 hp.

*These PTO numbers are for tracklayer vehicles.

The state of Nebraska requires all agricultural powered tractors over 30 hp to be independently tested. The tests use the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) testing standards as required in some countries. Four tests are completed on each tractor:

- PTO horsepower.
- Drawbar horsepower.
- Cab sound level.
- Hydraulic system performance.

"The STX Series tractors were designed with input from 2,200 farmers," Wood notes. "The result is that these tractors feature unsurpassed productivity, fuel economy, ease of operation, visibility, hydraulic performance and operator comfort, plus improved turning radius."

The remaining models in the new STX 4WD series — the STX275 and the STX325 — will be tested this fall.

Case IH is a leading brand whose signature red color is recognized around the world due to its 160-year history in the farm equipment industry. Research On Virus May Help Control Turkey Disease

WOOSTER, Ohio — Research on a virus that contributes to the development of poult enteritis and mortality syndrome (PEMS) of turkeys may shed new light on how the illness spreads and what can be done to control it.

Ohio State University researchers Mo Saif and Yuxin Tang of the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center's Food Animal Health Research Program received a $30,000 U.S. Poultry and Egg Association grant to study the astrovirus. Research has found that the virus, which attacks the immune system of young turkey poults, is responsible for the development of PEMS, an emerging disease that causes high mortality and severe economic losses to the poultry industry.

Saif said the astrovirus was first detected in turkeys in the 1980s, but is believed to have undergone several mutational changes since then that have allowed it to become a contributing factor in PEMS development.

"When we first began studying PEMS in turkeys we didn't think it was the astrovirus that was causing the symptoms," said Saif. "We thought it was something completely different." Saif said that the astrovirus first began as an enteric or gastrointestinal disease but was undergone changes that enable it to enter the blood stream and lymphatic system. "Something had to have changed at the molecular level that has made the virus capable of getting out of the intestinal tract and into the general circulation," he said.

The researchers will compare the astrovirus of the 1980s with the present-day astrovirus in the hope of discovering what molecular changes the virus has undergone. The goal of the research is to find out how the astrovirus spreads and develop ways to control it, thus controlling PEMS. Currently, no vaccines are available to protect turkey flocks against the illness.

PEMS was first diagnosed in 1991 in North Carolina. Since then, it has spread to other states such as South Carolina, Texas, Virginia and Indiana and has cost the poultry industry over $34 million in losses. The disease, which attacks poults age two to four weeks, can cause a mortality rate as high as 70 percent. PEMS weakens the immune system, leaving turkeys highly susceptible to bacterial and parasitic infections. Those birds that survive become stunted in growth. That is, the turkey no longer gains weight despite the amount of feed it consumes.

So far, PEMS has not been found in Ohio.

Top Producers Choose Knight!
Congratulations to the La-Foster Farm

Terry and Gerald Foster are very proud of their record-breaking cow, Lucy, and rightly so. She produced 75,260 pounds of milk in her last lactation. They are also pleased with their Knight Reel Auggie® mixers, which, combined with the Foster's excellent management practices, have propelled the La-Foster herd average to the #1 milk production status in North Carolina. There is no comparison to the complete, palatable blend from a Knight Reel Auggie, with its patented reel and auger blending combination. Why else would the La-Foster Farm choose only Knight to feed their record-setting herd?

Soil Aerator Weed Killer!

Yetter
Defining Solutions

Yetter Rotary Hoe

- Aggressively uproots weeds
- Incorporates herbicide
- Aerates soil before planting
- Follows soil contour
- Staggered arms allow residue flow
- Note Individual arms can be raised to use as a cultivator

Yetter Rotary Hoes allow you to keep ripping out weeds year after year with the same iron

- Along with killing those yield-robbing weeds, you benefit by busting yield-limiting crusted soils Isn't it time you kicked the can and got the Hoe? Yetter Rotary Hoes, a guaranteed approach to environmentally-friendly weed control with the added benefits of time-saving speed and accuracy - year after year

GEHL. ROUND BALERS

Featuring the ALL-NEW Variable Open-Throat Power In-Feed System

GREAT BALING STARTS HERE
Variable Open-Throat Power In-Feed System

Here s how it works The incoming crop is pulled off the pickup by the aggressive action of two power in-feed rolls – a 6-inch-diameter pivoting power in-feed roll on top and and 8-inch diameter fixed power in-feed roll on the bottom

The top pivoting power in-feed roll rides over the crop as it is pulled into the bale chamber An extension spring keeps the toproll under constant downward force

The spring tension increases as the variable throat opens from a minimum of 3/4 of an inch up to a maximum opening of nearly 7 inches

The constant downward force of the pivoting upper powered in-feed roll, in combination with the fixed lower in-feed roll both turning inward, pniches the crop and forces it into the bale chamber The stripping roll strips crop off the belt and forces it down to the incoming crop Adjustable scrapers on the stripping roll and pivoting roll eliminate buildup

The Highest Resale Value and

When it comes to resale values, the MX Series Magnum™ Tractor leads the way.* It's easy to understand why. The value is built in from day one. It's the most powerful row crop tractor ever tested, with the highest hitch lift capacity and draw bar horsepower ever offered. And it boasts the largest, quietest cab in the industry.

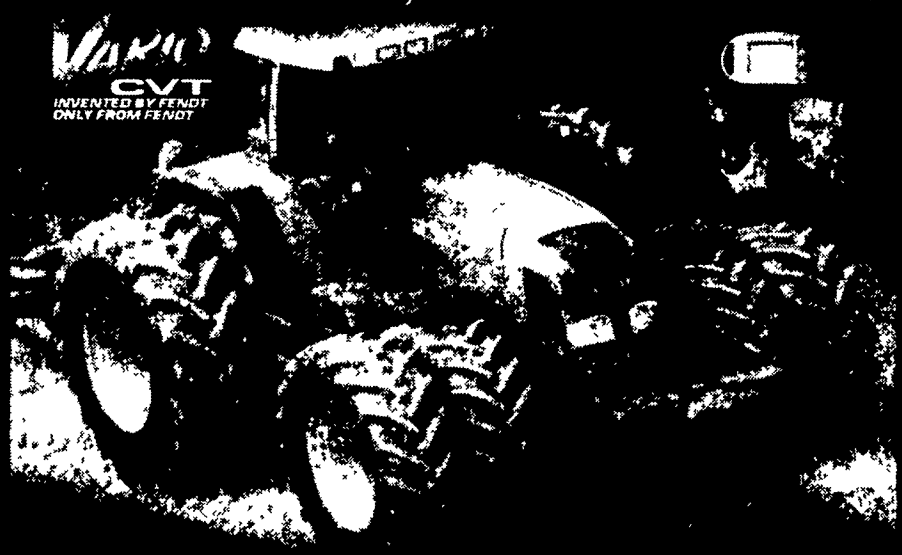
VARIO, THE NEW STEPLESS DRIVE TECHNOLOGY, IS ONLY AVAILABLE IN THE INGENUITY OF A FENDT.



An important change has occurred in the engineering of tractor design. It will change the way you work.

Cutting-edge engineering has blended the efficiency of powershift and versatility of hydrostatic technology.

The result: an infinite selection of speeds with no shifting. Engine potential is maximized, giving you the exact working speed you require and not just something "close enough". Productivity rises noticeably. Fuel consumption drops.

Steering, brakes plus hydraulics are now controlled through a joystick linked to the on-board computer. All the power and control is in a slight movement of your wrist. Power that ranges from 72 to 240 PTO horsepower.

The ergonomic concept combine to make this tractor your secret weapon for a much more profitable and comfortable working day.

Unfortunately... But it will have to be a FENDT. No other tractor in North America offers this amazing technology.

FENDT REVERSE STATION TRACTORS

When you invest in a FENDT Tractor with Reverse Station, you're actually getting several pieces of equipment. In less than a minute you can turn this ingenious tractor into a self-propelled forage harvester, swather, windrower, chopper, even a powerful snowthrower. Seat, steering wheel and the entire instrumentation swings 180° and locks in place. And from this position, you've never had a better view of your work.

BE Power Train
Clutch and Gear Reduction
Model F

Features
- New style clutch Fewer moving parts than ever before Parts hardened & finish ground No linkage to wear out.
- Bolts directly onto most 8-22 hp engines Can be used on engines up to 30 Hp.
- 5 8-1 ratio for P.T.O hookups, engine RPMs 3130, and 540 at PTO.
- Run live hydraulic with belt.
- No need to cut off crankshaft, just bolt it on.

Take a closer look. Designed for the farmer and/or whoever needs a clutch and gear reduction for P.T.O. and other drives. This BE Clutch and Reduction can easily be mounted directly on engines such as Honda, Kawasaki, Robin w/special pilot dia., Briggs-Vanguard and others. Some engines with larger pilot diameters need an adaptor (we make them), such as Kohler, Onan, small diesels and others.

GEHL

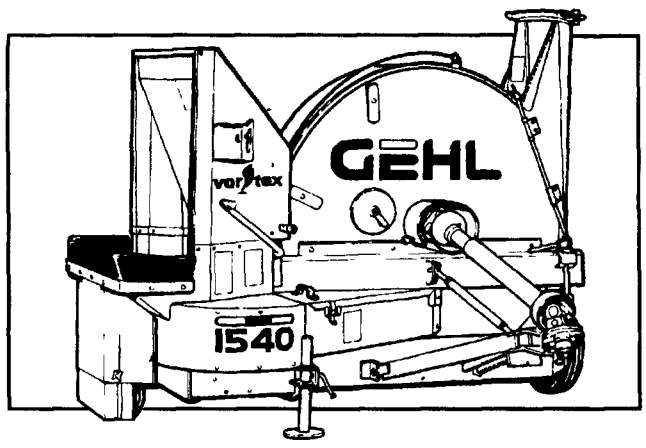
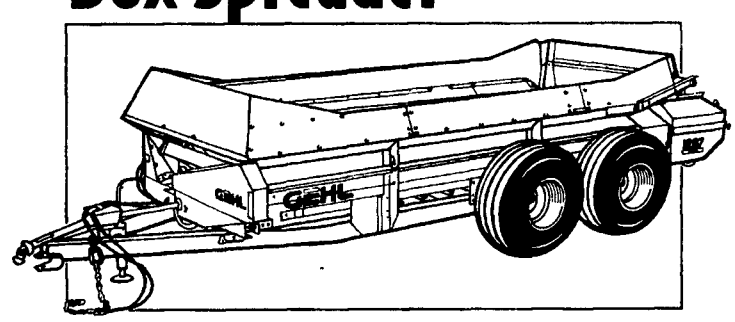
"Vortex™" Blowers



If you need a high-capacity forage blower to fill your tallest silos, Gehl Vortex blowers will help get your silo-filling done in short order
- Three models - Your choice of 540 or 1,000 rpm operation.
- Twin spinners - Rifle material into the blower fan at nearly 35 mph
- Twin-sided fan disc - Paddles on both sides shoot the crop up the pipe in nearly continuous flow
- Split rim sheets - Feature a replaceable inner liner for longer life and lower maintenance costs
- Many convenience features - Swing-away blower outlet, air vents, adjustable left tire, right tire guard, wide hopper, removable tunnel covers and duals water inlets

One Tough Box Spreader
GEHL the name means quality since 1859



Gehl Box Spreaders deliver outstanding performance in a variety of materials. And they're built extra-strong for more years of dependable service. Available in four sizes, these units can be custom-equipped to match your operation. See your Gehl dealer for complete details.
- Excellent Spread Patterns - In a variety of materials.
- 12-Year Warranty - On sides and floor.
- High-Density Polyethylene Flooring - Virtually indestructible.
- Options Include - Hydraulic remote control, hydraulic drive, hydraulic endgate and liquid side extensions

MADISON, Wis. — At a time when many consider the filling rates of the tower silo to be incapable of keeping pace with a custom harvester, some custom harvesters are turning heads. Tower silos all across the dairy lands are being filled at rates exceeding 100-tons/hr.

While the specifications on forage blowers report capacities of 180-tons/hour for corn silage and 110-tons/hr. for haylage, these numbers have not been widely publicized or thought to be achievable.

Earl Ray Shirk of Groffsdale Custom Harvesting reports consistently filling 20-foot x 80-foot towers in five hours. In Shirk's operation, they run a 175-horsepower tractor connected to a blower with a 60-inch fan at 540 rpm. Shirk said, "It's fairly impressive to watch, and we never run into a problem with plugging the (blower) pipe."

Given the lower storage losses and better feed quality, many consider the tower silo the most economical system to store feed. This comes as a word of encouragement to those dairy producers who may be struggling to get a custom harvester to work with their tower silos. In the past, many dairies have gone to bunker storage because of what was thought to be a slow down at the filling process.

Larger herds beginning to use tower silos provide interesting test cases. Jeremy Zirbel, who works with a 30-foot by 128-foot tower, said, "We're emptying eight to nine-ton wagons in under two minutes. While we have not used a custom harvester yet, I have no doubt that the blower could handle it."

John Gazley, a member of the International Silo Association Board of Directors, said, "With the practical application of some of these filling speeds, the tower silo becomes even more viable in the feed storage market place. Applying the University of Wisconsin's Bunker Density Calculator, it becomes evident that getting proper compaction in a bunker silo at these rates is extremely difficult."

The University of Wisconsin's bunker density calculator suggests that using a 10-foot maximum height of silage, 65 percent moisture, and a six-inch layer thickness as inputs, a 30,000 pound tractor can properly pack only 50 tons/hour. The spreadsheet recommends a bunker density of at least 14-pounds of dry matter/cubic foot. At this density, the six-month dry matter losses reach approximately 17 percent.

Dr. Brian Holmes of the University of Wisconsin said, "We have been trying to get people to understand that limitation (filling speeds of bunkers) for about a year or so now. You may find that you have to increase packing tractor weight and add more tractors...if the producer wants to get a reasonable job of packing done."

Launch Of Beef Products Will Fuel Rising Beef Demand

SAN ANTONIO, TX — With seven consecutive quarters of increased consumer demand and year-end demand 3.6 percent higher than 1999 levels, the beef industry is on track for continued growth, according to the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA). The NCBA is cooperating on industry plans to boost demand another 6 percent by 2004, and new convenient beef products will be center stage in achieving that goal.

The industry provided a taste of what's to come from the 2001 Cattle and Beef Industry Convention by announcing the launch of several convenient beef products, including Farmland Ground & Browned Fully Cooked Ground Seasoned Beef, Cheeseburger Fries distributed by Sam Hausman Meat Packer, Inc., and Hormel's Always Tender Peppercorn Beef Filet of Sirloin, Teriyaki Beef Filet of Sirloin, and Grilled and Italian Beef Filets. In addition, No Name Steaks' Quick-N-Tender U.S.D.A. Choice Boneless Beef Filets — a product launched about one year ago — have seen continued growth and distribution.

"Checkoff dollars have made it possible for us to work with several branded companies over the last few years to develop innovative concepts and bring those concepts to life for today's consumers," said Lee Hall, Kentucky beef producer and chairman of the new products committee.

The new beef products highlighted today — all developed with support from the national beef checkoff — can be served in a variety of applications, such as beef ingredients (Farmland Ground & Browned), beef appetizers (Cheeseburger Fries) and versatile beef meals (Hormel Always Tender marinated beef line).

Hormel's Always Tender Peppercorn Beef Filet of Sirloin, Teriyaki Beef Filet of Sirloin, and Grilled and Italian Beef Filets:

Based in part on the Beef Industry's Marinated Beef concept, these fresh beef cuts are pre-marinated for flavor and tenderness, individually vacuum-packed and sold in the fresh meat case. Average filet is about 2-pounds and cooks in just 40 minutes or less in a conventional oven or on the grill. These products are currently sold nationally with strong distribution in large markets such as Texas, Florida, Colorado, Georgia, New England and throughout the Midwest.

Farmland Ground & Browned Fully Cooked Ground Seasoned Beef (Original, Italian & Mexican flavors)

The beef industry's work done on its Ground Beef Crumbles concept provided insight in the refinement of Farmland National Beef's Ground And Browned Fully Cooked Ground Seasoned Beef product. Available in three pre-seasoned flavors, the product is sold in 12-ounce packages (equivalent to 1 pound of uncooked ground beef). Zip seal packaging allows for re-use and helps maintain freshness. Sold in the grocer's fresh meat case in Midwest and West Coast markets.

Sam Hausman Meat Packer, Inc.'s Cheeseburger Fries

This product is the result of the beef industry's Cheeseburger Fries, a breaded, beef finger food made with seasoned beef and cheddar cheese. Sam Hausman's product is currently sold solely at foodservice through distributors in the Southwest. Served with various dipping sauces, this competitor for chicken nuggets or chicken fingers can be served as an appetizer, kid's meal item or quick-serve meal.

No Name Steaks, Quick-N-Tender U.S.D.A. Choice Boneless Beef Filets

No Name Steaks of St. Michael, Minn., worked with the beef industry to bring the concept of a boneless beef filet to life in the form of Quick-and-Tender Boneless Beef Filets, thin, marinated beef chuck steaks. This product rivals the chicken breast in terms of convenience, ease and speed of preparation. In addition, it meets National Labeling Education Act (NLEA) guidelines, designating it as a lean product. The product is currently being distributed in large markets such as Chicago, Minneapolis, Phoenix and Denver.

"The diversity of these beef products reflects the need for convenience, variety and the great beef taste that keeps beef America's number-one selling protein," said Carl Blackwell, executive director, new products, for the NCBA.

Not only do these products bring new meal solutions to the table, but they also signify important changes in the beef industry. Long-anchored in the pork arena, Hormel is now expanding its business to include beef. Until recently, the most widely recognized Hormel beef products used beef as an ingredient, including Hormel Chili and Dinty Moore Beef Stew. Today, Hormel is launching its four new, pre-marinated filets and company executives expect that total ACV (distribution) will increase to about 40 to 50 percent by the spring of 2001.

Sam Hausman, which in the 1970's focused on cryogenic freezing, innovative production methods and modern store distribution, has found a renewed approach to its business in beef. A fixture of the Texas beef industry for over sixty years, the company has recently broadened its sales approach to include the national and international marketplace. They will market their value-added beef products through national multi-unit accounts and broad line distributors, while also expanding their line of pre-cooked beef products.

Farmland National Beef executives see food branding as a key component to compete as a global agribusiness company. It is now investing heavily in the farmer-owned food brand with a number of new products including its fully cooked and pre-seasoned ground beef.Finally, No Name Steaks, purveyors of frozen pre-marinated, ready-to-cook steaks since 1993, are focused on expanding their convenient beef line and growing business in current markets.

Since 1998, the beef industry's R and D Ranch team has participated in the launch of more than 50 new product concepts with partner brands and is working on additional concepts for 2001. The team's focus has been to help industry partners identify new beef and veal product opportunities that complement and grow their businesses and help transform the underutilized chuck and round cuts.

Looking For Tomorrow's Dairy Leaders Today

Are you prepared to deal with your nonfarm neighbors who see your dairy as a nuisance? Could you calmly answer attacks from an anti-dairy activist? Would you like to work more effectively with employees, your family, or your management team? Would you like to develop your leadership skills to shape the direction of the dairy industry? If so, there is a conference you must attend.

Young Dairy Leaders Institute (YDLI) is seeking the best and the brightest young dairy professionals from throughout the nation for its fourth class to be held February 2002 and 2003 in Tampa, Fla. Dairy producers and allied dairy industry members, ages 22 to 45, are encouraged to apply.

The YDLI experience includes a focused three-phase leadership and communications skills development program sponsored by the Holstein Foundation.

YDLI's unique hands-on approach to leadership development distinguishes it from other national dairy leadership conferences. By weaving timely and cutting edge issues information into its leadership skills workshops, YDLI allows participants to learn by actively engaging in exciting and dynamic exercises, practicing newly acquired skills in mock senate hearings, community and board meetings, and media interviews.

This intensive training promotes strong and long-lasting relationships among participants and helps to foster YDLI's mission of building unity in the dairy industry. YDLI's diverse participants include men and women who are dairy enthusiasts ages 22 to 45. Alumni from the Institute work with all breeds of cattle and include both producers and allied industry professionals who hail from states ranging from California to New England and Florida to Washington. Through YDLI, they learn the importance of both appreciating differences and reaching consensus on issues facing the industry.

Phase I of YDLI is a four-day conference focusing on developing the participants' individual leadership skills, enhancing communication and media relation skills, understanding personality styles, developing effective meeting skills and beginning board member training, all against a backdrop of urgent issues facing the industry.

Phase II provides participants the opportunity to put into practice their newly acquired skills by undertaking outreach activities in their communities. This phase also allows participants to network with other class members.

Phase III brings participants together for a second four-day conference focusing on team development and group leadership skills, affecting the public policy process, advanced board member training, and advanced media relation skills with timely issues woven into the program. Participants learn from and are inspired by top industry leaders and nationally recognized speakers who convey a spirit of optimism for the future.

By integrating all of these skills, graduates of YDLI are positioned to strengthen the institutions and organization to which they belong; the communities in which they live; and the dairy industry from which they derive their livelihood. To date, YDLI alumni include nearly 300 dairy producers and professionals making leadership contributions at the local, state, and national level.

Pete Kappleman, dairy producer and former president of Professional Dairy Producers of Wisconsin, says, "I've been a part of numerous young farmer and cooperator programs, but YDLI has by far had the biggest impact on me." Karla Spencer, extension specialist in Missouri, states: "YDLI is an experience I can draw upon every day. If I can practice half of what I learned I'll be twice as effective."

Duane Nelson, dairy producer from Minnesota, feels "YDLI has helped me to better understand, communicate, and get along on the home front. It should also help me to be a better board member."

Utah dairy producers John and Maria Nye summed up their YDLI experience as follows: "This has been a tremendous learning and growth experience for us personally and for our dairy. We want to encourage others to share the experience."

If you want to be included among this group of enthusiastic young agricultural professionals who approach issues with optimism and achieve results, then YDLI is for you. For more information and applications, contact Ellen Merrill at the Holstein Foundation by phone, 1-800-952-5200 x4231; email, emerrill@holstein.com; or look up the foundation's website at www.holsteinfoundation.org.

Applications are due August 15.

Land Pride Adds 42" Rotary Cutter

SALINA, Kan. — Ideal for clearing grass, weeds and light brush, Land Pride's RCR15 Series Rotary Cutters are now available in 42-inch, 48-inch, 60-inch and 72-inch widths. The 42-inch and 48-inch models offer an adjustable cutting height from 1-¾-inch — 11-½-inch, while the 60-inch and 72-inch has a cutting height from one-inch to nine-inches. These cutters feature a floating three-point, 10 gauge round stump jumper and high blade tip speed.

Standard features include heavy-duty tailwheel spindle, heat treated blades, Cat. three drivelines with shear bolt or two-plate slip-clutch and 12 gauge deck thickness. Full length skid shoes also provide sidewall reinforcement.

BEEF TIPS

Pennsylvania Bull Test (Part 2)

23 Simmental bulls on test at Penn State's bull test station this year gained an average of 4 pounds a day. Even more important than the weight was the fact that the growth and weight was determined to be meat--not fat. All bulls on test were ultrasounded to measure the amount of gain that was backfat. Simmental bulls averaged .24 inches of backfat, compared to the Angus bull average of over one half inch (.051 inch). That is just one reason why many commercial breeders often crossbreed their Angus and other breeds with Simmentals. For a FREE Simmental Association directory listing all breeders in your state, call the numbers listed below.

THE ROAST-A-MATIC Grain Roaster & Cooler Unit is superior to other methods of heat processed grain

~ No condensation on top of grain
~ Quality control - no hot spots from improper cooling
~ Grain can be put into storage cold

~ Prevents deterioration of elevator legs from hot grain condensation ~ Saves handling time ~ On the farm drying

Have your soybeans, corn, wheat, oats, sorghum and barley, roasted, cooled and stored on your farm

spend some of that cash, for spring's on the run.

We have pruners, wood baskets, cartons, and more items for tree use, packing, shipping, and store.

There are bedding plant trays, step-ladders, staples, and such and you'll see that our prices are not overly much.

So visit, or phone us, we're glad to oblige and we'll welcome the purchase, no matter the size.

ALL NATURAL-HARDWOOD MULCH

We offer a premium quality, all-natural, hardwood mulch perfect for landscaping and home gardening applications.
We never use demolition material, ground pallets or chemicals– so our customers can rest assured that there are no contaminates in our product that could harm plants or flowers. Our mulch is double ground and screened and naturally composted to produce a very rich dark color and fine consistency.
Large quantities available for pick-up or delivery.

WHOLESALERS & RETAILERS WELCOME

We are only 30 minutes from Harrisburg and are conveniently located off of major highway. Mulch is the perfect product for truckers needing a backhaul from this direction - call for our extended hours and product samples and pricing info.

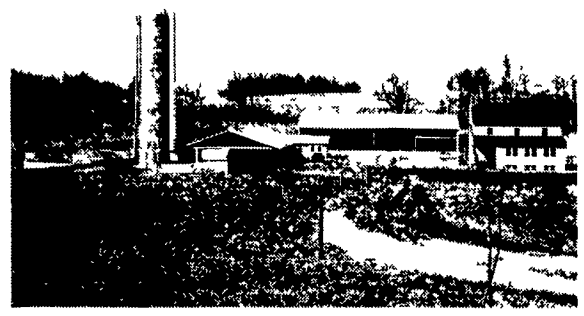
PURINA FEED HELPS BRING MILK PRODUCTION TO MORE THAN A MILLION POUNDS ON EACH FARM

King Ridge Farm, Leola, houses 59 cows. The dairy milks 26,143 pounds on the rolling herd average at 885 pounds of fat.

Liz-Lee Farm, Leola, milks 63 cows, all registered Holstein.



This Holtwood area dairy has 60 cows and milks more than 25,000 pounds on the rolling herd average at 1,000 pounds of fat.

Liz-Lee Marlin Belfast, a 6-year-old classified Excellent, is a top producer for Liz-Lee Farm.

A new 60-cow stall barn was recently constructed on this Holtwood dairy, helping to bring annual milk production to 1.375 million pounds.

That production can be attributed to good health management using Purina Feeds.

A 60-cow dairy on 30 acres in Holtwood, with Pennsylvania DHIA, milks about 25,000 pounds on the rolling herd average at more than 1,000 pounds fat. A new facility, built in 2000, includes stalls for 60 cows. Farm owners are milking about 1.37 million pounds using Purina Maxi-Tech Concentrate and a topdress with Purina Super EXT®.

Liz-Lee Farm has 63 cows on about 70 acres in Leola. Top producer Liz-Lee Marlin Belfast, a 6-year-old registered Holstein, has been fed Purina products, including Super EXT® and Maxi-Tech Select, her whole life.

The farm has been using Purina products faithfully for about 21 years and milks about 1.4 million pounds per year.

King Ridge Farm, Leola, has a 5-year-old milking about 158 pounds. King Ridge, selling to Dairy Farmers of America, includes a 5-year-old, Alicia King Ridge Emory 91. The dairy milks about 1.37 million pounds from 59 cows per year. The farm uses Maxi-Tech complete with a topdress of Purina Super EXT®. Rolling herd average is 26,143 pounds milk and 885 pounds fat.

Many of the dairies are showing great improvement in milk checks, with milk prices on the rise and cost of feed staying at low levels - good news for all Purina customers.
